NEWTON, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 3, 1914.

PONY EXPRESS LICENSE GRANTED

Aldermen, At Midnight Meeting, Vote Exclusive Privilege to the American Express Co.

The board of aldermen held its last regular meeting previous to the usual summer vacation and went thru the longest docket of the year, reaching adjournment some time after midnight.

The most important business was the settlement of the pony express matter which has been before the board in one shape or another for three months. The board adhered to its action of the previous meeting in granting but one license and awarded that to the American Express Co.

President Blakemore was in the chair and the only absentee was Alderman Malcolm, who is abroad; Alderman Bartlett being quite late and not taking his seat until about ten o'clock.

Hearings were held on petitions of the Edison Co., for pole locations on Newtonville avenue, Clafin place, Regent street, Chaske avenue and for underground conduits in Nonantum street, all of which were subsequently granted. Hearings were also held on petitions to keep gasoline, from William G. Wilkins, Bowers street, Charles F. Cheney, Walnut street, Arthur G. Baker, Chestnut street and J. F. Kessler, Vine street, all of which were also granted.

Hon. Samuel L. Powers appeared in favor of the petition of R. W. Jamieson to keep gasoline on Pearl street, stating that the petitioner intended to erect a commodious garage for the public. A strong protest was filed by the abutters and the matter was referred to the Licenses committee.

No one appeared on the proposed widening of Hancock street in Auburndale and the order was subsequently adopted.

Mayor Childs sent in the usual long list of communications, most of which were under the new financial statute. Among them were requests for $155 for street betterment loan, $36 for Soldiers Relief, $2400 for collection of ashes, $3500 for pumping engine repairs, $4200 for sewer house connections, $300 for street automobile maintenance, $4385 for pits and crushers, $500 for sewer bond interest, $200 for Treasury office expenses, $356 for taxes on city land, $550 for City Home expenses, $275 for auto maintenance, Charly Dept., $500 for Worthy Mothers fund, $130 for Board of Appeals, $100 for Buildings Dept., auto maintenance, $25 for Sealer's office expenses, and $271 for hot water showers. High school, all of which were approved.

The school committee approved $500 for collection of ashes, $8500 for new heating apparatus, Clafin schools, $514.25 for salary of Police officer Meehan, $5000 additional for Contagious sick, etc., recommended the widening of Otis street at Somerset road, certain transfers in the Forestry Dept. appropriations and asked for a committee on Relief for Salem.

The school committee approved plans of the Social Science Club for better heating at the Bigelow school. Petitions of D. B. Rich for auctioneer license, Charles Hagopian for pool tables at Upper Falls, Orrin Bagley to carry 40 passengers on his power boat in the Charles river, Stutson et al. Recent street, Sullivan et al. Mere-fith avenue, Rathburn et al. Cedar street, Clark et al. Hancock avenue, Delaney et al. Jackson road, for street sprinkling, Robert Weir and J. E. Mitchell for taxi cabs, the Edison Co. for attachments on Dale street, Derby street and Waltham street, and relocation on Nonantum street, the Telephone Company for attachments on Crescent square, to remove poles on Centre and Mill streets, and for relocation on Cheswick road were granted.

Other petitions were received from A. Potter for sewer in Rockwood terrace and from E. L. Ovington for street sprinkling on Dedham street. Bond of H. H. Gilfix as constable was approved.

On reports of committees, Duffield road was laid out under the betterment act and $2568 appropriated for construction, land was taken and a sewer ordered in Northgate park and Adena road, hearing assigned for Sept. 14 on laying out of Marshall street under the betterment act, street sprinkling ordered on Bigelow road, Sylvan avenue, Chesley road, Everett street, Mt. Vernon street, Vista avenue, Pine street, and Irlington road, $400 appropriated for completion of widening of Washington street, $500 for sanitary conveniences at Newton Centre playground, water mains ordered in Adena road, Asoen avenue, Washburn avenue and Mill street, no action taken on request of Orrin Bagley relative to float in Charles river, inexpedient to make an additional appropriation for resurfacing Lincoln street, Lincoln soldiers relief granted Charles F. Alexander, Hawthorne street, leave to withdraw granted Antonio Manteca for pool tables in Nonantum, no action necessary on protest against garage of John Cormier, the M. & B. St. Rwy. Co. granted poles on Washington, Centre and Hall streets, formerly owned by Edison Company, on condition that iron poles were substituted for present wooden poles, the Gas Light Co. was given permission to open streets to lay gas mains, the mayor was given authority to lease the old armory building, provided the city did not make any repairs, inexpedient to spend $1000 in improvements in Newton Centre engine house, $3000 additional voted for Contagious sick, officer N. F. Bosworth pensioned at $600 a year, $6.00 a month soldiers relief granted G. F. Bicknell, bond of Ralph T. Laffie as constable was approved, a bond issue of $5000 authorized for constructing certain betterment streets, including Hobart road, $865, and Monadnock road, $1072, transfers made in Moth Work appropriation to allow for exterminating the Leopard moth and elm tree beetle, and establishing rate of interest on unpaid taxes.

The pony express matter came before the board on the opinion of the city solicitor on the appeal taken at the last meeting from the ruling of President Blakemore, that a motion made by Alderman Bartlett, to rescind the action just taken in accepting the minority report of the License committee, which favored the granting of but one license, and a reference to the committee to determine to whom the license should be given.

President Blakemore had ruled that the motion to rescind was in order and Alderman Forknall had appealed on the ground that the motion was in effect, a motion to reconsider, and that Alderman Bartlett, having voted with the minority was not eligible to make such motion. The city solicitor rendered his opinion that the motion to rescind was a proper motion and on the question as to whether the action taken by the board in favor of one license, etc., gave his opinion that the board had acted within its legal rights.

Alderman Forknall said that the opinion takes the board at a disadvantage as it came in so late it could not be studied carefully. He criticized the city solicitor for not giving his opinion to the License committee at its last meeting and said that rumors as to what his opinion was to be had been freely circulated all the previous week.

The decision of the chair on the appeal was then sustained by a rising vote of 12 to 5. On the question of rescinding the previous action Alderman Richardson thought no reason had been given and President Blakemore stated that the law required the board to either grant or refuse these licenses. Alderman Rice said the board had already decided on what it wants and if it refuses to rescind its (Continued on Page 8)

RELIEF FOR SALEM

CHARLES JASON CLARK

Mr. Charles Jason Clark passed away last week on Wednesday at Newton, after a lingering illness extending over a period of about two years. The funeral took place Saturday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George B. H. Macomber on Highland avenue, Newtonville. Rev. Richard T. Loring, rector of St. John's Church, conducted an impressive service at quarter past twelve, and there was a large attendance of friends and business associates. Many beautiful floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held by a large circle of friends. The burial was in the family lot in the Newton Cemetery.

Mr. Clark was 63 years of age, and is survived by a widow, one son, Mr. Harry Jason Clark of Houston, Texas, and one daughter, Mrs. George B. H. Macomber of Newtonville.

READ FUND PICNIC

Over One Thousand Children Enjoy a Day At Norumbega

The annual Read Fund picnic, made possible by the benevolence of the late Charles A. Read, was held Tuesday, and more than a thousand children were taken to Norumbega Park in special trolley cars, given the free use of the Merry-Go-Round for the morning, a substantial lunch at noon, and enjoyed the attractions at the theatre in the afternoon. A squad of police under the efficient supervision of Sergeant Clay assisted Mr. William Macpherson, Alderman Reuben Forknall and J. C. Brimblecom in looking after the children. Two minor accidents happened during the day, one small girl having her face scraped on one of the temporary fences at the Merry-Go-Round and one small boy having a touch of indigestion.

Mr. Charles A. Read, a resident of Newton, who died in 1883 left the sum of $40,000 in trust to the city for the purpose of giving a republican lecture, books for the library, a picnic for the children and donations to poor widows. The fund is administered by three trustees, Messrs. Henry B. Day, Mitchell Wing and Fred H. Tucker. Mr. Read also left a similar sum and for the same purposes to his native city of Salem, Mass.

"INDEPENDENCE DAY"

One hundred and thirty-eight years have passed since the old Liberty Bell in Philadelphia pealed forth the joyous tidings that a new nation was born, and during the many decades which have elapsed, the interest in the celebration of the "Glorious Fourth" has not waned. As the day on which was launched the first experiment on an extensive scale of a republican form of government, July 4, 1776, will ever stand unique in the annals of history, and that its anniversaries should be occasions of jubilation, on which our native pride and enthusiasm finds vent in a manner closely approaching the bombastic and boisterous, is not a matter of surprise.

Indeed, in the light of our present day influence and progress, a little over-exuberance on our part is but natural, and may readily be forgiven. In recent years, however, a saner note has been struck, and the day is now celebrated with somewhat less noise and hubbaloos and more dignified demonstration of genuine patriotism.

While we would not wish to wholly check the effervescence of spirits which is an especial characteristic of American youth, much may be gained by directing such manifestation into a deeper channel of thought and purpose. Symbolism and pageantry are valuable adjuncts, and this year two especially significant centenaries furnish material of especial value and interest.

It is somewhat paradoxical that although the primary cause of our rejoicing was the freeing of the American colonies from the exactions of the mother country, there is today an equally important reason for felicitation in the attainment of a century of peace between the two great English-speaking nations, and the spirit of amity and brotherhood, which now characterize their relations.

Again, the centenary of the writing of the flag which we celebrate in the "Star Spangled Banner" will add to the glory of the flag which we so love and delight to honor and which claims our veneration for its long freedom from dishonor and defeat. Fifty years ago a dark stain was washed from its folds by heroism and sacrifice. What better time can there be than the Fourth of July to put into practice a resolution that henceforth our patriotism shall be so exalted, our individual and collective effort so powerful, that all the evils which strive to hide beneath its stripes and stars shall be eliminated, and ours shall be in the highest and truest sense the land of the free.

CITY HALL

Miss Catherine Walton, clerk in the Forest Commissioner's office for the past six years, has resigned to become secretary to Ex-Commissioner Charles I. Bucknam. Miss Walton was tendered a pleasant surprise Saturday morning by the young women employees at City Hall who presented her with a beautiful bouquet of sweet peas and a gold pendant.

GIFT $10,000

At the meeting of the trustees of the Newton Hospital last Monday announcement was made of a gift by Mrs. Frank A. Day of $10,000 to establish two free beds at the hospital for the worthy poor of Newton. The beds will be known as the "Frank Ashley Day Free Beds," in memory of the late Frank A. Day. The gift will be invested by the trustees, and the beds will be permanent, as it takes about $300 a year to conduct each bed.

Individual and collective effort so powerful, that all the evils which strive to hide beneath its stripes and stars shall be eliminated, and ours shall be in the highest and truest sense the land of the free.

MURDER AT WEST NEWTON

One Sicilian Killed By Another In Quarrel Over a Trivial Matter

As the result of an altercation between Antonio Gimalaro of Waltham and Vincenzo Paladino of Lexington, which took place at a christening in an Italian family on Cottage place, West Newton, last Sunday afternoon Gimalaro was shot and killed and Paladino has been indicted for the crime. It is said that these men, who were Sicilians, became excited over the question as to which could speak the better Italian and Paladino walked out on the piazza and invited Gimalaro, who had said something about not being afraid, to step outside. When he did so the men immediately clinched.

Francesco Cappezi of 29 Exchange street, Waltham, attempted to separate the fighting men. According to his story Paladino drew a revolver and fired one shot, the bullet entering Gimalaro's left breast. The flash from the revolver scorched Gimalaro's clothing, so near was his assailant. Death was probably instantaneous.

Following the shooting Paladino placed the revolver in his pocket and walked slowly along Cottage place, which has a blind end. The sound of the shot attracted about a dozen men and boys who walked after him. It also awakened patrolman Richard T. Clancy, who was in bed at his home at 6 Cannon corner of Cherry street.

Clancy quickly dressed and overtook the group that was giving chase at a safe distance, for Paladino had again produced his revolver and turning several times pointed it at those who were following. Clancy shouted for him to stop and Paladino's reply was a shot, which did no harm. The officer fired twice in return, but missed, and then Paladino ran through vacant land in the direction of Cherry street, which runs to the Waltham boundary.

By this time Police Headquarters had been notified by telephone of the shooting. Sergeant Mullen, who was in charge, summoned the automobile patrol and Inspector O'Halloran took his seat beside the driver, John Roche, while house officer Robert H. Hayden rode in the rear of the machine. They made a quick run to Gorgeona's house and then headed the machine through Pleasant street to intercept Paladino.

Soon the patrol drew abreast of Paladino, who had his hands at his side. His revolver was hidden by his coat. Inspector O'Halloran covered him with his revolver, jumped from the seat, walked up to the Italian and reached out his left hand to grasp him.

Paladino was standing with his left side toward O'Halloran, but wheeling quickly he fired from his hip at the officer's abdomen. Though the muzzle of the weapon was less than a foot from O'Halloran's body, the officer was not hit.

Tony Londo of 70 Border street, West Newton, attempted to aid O'Halloran. Paladino kicked Londo and then the inspector dropped his revolver and resorted to his fists. During the struggle O'Halloran suffered a deep gash on the right side of the face, and both he and Paladino were covered with blood, some of which flowed from the nose of the Italian, which shows the mark of the officer's fist.

O'Halloran handcuffed his prisoner, but during the trip to the station he broke the manacles and a second pair was placed on him. When he was searched, in addition to a revolver a razor was found on him.

The revolver was a long 32-caliber weapon and carried extra long cartridges, a handful of which were found in the prisoner's pocket. The six chambers were full and only two of the shells were empty, so it was assumed Paladino had reloaded after Gimalaro was killed.

He refused to talk and a guard was placed at his cell door. Medical Examiner George L. West was notified and Gimalaro's body removed to the Newton Hospital Morgue. From the time that the police were notified until the automobile reached Headquarters with the prisoner exactly 17 minutes elapsed.

More than a dozen witnesses were examined at Police Headquarters, among them the two daughters of Gorgeona, Gertrude, 25 years old, and Josephine, 16, both of whom told of the quarrel inside the house. With the exception of Cappezi, no one claimed to have seen the shooting of Gimalaro. During the fight on the Gorgeona piazza Cappezi's left palm was badly torn. The injury may have been caused by the firing pin on Paladino's revolver.

According to the police, Paladino had not been drinking and the slain man was unarmed.

CLERKS MEET HERE

The annual meeting of the Middlesex Town and City Clerks Association was held in this city last Friday, the business meeting being held at the City Hall, where these officers were elected, president, Mr. W. DeHaven Jones of Melrose; treasurer, Herbert A. King of Billerica; secretary, Abbott C. Webber of Bedford. About fifty members were present. Following the business meeting a dinner was served at Norumbega Park, at which speeches were made by Mayor Childs, County Commissioner Hon. Levi S. Gould and former City Clerk J. Mitchell Galvin of Boston. The party then enjoyed a launch ride on the river and the many attractions of Norumbega park.

REAL ESTATE

Henry W. Savage, Inc., report that they have sold the estate 52 Berwick road, Newton Centre, belonging to Gertrude L. Dowd, to Musa B. Liggett. The property consists of a frame and cement dwelling with about 10,000 square feet of land. Being new it is not yet assessed. Is valued at about $8500.

FEWKES—HARDWICK

The wedding of Miss Helen Oakley Hardwick, the daughter of the late William H. Hardwick of Allerton road, Newton Highlands, and Mr. Ernest Edwin Fewkes of Hyde street, Boston, took place last Saturday evening at the home of the bride, which was profusely decorated with palms, roses, peonies and mountain laurel.

The ceremony was performed at eight o'clock by Rev. George G. Phipps, the bride being attended by her sister, Miss Florence May Hardwick, as maid of honor. The bride wore white satin trimmed with duchess lace, a family heirloom, a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

A small reception followed, the whole affair being very informal on account of the recent death of the parents of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to the Berkshires Mr. and Mrs. Fewkes will reside at 120 Hyde street, Newton Highlands, where they will be at home after October 10th.

EDITORIAL

It is a little difficult at this time to foresee just what results will follow the action of the aldermen in granting only one permit to bring intoxicating liquors into this city. It goes without saying that no one express can give satisfactory service in this direction to every part of the city, and while the aldermen have complied with the strict letter of the law as determined by the Supreme Court, it has utterly failed to meet the spirit of that law as the Supreme Court interprets it.

It is evident that the foreign element
at Nonantum, Thompsonville, Upper Falls and West Newton will receive their usual quantity of beer and light wine, which are used as other classes of people use tea and coffee. This liquor will be brought to them, as it has been brought during the past few weeks, by the teams sent out direct from the breweries, and as this business cannot lawfully be supervised by the police, the opportunities for illegal sales are vastly more than ever before. In addition the street cars to Boston will be crowded, with men who are their own pony expresmen, and who usually have some of their load inside as well as outside their persons. Of course those good people who have brought about this condition, and who don't use the tro-leas cannot appreciate this situation, or if they did, would care but little for the annoyance given to ladies and children who do have occasion to travel in this manner. It is also of little consequence to our prohibition friends that assaults have increased on women using our streets at night,
that additional police force is needed
on account of drunks coming over the line from Brighton. These conditions did not exist before the refusal to grant permits to bring liquor into the city and must be laid directly at the door of this action.

Personally I will go as far as any one can within reason to reduce the consumption of intoxicating liquors and all its horrible results, but the method now being pursued at the suggestion of people who know absolutely nothing of how "the other half lives" is entirely, and I believe is almost foolishly, wrong.

The objection made by Alderman
Cox to the payment to former street commissioner Charles W. Ross of a sum of money equal to two weeks' salary, in place of a vacation he did not take, is about the smallest I have seen done by City Hall for many a year. Mr. Ross has given the city faithful service for over twenty years.
During that time he has never taken the full two weeks annual vacation allowed every city official, contenting himself with a few days off from work at different times during the year. In tendering his resignation Mr. Ross neglected to reckon in any time for a vacation, and worked right up to the day that resignation took effect. Forest Commissioner Bucknam, who resigned only a few weeks later,
however, stopped actual work two weeks before his resignation took effect, so that he received his usual salary during that period. It is only justice that Mr. Ross, who has worked for the city three times as long as Mr. Bucknam, should be given equal treatment in this respect.

The appeal for money and clothing for the relief of the sufferers from the Salem fire will receive a prompt and generous response from our citizens regardless of the actual figures reported by the official committee. I know as a fact that many of our people have loaded up their automobiles and made a personal trip to Salem with quantities of clothing and shoes and that many of our residents have sent large donations of money to the state committee. While local pride might like to have all these matters credited to Newton, I am sure that so long as the desired result is reached the publicity given our generosity is a minor consideration.

Let every resident of Newton do his or her share in this good work regardless of the channel through which it reaches its object.

The fact that the railroad situation is not absolutely settled by the passage of the so called "string" bill and the familiarity of Representative George H. Ellis of this city with railroad matters, makes Mr. Ellis the logical Republican nominee for senator from this district. Let every one interested in securing the best possible candidate make it a personal matter to urge Mr. Ellis to accept the nomination.

The "Safety First" slogan of the Boston Chamber of Commerce has a peculiar application at this period of the year.

The refusal to appropriate money for improving the heating apparatus at the Claffin schools at the last meeting of the aldermen calls attention to the serious condition which exists in all our older school buildings in the matter of heating and ventilating. This condition is a serious menace to the health of every child attending those schools and it is almost criminal negligence for the aldermen to pass these matters over with the bare statement that they guess the schools can stand it another year. If some of these old boilers should explode while school was in session, possibly the parents of the children whose lives were endangered might not take the complacent view of the situation now entertained by members of the board of aldermen.

My attention has been recently called to an advertisement in a city newspaper of "Our Newton Club" is the best 10 year old whiskey in the world." Possibly the recent agitation on the liquor question is giving us more notoriety than we thought possible.

Do your best towards a safe and sane Fourth of July tomorrow.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME

The closing days of the session are full of business for Representative Ellis, House chairman of the Railroad committee, and in charge of the bill which is hoped to settle the railroad situation in this Commonwealth. Mr.
Ellis had a scare on Tuesday, when the House by a close vote almost substituted a referendum measure for the bill which the Railroad committee and the Governor had agreed should be adopted. The Democrats voted almost solidly for the amendment and Mr. Ellis began to think that he was in wrong on the whole matter.

The bill to transfer the supervision of the telephone companies from the Public Service Commission to the board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners was defeated in the House by a vote of 90 to 108. Representative White voted in favor of the change and Representative Ellis with the majority.
All three of our representatives voted against the bill to reduce the price of gas in East Boston, but were in the minority. Governor Walsh sent a strong veto of this bill yesterday.
Representative White voted against his two colleagues on the corrupt practices bill, but as the opposition only numbered 20 votes, he was in a hopeless minority. All three of our representatives voted to reject bills on taxation matters, one relating to such property which had escaped taxation, and one giving the tax commissioner more power in the assessment of personal property. Both bills were defeated.

The Senate is considering a bill appropriating $15,000 for dredging the Charles River, which the Waltham representative succeeded in passing thru the House last week.

CLAFFIN GUARD NOTES

The Company will go into camp near Lakeville, on Sunday, July 12th with the Second Brigade, performing its annual tour of duty until the following Sunday, the 19th.

Private Thomas F. Hickey has been appointed Cook.

There were four men enlisted into the company in the past week, and five applications for enlistment have been received.

The Officers and two Non-Commissioned officers of the Company attended the Camp of Instruction at West Newbury.

The Salem Fire has again given the opportunity to the Militia of proving their great value to the people of the Commonwealth. Within but a few years the Militia has been called for duty at the Chelsea Fire, Lawrence Strike and Salem Fire.

Sergeant Champlin of the Regular Army was present at the drill Monday evening and demonstrated the new field pack. An interesting feature of the drill every Monday evening is the closing ceremony, the Company standing at parade rest, Retreat is blown
by the Musicians, and the flag lowered, the Company stands at attention and
"To the Color" is blown.

The Surgeon is expected to be present on Monday evening, July 6th, for the final examination of recruits before going to camp.

Artiller Frank Pendergast, who happened to be working in Salem the day of the fire, proved himself a hero
when he saved the life of a heatcrazed man by taking him from a burning building. The value of such a man was quickly realized by the Mayor, who at once swore him in as a special police officer.

KEITH-WARREN

The marriage of Miss Mary Ella
Warren of 15 Oak street, Newton Upper Falls, to Mr. Roy Harmon Keith of 135 Watertown street, Watertown, Mass. was officiated by the Rev. Grover Mills on Tuesday, June 30, 1914.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Warren of Newton Upper Falls and for the past few years has been popular as a teacher in Weston, Mass. She was a graduate of Newton
High School in 1908 and Framingham Normal in 1910. The groom is a son of Mr. Walter H. Keith of Watertown, a graduate of Dartmouth College in 1908, also a member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith left immediately for Hammond, Indiana, where they expect to locate for the present.

ANNUAL OUTING

The fourth annual outing of the Mutual Benefit Association of the Metropolitan Coal Company was held Saturday afternoon at the Woodland Park hotel and was a most pretentious affair.

A large number assembled on the lawns of the hotel to witness the sports, which included a ball game between the Wharves and Main Office;
a Tug of War, 100-yard dash for men, sack race for men, 25 yard dash for ladies, potato race for ladies, potato race for men, 3-legged race for men, obstacle race for men, peanut race for ladies, 50 yard walking race for men, and 50 yard walking race for women.

At 6 o'clock dinner was served in the dining-room at the hotel, at which 110 guests were present.

PRETTY THINGS FOR SUMMER

Home Accessories Are Designed to Give Effect of Daintiness—Much Cluny Lace is Used.

For furnishing the summer home
cretonne table covers and pillows of oblong, round, square and roll shapes are new. Patterns have white or natural grounds, with bright floral designs for the various accessories for the summer home. Other cretonne sets have the flowered fabric combined with a band across each article of heavy flut or cluny insertion, or hand-crocheted insertion. Table scarfs, cushion covers, bags of various shapes and sizes and dresser covers in cretonne with red, pink or delft blue designs, and ivory or natural flut lace are finished with a tidy braid of passementerie having a fringe.

Art rep in natural shades forms an artistic cushion cover edged with a beading and fringe of a deeper shade than the goods. The design consists of graceful scrolls and long sprays of tinted leaves. Beautiful samples of stamped goods in rep and rough and smooth linen have unusual scrolls, large flowers, fruit, etc. French knots, satin and stem stitches are worked with large silks. Dainty samples have rosebuds in stripes on English-looking trellises.

Much cluny lace is used with white linen. Net motifs on linen pieces are new. The work is done through the net, which is based on and the linen cut away, leaving the net parts sheer.

Luncheon sets made of Japanese towel are quaint and effective. Narrow widths of this material are fagoted together with edges hemstitched. They are especially attractive for outdoor or porch use or summer cottage purposes. Sets can also be made from Japanese cotton crepe, which comes by the yard, edged with a narrow gimp in white and dark blue.

SUMMER CURTAINS OF NET

Wide Variety is Offered, and Prices Are Not Beyond Reach of Moderately Filled Purse.

In selecting made curtains in pairs,
it is difficult to keep to the ideal of simplicity for the summer home, for the designs lead by insidious graduations from the plain bobbinet to most elaborate curtains of imported, handmade lace. To begin with, there are the net curtains with tiny edges and a two-inch insertion. The net is finer in thread this year, the lace daintier in design and the heavy cluny is discarded for better thread lace, yet prices vary little from last year. Then there are curtains with plain grounds and woven borders which suggest German influence; while some of the copies of old lace borders, on plain net, are so well done that the beauty of effect wins pardon for the imitation. Another imitation worthy of acceptance is a narrow insertion and edge of venetian point lace, which is made by machine on curtains of plain net.

A hand embroidery which has the appearance of lace is that which decorates a new style of net curtain. It resembles shadow embroidery to some extent, and is done with soft, flat threads of silky cotton. The design is first outlined and then entirely filled in with a sort of darned work. These curtains have a delicacy that suggests expense, yet they are less in price than many which have heavy cluny embellishment. They are finished with a simple hem in order to keep their effect in lightness.

DAINTY ACCESSORIES

The group above shows some dainty furbelows which may be made from the new embroidered chiffon ribbon.
This comes in many different dainty colors and is embroidered in white with a plain chiffon edge. This edge is shirred and wired to form the butterfly wings, the body being made of self-tone silk or satin which has been tucked and padded to the required shape. The little cap is of the embroidered and plain chiffon, with ruffle lace.

Laced Boots Little Worn.
Laced boots just now are a negligible quantity. They are worn only on the tennis court and yacht's deck, with heelless soles of rubber. All boots for general and formal wear have beautifully fitting buttoned tops, and most of them have high heels also.
The gay tailleur of the season does not accord with "sensible" footwear and the boots positively must be dainty, trim and more or less frivolous to give the correct ensemble.

KERCHIEFS ALL IN COLORS

Modest White No Longer in Fashion, Even for Wear With the Afternoon Costume.

New handkerchiefs are a riot of color. White kerchiefs are certainly not on display. The fashionable handkerchiefs to be worn with tailored suits are in solid colors, or the same thing with a quarter-inch hemstitched hem in white. The colors run all the way from a dainty shell pink, palest blue and most delicate lavenders to navy blue, dark brown and crimson.

For afternoon wear the colors are not quite so pronounced. There will be the merest threads of color bordering the white handkerchief or the initial will be worked in a color.

Again, the background of a white embroidered letter will be of a color woven in with the white, but there is sure to be a touch of color somewhere.

While most of the handkerchiefs are finished with a narrow hemstitched hem, even for formal wear, there are others showing the dainty scallop inclosing a bit of marea embroidery, also the initial, all carried out in a pretty color.

It would seem the polka dot never goes out of fashion, for one of the new designs shows in the center of the handkerchief in a solid blue, while the wide border is dotted with white.
Stripes, cubes and odd colorings may be found by those seeking after the freakish.

Borderings in plaids are new and are not at all as loud as one might think.

The white centers with wide border of the plaid finished with a very narrow hem of lawn in the predominating color of the plaid are very smart indeed.

Those with solid, dark color centers are nice, too, but they suggest the handkerchief less than do those with the white centers.

FOR HOUSE OR STREET WEAR

One-Piece Styles, in All the Popular Materials and Colors, Are Making Their Appearance.

With the advent of warm weather and the no-jacket season come prophesies of gowns of a one-piece style distinction, which are verified
daily by crepes and foulards.

These between-season costumes, made of aptly woven, beautifully colored, exquisitely designed silks and crepes, are the most fascinating dresses of one's wardrobe, except those which are set apart for dance wear. For street wear, the most modish fancies express themselves in dark-toned silks; either black, blue or brown, taffetas of charmeuse crepes, embroidered by trimmings of brilliantly colored Roman stripes or else indistinct but colorful plaided silks, which repeat the color note of the plain materials in their composition very happily.

One interesting model is made of black taffeta souple, rather bouffant, and, combined with a corsage and short yoke of black, green and copper-hued plaid, girdled with a black felt which is tied at the back of the wide looped bow, indicative of the fashion of the moment for these things.

The widely-fulled, three-quarter sleeve is edged, as is the neck piece with white organdy, while a strip of the plaid is coquettishly used to edge
the hem of the rather short skirt.

Slippers of black satin, buckled with green stones, provide another modish touch worn with black silk hosiery.

CHARMING ROBE

Robe of old blue souple satin formed or made with a long cape.

Chiffon Blouses.

One of the interesting developments of the styles is the blouse of chiffon or crepe de chine which shows a little tucked vest of organdy or linen, with a folding or flaring organdy or liner collar. The use of handkerchief liner with chiffon strikes one as a little heavy at first, but the combination is really attractive.

Work For High School Boys!

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston has positions during the summer vacation for the right kind of High-School boys, who have finished their junior year, and perhaps permanent positions another year.

The Company is starting a course in salesmanship. Boys who prove their merits will be given opportunities to take this study along with their work, and, if they pass nominal tests, may,
at the end of their senior year,
take permanent positions with the Company.

Only boys residing in and well acquainted in the towns where places of application are named below will be accepted. The towns, places of appointment,
day, and hour are as follows:

EARLY DAYS OF JOURNALISM

First English Editor Had Very Decided Opinions as to the Freedom of the Press.

The first Englishman of letters of any distinction to take up journalism as a profession was Sir Roger L'Estrange, who died 209 years ago. He was an indefatigable pamphleteer on the royalist and court side during the epoch of the restoration. In 1662 L'Estrange was made "surveyor of the press," the censor of all books and pamphlets, and the editor of a monopolistic newspaper, "The Intelligencer." L'Estrange printed only such news as suited the government, and labored vainly to suppress his illegal and unlicensed competitors, who surreptitiously printed and circulated "news letters" containing real news. In the first number of the Intelligencer L'Estrange objected to the publication of anything but the most carefully edited news on the ground that "it makes the multitude too familiar with the actions and counsels of their superiors, too pragmatical and censorious, and gives them not only a wish but a kind of colorable right and license to the meddling with the government." But L'Estrange failed miserably in his attempts to stamp out the ideal of a free press, and later, when he was deprived of his monopoly, he himself turned to the publication of an unofficial "catch-penny" sheet called the Observer.

GOOD IN MENTAL FIRE DRILL

Really Excellent Suggestion Made by Woman Who Learned Its Value
Through Experience.

They had been relating their most thrilling experience.

"My last experience taught me a lesson I find few people have learned. I call it my mental fire drill," said the motherly one. "You know how we all unconsciously put something down while we are thinking of something else. Well, when our home was on fire it took me so long trying to think what I would want to save first and where the articles were that my escape was cut off. Though I feel everlastingly grateful to the firemen for rescuing me, it is not a very comfortable experience. So I determined for ever after to make a practice every time I put anything of value aside to impress myself where I put it, and I also had a place upstairs and down where I kept the articles I cherished that were too large for our safe and the tin boxes. Once in a while I spend a few moments thinking hard about what I would want to save first. The articles are so impressed on my mind that I shall never forget them I am sure in any stress or excitement."

"I really feel quite proud of my mental fire drill, for it gives me a feeling of self-reliance that I never experienced before."

Family of Poets.

No other family has, within two generations, produced so many poets as the Tennysons. All the laureate's brothers wrote poems and both his sons published verses in Macmillan's Magazine, though they did so anonymously. "It is a curious fact," wrote Alexander Japp in 1902, "that the Tennyson family, every male member of which wrote verse, and successfully, should have so far abstained from publishing openly or publishing at all, as if they disliked the idea of coming into competition with the great poet. Specimens of the work of Lionel and Hallam Tennyson will be found in 'Poets and Poetry of the Century,' and I may add that these pieces were sent to me by the old poet himself in a letter now before me, with such words as most certainly show that he did not share the feeling of Scott—thank God that his sons showed no poetic symptoms."

Estimating Loss by Smoke.

England is making an organized attempt to measure, by means of instruments standardized by the smoke abatement committee, the extent of the soot and dust existing in the atmosphere of several large towns. The instrument to be used follows the principle of the rain gauge, a given area being exposed to catch all solid matter that either falls by gravity or is borne down by rain. This is collected in a glass receiver placed beneath a duct leading from the collecting surface. The receiver will be removed once a month and replaced by a fresh one.

Full Explanation.

The Germans have a way of making compound nouns and sentences with the verb two or three pages further on, which to the student of Teutonic languages is somewhat perplexing. The six-year-old daughter of a friend of mine, however, can go the Germans one better. While walking with her mother the other day, she bowed to a young woman.

"Who is that?" asked her mother.

"Why, don't you know?" explained the small daughter. "She is the little-irl-with-red-hair-who-sits-next-to-me-at-school's-mamma."—Exchange.

For Left-Handed Persons.

Enterprising manufacturers make various articles for the special benefit of left-handed people. Besides scissors adjusted for their use, you can buy left-handed screws, gimlets and other tools. And, most thoughtful of all contrivances to minister to their physical peculiarity, corkscrews twisted the wrong way, as a right-handed person would think, for left-handed butlers and waiters.—London Chronicle.

WICKER'S MANY USES

ARTICLES OF FURNITURE GIVE DISTINCTION TO ROOM.

By No Means Costly, and Any One
With Taste Will Be Able to Select Just What Is Required for the Apartment.

While rooms are delightfully attractive furnished throughout in wicker, it still remains true that one or two pieces of wicker furniture add distinction to almost any room. Sometimes this piece or two has been added for effect; sometimes for comfort. Perhaps some of the older wooden furniture has given out, and some wicker has been added at a lower cost than it would have been possible to duplicate the older pieces for; or, again, perhaps it has been impossible to match in color or kind the worn-out furniture. So it can be seen that wicker will solve many problems, writes Ethel Seal Davis in the Philadelphia North American.

Among the different colors offered for choice, we find the natural willow—unstained. And, instead of this seeming raw and crude, in some rooms it gives a very unusual note, especially an hour-glass armchair at six or eight dollars. Another good color is mocha brown, and there are two particularly attractive greens—forest and sea green.

A wicker sofa costs about thirty-five dollars, the covering of the upholstered seat cushion being extra. But a five-foot box davenport in willow has been seen for $23. The wicker flower stand is about four dollars and a half, and the footstool, three dollars.

Imagine a living room in a little summer cottage furnished in this wise: Cream walls and white woodwork, a sage-green wicker summer rug, sea-green wicker furniture, including table, desk and desk chair, davenport, window bench, bookshelves, two straight-wall chairs and two armchairs—one a wing and the other with a side pocket for magazines. For the notes of color in this room we will depend on the window hangings, which are dull-rose upholstery's silk; the pictures, which should all be framed in black, and the flowers, which should be used in profusion.

One of the prettiest sets is a window bench—a most attractive piece of furniture, and a nifty little book trough. What will we not adapt! Time was when troughs were used only for holding water or feed for animals; and here we have them in our best Sunday-go-to-meeting rooms, with books in 'em! In almost any shop the seat might be priced at $15 and the book trough at eight dollars in a 1x3-foot size.

NOVEL FANCIES IN FOOTWEAR

Shoes, With Their Trimmings, Have Become a Most Important Part of the Costume.

The fan-shaped plait and the rosette are the prominent trimmings of the house and evening shoe now, and the place to wear them is at one side of the shoe instead of in the center. There must also be a handsome ornament or buckle made of chased metal with a huge colored cabochon stone in the middle.

Brocade, gold and silver tissue, and ribbon are used for the plaits, and furnish a change from the tulle or velvet background employed lately for the toe.

The value of the buckles makes the remark "without ornaments" necessary when the price of the footwear is stated. They are copies in many cases of old designs and some are so cleverly contrived that they look really antique.

Furniture brocade has been found so comfortable for house footwear that it is in high favor and the short, rounded toe is popular, the rosettes and ornaments making up for the paucity of covering on the instep.

Tight Basque and Full Skirt.

Does the description of a taffeta dress, buttoning straight down the front, six inches below the belt, with darts over the bust and seams at the side and back, remind you of the dresses of long ago? Quaint and charming are these dresses, especially as they are not snug fitting and worn as they are over the new corsetless figure with the wired organdy collars. The tunics are invariably long; occasionally are they of the apron variety and usually worn over the tight, narrow skirt, which closely resembles pantalettes.

DEADLY SNAKES IN AUSTRALIA

Many Species Are There, Yet Fatalities From That Source Are by No Means Common.

"Snakes hereabouts?" I chanced to inquire.

"Thousands," said the sawyer. "Deadly?" "They tell me, and I believe it," he replied, weighing his words, "that the death-adder and tiger-snake kill in half an hour. I'm told," he drawled on, in harmony with the droning weather, "that a dog won't last no more than twenty minutes. The death-adder, now, he's a slow, stupid beast, and won't move along. The tiger-snake comes at you; but the death-adder, he's a slow, stupid beast—lies still and bites when you tread on him. There's the black snake, too, and the brown snake—they're deadly; and a few others, like the tree snake, and maybe some more. I reckon the carpet-snake is the only snake we got in this country that can't do too much damage."

"Mortality high?"

"What say? Oh! Well, I'll tell you, if you go hunting for snakes you're likely to be kept real busy; but if you mind your own business, and give the snakes a chance to mind their own business, and if you look out for them slow, stupid death-adders, you're likely to be let off. I heard tell of a kiddie being bit once. He put his hand in a rabbit-hole."

"Did the child die?"

"Ah, well, no; he took an antidote."

It had been a mild abrasion; for these snakes—the black snake and tiger snake and death-adder in particular—are more virulently poisonous than the rattlesnake or cobra.

Yet death from snake-bite is by no means common in Australia.—Norman Duncan in Harper's.

HIS CARD OF IDENTIFICATION

Small Boy Unfortunately Presented It
at Time When Young Lady Least Appreciated It.

She was entertaining her first beau in the parlor, and the occasion was a kind of breathless one, for she was fair and modest and flower-like and unaccustomed. She wore the roses he had brought her, and he kept his kid gloves on, for the call was formal. There was a ring at the doorbell. The caller was a small boy. Was her little brother at home?

No. Little brother was not at home. She was not always so very polite about little brother, but this time she could not help it.

She was so sorry little brother was not at home. Who should she tell him had called to see him?

Unfortunate question!

"Well," said the small boy in tones that had nothing to conceal, and by way of identifying himself, "you may just tell him the guinea pig's got little ones—and then he'll know who it is that's called."

Rattlesnake's Age.

The general belief that the number of its rattles is a true guide to the age of a rattlesnake has small foundation in fact. According to Mr. Elwin R. Sanborn of the New York Zoological park, a very large snake may have few rattles, and a small snake twice as many as the big one. A rattlesnake frequently loses rattles through violent contact with rocks or bushes—a loss that nature replaces at the rate of about three segments a year. The baby rattlesnake has a tiny button where his rattles will ultimately be. Thus, according to the usual theory, at the end of the first year he will appear to be three years old, or perhaps three years and a half, if the button is considered as the beginning of a new rattle. Probably the number of the rattles increases for a certain number of years, remains stationary for another period, and then decreases as the snake grows old. That is the course of growth and decay in the horns and antlers of hooved animals.

—Youth's Companion.

Canine Newsdealers.

Two Chicago dogs—an Irish terrier and a water spaniel—the property of a successful newsdealer of that city, are proving themselves very useful to their master. If the latter goes to lunch, or has to leave his stand for a time, the two watchful animals sell newspapers for him. "Rex," the Irish terrier, perches himself on the stand and grips between his teeth a big calabash pipe and a copy of a newspaper, while "Brownie," his partner, takes up his position on a little soapbox beside the stand and holds in his teeth a little "plug" hat for the safekeeping of the pennies. When a passerby buys a paper "Brownie" sits up to receive the coin. Both of the dogs seem to have a fierce as well as a sharp eye to business, and their master places great faith in them.—Wide World Magazine.

Substitute for Menu Card.

Roman emperors who feasted copiously and sumptuously had no menu card, so they often spoiled their enjoyment of a banquet by eating too much of one dish and passing over something they specially liked. According to Montaigne, one of the Roman emperors, while ignorant of menu cards, devised an order for serving dishes which enabled him roughly to foretell what was coming next: "Geta the emperor would have all his messes or dishes served in at his table orderly, according to the first letters of their names; as for example, those that begin with p, as pig, pike, puddings, pouts, porke, pancakes, etc., were all served together, and so of all the rest."

DUTY OF THE NEWSPAPER

Standards of Practice Unanimously Adopted by Newspaper Section at Gathering of Ad. Clubs at Toronto

The newspaper section of the convention of Advertising Clubs of America gathered at Toronto unanimously declared that it was the newspaper's duty—

First—To protect the honest advertiser and the general newspaper reader as far as possible from deceptive or offensive advertising.

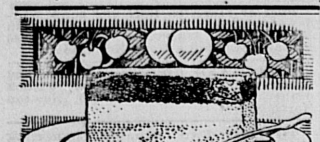

Second—To sell advertising as a commodity on the basis of proved circulation and the service the paper will render the manufacturer of the merchant and to provide the fullest information as to the character of such circulation and how procured.

Third—To maintain uniform rates, according to classification, and to present those rates as far as possible in a uniform card.

Fourth—To accept no advertising which is antagonistic to the public welfare.

Fifth—To effect the largest possible co-operation with other newspapers in the same field for the establishment and maintenance of those standards.

Becoming Modes-y of Mr. Rott. Little Dadd Rott—"Pa, I heard a man say that you could pick your own pocket and never catch yourself at it. That's not so, is it, pa?" The Hon. Thomas Rott—"Well—er—h'm—Doddie, I never like to brag of my own ability."—Kansas City Star.

HOBBY WORKS A HARDSHIP

Massachusetts Patronage Enables His Bookbinder to Retire to Country Home.

In the recently published recollections of Massanet a story is told, says the Hamburger Nachrichten, illustrating the composer's passionate admiration for beautiful bindings. Not a week passed without a visit from him to his bookbinder, when he brought a new book or a new edition to be bound. In the course of time he and his bookbinder became the best of friends, and when Massanet arrived the talk was at first of everything on earth except the real object of his visit.

"Look here!" Massanet would say eventually, giving the man the volume to be bound.

"Splendid!" replied the bookbinder, and then for his customer and friend he would devise some fresh wonder in the art of binding.

One morning Massanet suddenly learned that his friend was giving up business. He hurried to his shop.

"What! Is it true you are leaving Paris?" he asked.

"Why, certainly; I have bought a charming little country house near Nantes."

"What! A country house! And in the provinces!" And he added sadly: "Ah! my poor friend, I am partly responsible for that."

BAR ALL PRIVATE PROPERTY

French Village Seems to Have Arrived at Something That Seems Like the Millenium.

A German writer, Dr. A. Grotjahn, interested in the increasing shortage in births in France, has found a prolific community at the village of Marde, near Dunkirk. This is a colony founded more than 200 years ago by Louis XIV. with a system of land tenure which does not permit private ownership of the soil.

Dr. Grotjahn says: "The men of Marde marry, on an average, at twenty-four years of age, immediately after having passed the obligatory service in the navy. When a new family has thus been founded it receives for exclusive use, but not as private property, a plot of land of 22 acres and a section of shore for net fishing. . . . The families may leave to their children the land handed to them in usufruct, but they may not divide or mortgage it. The result is that Marde possesses a prosperous population, free of material cares, which does not rack its brain on behalf of its children's fate, while the rest of the peasants and fishermen of France are particularly anxious in this respect. The births amounted to 43 per 1,000 of the inhabitants, a figure which is not surpassed by any civilized people."

Reclaiming Zuyder Zee.

Queen Wilhelmina in her speech from the throne on the opening of the Dutch parliament said that a measure would be introduced for the reclamation of the Zuyder Zee. The Zuyder Zee was originally a lake, and the scheme is to make it so again by constructing a great dyke across the entrance of the Zuyder Zee and then build three other dykes around the coast of the Zee, one running nearly directly north and south and one closing the western part of the Zee; another from near the southern end of the first to a point well up on the eastern shore, while a third one will stretch northwest in the direction of the dyke built across the entrance. This scheme will not touch the center of the Zee, which will thus return to its former condition of a lake.

If the Dutch chambers sanction it the work will be carried on by means of a public loan in the Netherlands.

Close Buyer.

A New York theatrical man was appointed receiver for a small opera house in an upstate town in New York. He was anxious to sell it and so was willing to take the first offer made.

He advertised the place, and after waiting a week he was delighted when an inquirer came in.

"Say, mister," the prospect asked, "how much do you want for the theater?"

"My friend," the receiver replied, "I am extremely anxious to make a sale, and I'll let you have it for your own price."

"Please, mister," said the inquirer, "can't you do a little better than that?"

Electric Collier at Sea.

Jupiter, the navy's big electric collier, made a 48-hour sea trip early in the week to shake down her propelling machinery and then returned to the Mare Island navy yard.

The electric devices worked perfectly, according to a report to the navy department, but some trouble was experienced with foaming boilers and in keeping up the steam pressure at the turbine engine.

The electric devices speeded the propeller up to 108 revolutions a minute, only two short of the number estimated as necessary to attain the 14 knots for which she was designed. After some slight changes another trial will be held.

Electricity in Blasting.

Electric blasting is being employed in certain mines in South Africa. The whole of the one level at a leading mine was fired the other day by the new system. There were 300 shots in the blast, which was effected from a station, only one man being required below for the firing. Cables are now placed to enable blasting to be effected from the surface. The system so far has proved satisfactory.

DOCTORS' ODD DEATH REPORT

Many Physicians' Certificates Disclose Aberrations of Sense in Giving Cause of Death.

The chief statistician of Wisconsin, in examining death certificates filed by physicians with the state board of health, has discovered and disclosed some of more than local interest. They reveal aberrations of sense and science in the diagnosis of disease and the causes of death as to merit consideration from reformers who wish to put nearly every act of human life under medical supervision.

A few instances must serve to illustrate the nature of a multitude. One report is this: "Went to bed feeling well, but woke up dead." Another says: "Do not know the cause of death, but patient fully recovered from last illness." A third reported: "Last illness caused by chronic rheumatism, but was cured before death." Still another: "Deceased never had been fatally sick." And this: "Died suddenly; nothing serious."

Some reports are mere absurdities, such as: "Kicked by a horse shod on the left kidney." "Died suddenly at the age of one hundred and three." To this time he had fair to reach a ripe old age." "Deceased died from blood poison caused by a broken ankle which is remarkable as the automobile struck him between the lamp and the radiator." A mother is reported to have "died in infancy."

The significance of these reports lies in the fact that they emanate from the members of a learned profession dealing with the practice of that profession. They serve to caution those who are eager to clothe these local doctors with authority to say who shall marry and who shall not.

GET TRUE SCIENTIFIC VALUE

Actual Worth of Medical Practice Is to Be Taught by Views in the Cinematograph.

One of the recent and most important uses for which the cinematograph has been put is that of teaching anatomy and physiology in medical colleges. The most ingenious films ever taken were prepared for this purpose by the great French psychologists, M. Bull, M. Comandon and M. Nogués, and shown by Professor W. Stirling at the Royal Institution. They were microphotographs, showing the actual growth of the heart muscle fibres isolated from the embryonic chick and made to propagate on culture media for 50 days. All the processes of nuclear and cell division were clearly demonstrated in other films, and the actual immigration of the leucocytes from a portion of the spleen was also made visible. These films were taken for days or weeks in succession, the rate to correspond with that of the growth being very slow, but when thrown on the screen very rapidly they showed in a few minutes processes that really occupied weeks.

Eight Million Books a Year.

The New York Public Library reported early in 1913 that practically 8,000,000 books circulated for home use during 1912. In every case this was a worth-while book. Clean fiction, old and new, biography, science, philosophy, travel, history—all forms of books were included. Books for the blind, with raised type for eager, seeing fingers. Books in 26 languages, circulating almost 500,000 copies. Books carried to hospitals and asylums. "The lame, the halt, the blind and the stranger within our gates were just as much benefited as the American who could walk up independently to the shelves and select George Eliot's 'Middlemarch,' in English, for himself."—Sarah Comstock in "World's Work."

London's Water Storage.

Those Londoners who are nervous about their water supply may be relieved to know that the Metropolitan water board has under its control subsidence and storage reservoirs of a capacity of some 15,000,000 gallons.

The normal consumption of the 7,000,000 persons in the board's area of supply is rather more than 200,000,000 gallons a day, so that, were all the reservoirs full, the usual daily allowance could be provided from them alone for nearly 11 weeks. As a rule, at any time the board has in storage sufficient water for a full 40 days' supply, which would permit every man, woman and child during that period to be supplied daily with over 30 gallons of water.—Tit-Bits.

World's Largest Motor Ship.

The "Slam," the largest ship propelled by internal-combustion motors in the world, was completed recently at Copenhagen, Denmark. This vessel has a displacement of 12,500 tons and a carrying capacity of 10,000 tons dead weight, including fuel oil, and is 427 feet long overall, has a beam of 55 feet, and draft of 26 feet 5 inches. Each of the eight engines is capable of developing 1,500 horse-power at 125 revolutions per minute, and with this power should have a speed of 43½ miles an hour.

In England.

When the man had insured himself against fire and death and shipwreck, and earthquakes and malignant fever, not to mention minor ills and accidents, he thought there wasn't much left to insure against, but the agent had still another card up his sleeve.

"There are earthquakes," he said. "Wouldn't you like to insure yourself against damages from them?"

"Good Heavens, I forgot about them!" groaned the man, and bought another policy.

OLD CONTRACTORS TO QUIT

English Company That Dammed the Nile to Retire From Business Next Year.

The passing away of one of the greatest contracting firms in the world, John Aird & Co., is announced for next year. The firm, which dammed the Nile and carried out other great works throughout the world, will cease to exist next September, by which time all outstanding contracts will have been completed.

The decision to go out of business has been taken by the present Sir John Aird, who succeeded his father in 1911, and inherited from him a fortune of over $5,000,000. The reason given is that, while the risks of contracting are as great as they ever were, the profits are not nearly so large as they were some twenty or thirty years ago. Great plants will be distributed and a staff of engineers and workmen, who are said to have no superiors, will be seeking new positions as a result of the action.

John Aird & Co. was started in 1848 by John Aird, a Scottish mason, who came to London from Ross-shire, and after following his trade for several years, was appointed superintendent of the Phoenix Gas company at Greenwich. There he learned the business that gave him his start, and the first big undertaking of his firm was the laying of water and gas mains for London.

VANDERBILT HAS WISE GROOM

Possesses Sure Way of Telling Those Whose Riches Are Newly Acquired.

Newport, as all the world knows, is getting more and more overrun with the nouveaux riches. The nouveaux riches are buying up the finest estates, and the old and exclusive Newport families are retiring to more isolated resorts.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, at one of his dinners at his luxurious Newport farm, said of a nouveau riche who was assuming an extraordinary disdain for all things common and plebeian:

"This chap's way of turning up his nose reminds me of a groom of mine who used to say:

"Keep your eye on what a man turns up his nose at, and you'll know what he's been raised on."

Novel Church.

Without sectarian ideas or denominational teaching, a gospel meeting is held all the summer months in the unique Boardwalk church at Atlantic City. This year—the fifth of the church's existence—services are being conducted each Lord's day morning in the Bijou theater—a room used usually for moving pictures. The Rev. Robert Elwood is the founder and pastor. It is a church without a choir, officer or single member and without a collection plate. The business men of Atlantic City, as well as the visitors, think it worth while, and maintain this gospel lighthouse by the sea. Ninety per cent. of the audience is new each Sunday. Persons gladly turn in from the boardwalk at the call for worship. The audience is reverent, though cosmopolitan. One Sunday morning when a test was made every civilized country was represented in the large congregation, as well as most of the states of the Union.—Christian Herald.

Bobbie Burns' Granddaughter.

An action has been entered in Dumfries sheriff court by Miss Annie Beckett Burns of Cheltenham, the only surviving granddaughter of the Scottish poet, claiming "to have herself, as the nearest of kin, declared executrix of certain hitherto unconfirmed personal estate of the said Robert Burns." This is a sequel to the recent announcement that the Liverpool Athenaeum had sold for £5,000 the two volumes of Burns' poems and better known as the Glenriddell manuscripts, and that they were likely to go to America, an announcement which brought strong protests from Lord Roseberry, Dr. William Wallace and others.—Westminster Gazette.

Small Reasons for Big Strikes.

The "button strike," as the recent omnibus trouble in London has come to be called, may seem to have had a trivial origin, but many great industrial disputes have sprung from causes quite as small. A few years ago a thousand men struck work at Sunderland because they objected to a policeman in one of the yards, and wanted his removal. Tailors have gone on strike because of the edict forbidding the taking of snuff during working hours. In one Yorkshire town all the mill girls refused to work because their employer had painted the window of the workroom facing the street, thus shutting out the view.

British Metaphor.

Pegoud, the French aviator, who loops the loop upside down, has inspired the sport writers of Great Britain to attacks upon metaphor unknown before in that solemn land. William Shakespeare speaking through Hotspur says: "I tell you, my lord, I am out of this nettle danger, we pluck this flower safety," but they speak of the air-man in his lofty tumbling as "plucking the whisks of catastrophe," which is several sizes beyond Master William.

As Advertised.

One of the astonishing things about the hats and gowns of the present is that they are really as funny as the pictures represent them.—Washington Star.

Carbonized engines backfire frequently—often setting the carburetor afire besides injuring the one that is cranking.

Has your car run 1000 or more miles since the carbon was removed and valves "ground in"?

If it hasn't, it is high time you had us regrind valves and remove carbon—it will mean a more powerful and silent engine besides a safer one. Moderate charges.

INDUSTRY and MECHANICS

PRESERVING WOOD IN SUGAR

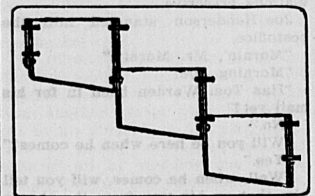

New Method Discovered by English Scientist Has Been Tested With Satisfactory Results.

Preserving wood in sugar, actually candying it as fruit and flowers are candied, is the newest process of treating timber, just taken from the forest, to prevent dry rot and to bring about rapid seasoning. The new method was discovered by an English scientist and has since been tested with highly satisfactory results. Woods of all kinds and of all degrees of density have been subjected to test, and the sugar process has been found not only efficient but less expensive than many older methods for the same purpose. The wood is placed in tanks filled with a solution of sugar or saccharine products, the character of the solution differing for the various woods. The tanks are heated and the wood is allowed to remain for a stated length of time, which also varies with the kind and size of timber treated. The whole process, including the drying, takes but a few days and the cost, as stated, is very low.

MOLD FOR CONCRETE STEPS

May Be Adjusted to Different Heights for Holding Building Material—Work Done Quickly.

Now that concrete plays such an important part in building operations, new molds for its use are being invented from time to time. One of the newest is the step mold, designed by a Missouri man and shown in the illustration.

Mold for Steps.

A series of end pieces are connected by a vertical flange which have detachable clamps on them. In this way it is an easy matter to adjust the mold for steps of any height desired. Longitudinal face pieces are connected with the end pieces and the whole structure forms a box for the reception of concrete. It takes but a few minutes to fill this box and when the concrete has solidified, the mold may be taken apart and removed. For the making of short flights of steps, as for front doors or porches, this device is especially useful.

PRODUCE ACID-PROOF GLASS

Consul General Mansfield of Zurich Reports Important Achievement in Chemical Industry.

An important achievement just reported by Consul General R. E. Mansfield of Zurich, Switzerland, is the discovery of a method of producing suitable apparatus for the chemical industry from quartz, containing 95 per cent silicic, which is melted in an electric furnace in which the temperature rises to 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. It is now possible to melt into a mold into almost any desired form as much as fifty pounds of quartz. Even boiling acid, with the possible exception of hydrofluoric or phosphoric, will not corrode it.

NOTES OF INDUSTRY and MECHANICS

Naillless boxes held together by wires, have been patented by a Florida man for shipping fruit.

Of all the copper produced in the world at the present time the United States furnishes 54.8 per cent.

An aluminum covered cloth which reflects light without heating has been invented for automobile tops.

Oil instead of coal ranges will be used on the newest United States battleships because of its greater cleanliness in cooking.

Newfoundland is now regarded as one of the most promising future sources of supply of petroleum within the British empire.

At the bottom of a recently patented ladder is an adjustable curved brace, so that it may stand firmly on an uneven surface.

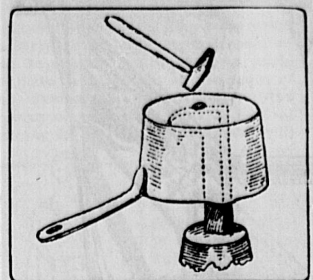

A glass of water placed in the bottom of a piano will help to prevent the wood warping and to keep the instrument in tune.

For cutting metals under water a German has invented an oxyhydrogen torch to which the gases are applied at high pressure.

MENDING HOLES IN UTENSILS

Permanent Repair May Be Made by Use of a Shot or Piece of Lead—Hammer Will Flatten It.

It is easy to repair holes in pots and pans without the aid of a tinsmith. Make the hole round by inserting the point of a knife and twisting it. Place the pot or pan upon any firm, flat piece of metal, such as an anvil, a bar of iron or an inverted latron, so that the hole is immediately over and touching the iron. In the middle of the hole place a shot about the size of the hole. Any piece of lead will serve if shot is not handy. A few sharp blows with a hammer will flatten the lead and spread it out, filling the hole tightly and overlapping enough to hold it in place. A few strokes with a file and a rub with sandpaper completes the operation. The repair is permanent.

MAKES VARNISH DRY QUICKLY

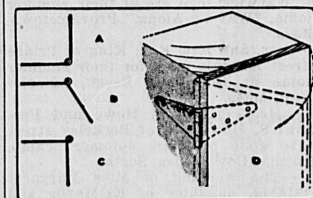

Product From Wood Oil Tree of China Said to Have Had Revolutionary Effect on Industry.

Five million gallons of wood oil (also known as tung oil), made from the seeds of the wood oil tree, was imported from China last year, and the product is said to have had a revolutionary effect on the varnish industry of the United States. It has largely taken the place of kauri gum and has made possible the manufacture of a quicker drying varnish, which is less liable to crack than that made from kauri gum, and has been found of special value in waterproof priming for cement. The tree is climatically adapted for cultivation in the southern states, and the department of agriculture is distributing one-year-old specimens to bona fide experimenters.

ARRANGING A STRAP HINGE

Jointed Piece of Metal May Be Applied So That Only One Wing Will Be in Sight.

An ordinary strap hinge can be applied to a door or box cover in such a way that only one wing will show, says Popular Mechanics. Ordinarily the hinge opens as at A, and on reversing it, the hinge will open to the limit as shown at B. If one wing is bent toward the other, as shown at C, the hinge may be applied as shown at D. As this process reverses the hinge, the screw holes must be countersunk on the opposite side.

Applying Strap Hinge.

Air Compressor.
A single stage air compressor which produces a pressure of 2,000 pounds to the square inch, which engineers have declared impossible, has been perfected by a New Jersey inventor.

Hardening Steel.
A process of hardening steel with compressed air is said to be in successful operation by a German firm in cases where only certain parts of the metal require hardening.

Paper Made of Waste.
Sawmill waste of Douglas fir, of which an enormous quantity is found in the Western forests, is being used to make paper pulp by a mill at Marshfield, Ore.

Soap Made From Nuts.
Government chemists in the Philippines are investigating the soapmaking possibilities of a new species of oil-bearing nut that has been discovered.

Boys Prove Their Worth.
Just to prove that their manual training is of the practical sort, the boys in the Nesquehoming (Pa.) public schools have erected a domestic science building.

Gas in Louisiana.
According to the geological survey, there is good reason to believe that Louisiana is underlaid by one of the greatest natural gas fields in the United States.

Silver From Sheffield.
The English city of Sheffield has 60 firms of importance engaged in the manufacture of solid silver and plated ware and scores of smaller establishments.

GLYNN-STUART

The wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Stuart, daughter of Mrs. Jane E. Stuart of 12 Green street, Newton, to Bennett James Glynn of Watertown, took place Monday evening at the parochial residence of the Church of Our Lady. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. A. S. Malone.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Josephine Stuart, as maid of honor, and the bridegroom's attendant was Robert E. Cuniff of Watertown.

POLICE NOTES

Braggio Fronio, aged 22, of 460 Watertown street, is at the Newton Hospital with a gash in his neck which required several stitches, as the result of a dispute Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Flomena Piscosolido, aged 20, of 190 Adams street. The assault took place in the Italian district on Adams street.

The woman pulled out a long knife and slashed Fronio after a short quarrel.

THE MODEL K LINOTYPE

The Last Word in Composing Machines

Readers of the GRAPHIC will probably be interested to know that the Graphic Press, the firm that has printed the Newton Graphic for over two years has added another linotype machine to its plant. This machine will enable the Press to double its former output of composition and, so far as the GRAPHIC is concerned, will be of great service in producing the latest news matter about press time.

The Graphic Press is the firm name for a partnership consisting of George W. Johnson and Thomas J. Kavanaugh, who purchased the former printing plant of the Newton Graphic over two years and a half ago.

The Press has had a constantly growing business during this period due to the excellent workmanship of their printed matter and the careful personal supervision given every order by the members of the firm. The NEWTON GRAPHIC has a reputation of being the best printed local newspaper in Metropolitan Boston, and has been a constant testimonial to its printers.

With the addition of this linotype machine, the Graphic Press has a splendid equipment for doing all kinds of printed matter.

The Press is in a position to handle any order, large or small.

How the Times Change.
A magazine complains that there are no little girls any more. And you may have observed that middle-aged women are scarcer than they used to be.—Atchison Globe.

COLONY HAD ITS DARK DAYS

Prosperous Sierra Leone Gave Little Promise of Being a Success When It Was Started.

The first settlement in Sierra Leone, the prosperous British colony on the west coast of Africa, was made in 1786. At that period London swarmed with free negroes living in poverty and on the verge of starvation, and Dr. Smeathman's scheme for sending them to Africa to found a colony was accepted as the best solution of the difficulty. The first shipload of colonists consisted of 400 negroes and sixty whites, the latter principally women of bad character. Although land for the colony had been purchased from the native king, the Africans were not friendly, and a hostile attack, together with the shiftlessness of the colonists, almost brought the venture to ruin. In 1791 the survivors were removed to a new settlement, and in 1793 the population of the colony was increased by the introduction of 1,200 negroes from Nova Scotia and the Bahamas. In 1794 the settlement was again transferred to Freetown, now the capital of the colony and the greatest seaport on the west coast of Africa. In the early days the government of the idle blacks was no sinecure, and Sydney Smith remarked, not without truth, that Sierra Leone always had two governors—one just arriving and the other just leaving. The soil of Sierra Leone is exceedingly fertile, but few white men are able to live there.

SOME "DUTIES" ON THE SIDE

Village Postmaster Had Other Affairs to Attend To Besides Those of His Uncle Sam.

A conversation, printed in the Buffalo News, seems to indicate that in some communities the most burdensome duties of the postmaster are not always those that the government regulations prescribe.

Joe Henderson stamped into the postoffice.

"Mornin', Mr. Morely."
"Mornin', Joe!"
"Has Tom Warden been in for his mail yet?"

"No."
"Will you be here when he comes?"
"Yes."

"Well, when he comes, will you tell him that on his way from the cheese factory I wish he'd stop and get that shot of Herman Langer's and take it down to Fred Wilkins, and tell Fred I said he could have it for that single harness even up, if he'll fix up that bridle and throw in them russet lines 'stead of the old black ones; and if he won't swap, tell Tom to bring the shoat down to my place, and put it in the extra pen, and be sure and shut that door to the hen house, or all the chickens'll get out. Sure there ain't no mail? Mornin', Mr. Morely!"

"Mornin', Joe!"—Youth's Companion.

Making the Best of a Pest.
A farmer in the parish of Maitland, Nova Scotia, recently came across a skunk's nest that had three tiny young ones in it. The little skunks were only a day or two old, and instead of ruthlessly destroying them, the farmer picked them up and carried them home.

The family cat had been raising a litter of four kittens, three of whom the farmer had drowned, and after a few suspicious sniffs, she consented to adopt the little skunks in place of the lost kittens. The skunks did not suckle in quite the same way as the kittens, and it was interesting to watch Tabby push and box them into position. She soon got them in excellent order, and pussy and her quaint family afford lots of amusement for the children of the neighborhood. The farmer intends to make his find the nucleus of a skunk farm, and when the success of the fox farms of the maritime provinces is considered, it appears possible at least that he will find the venture profitable. Skunk is at present among the most valuable of furs.—Youth's Companion.

Captain's Will.
"It's the office boy," said the captain of a great liner, "who has taken the romance out of seafaring. Steam had nothing to do with it. In the old days the master of a steamer was a great man he stood almost as high socially as did officers of the navy. Now he has to face an impudent little whelp of a boy when he goes to the owners' office at the end of a voyage. At sea, the captain is the absolute master, but in the office the boy is supreme. He looks the captain over and then grunts: 'Sit down; he's too busy to see you now. So the captain cowers his heels while later comes another past him. He goes through that on every trip, and yet he dare not quit his ship for fear he may not get another. I can find you 50 captains who had rather stay on the bridge through a No. 1 gale than face the little jeering devil in the owner's office."

Why the Boiler Rumbles.
That noisy rumbling and clattering in the kitchen boiler after the gas water heater has been lighted for some time has scared many a woman. The editor of Monthly Gas Chat says it need alarm no one, as it is caused by the expansion of the water as it is heated from the top of the boiler. The colder water below, rushing up to displace the expanded water above, will often cause a concussion.

POUF! AH-LA-LA-LA

By MARIE BEAUMARSCHEFF.

(Copyright.)
Madame had locked her son in a room. Such a son! Such a mother! Emil Jean Marie Lefebvre wept and was chastised at the age of twenty-one. Madame is mere—buxom, irate, huge—was competent to manage any one—even a gendarme if need be.

The cause? A miserable—pouf!—the scum of a milliner's daughter down the street, she of the hair resembling carrots, and the atrocious freckles, Mon dieu! and it would seem the more freckles, the more love. Bien! Madame would attend to all—first to Emil Jean Marie; afterward to the hold him; all—all in good time. Parbleu! What would you? To have a girl come to the house every week—every week, attend you!—to collect a bill for a bonnet not yet worn! True, madame had possessed it a year; but what then? What with its hues—yellow and pale pink—it was not possible to wear it so soon after the death of monsieur. For madame's husband had died during the year, and so she had continued wearing her old black hat.

Who would expect anything different? A beloved husband in his coffin, the very thought of yellow and pale pink was odious—odious for many days to come. Meanwhile madame had been constantly reminded of the price of her unborn bonnet.

Can one never trust the ungrateful children? Ah, the tortures of motherhood! First the agony of the birth; then the rearing of the infant, the fear that it will not live, the continued and eternal vigilance—for what? To have an ingrate of a son answer a summons to the front door every week, like a rabbit run out of its burrow, and fall in love with the daughter of an exorbitant milliner—a daughter presenting a bill—as if she were wound up regular to appear once a week like a mechanical toy!

To think that he should be so unlike his brother Paul Baptiste—Paul Baptiste, who knew not one woman from another except when served by one at his dinner! A fine son; so silent—so honest—so dutiful, who had eclipsed all by wedding one of the soeurs Felice. The eldest one it was, Antoinette—she who had always had epileptic fits—so sad!—and only four teeth—but a portion of five hundred francs. Ah, bon dieu! there was filial devotion for you—an example for all mothers to admire!

And Emil Jean Marie? Have you not heard, then? He is no longer a son, but an ingrate, an outcast, a pariah! His mother's heart it is broken as well; even the thought of Paul Baptiste and his wife will not console.

It is like this: Madame locks Emil Jean Marie in her room. "Never," declares she, "shall you come out until you promise to forget this pauper of a milliner girl, who has not a sou to her name. Never—never—never!"

"If all were like you in making payment for what they purchase, it is small wonder that she is a pauper." This atrocity from one's own son!

Then all is quiet.

Presently madame goes downstairs. She strolls in the garden at the side of the house; she becomes calm—then pensive. She plucks flowers and sniffs in deep breaths of sunshine and air. She reflects that it is as well to punish sons once in a while, as le bon dieu knows how men are all born to be lords, and forever ordering women about as soon as they are married.

"It is only during their youth that they are submissive. Men are like kings of beasts," soliloquized madame, complacently reviewing her life with the departed monsieur. "Ah! he was like unto a noble lion when roaring his desires: 'Blanche, fetch my shoes—Blanche, carry the hamper.'" Madame wept.

A footstep sounded. It stopped in front of the house. Doubtless some stupid ox of a huckster. Madame paid no heed; she continued her gentle reveries. It was a romantic moment, full of sentiments of the past. Presently, however, madame bethought her of her uncooked dinner, and she sauntered around toward the front. Some one was passing by—some one—madame screamed.

It was the milliner's daughter—on her head the yellow and pale pink bonnet! Madame grasped the stone post for support. The girl bowed.

"Behold me, madame. I wear the hat, it is true. I am here, but I return this time with it on my head, and you may also reassure yourself on one point: your son—such a baboon! Do you think I would look at him? La-la-la! I would as soon wed a blue mandril. To him I have made all the blandishments only to endeavor to secure the money owed. To him I promise all my soul, if he will but throw me down the hat from madame's room. Now, go and release your grand bebe. Who would have him, save the other soeur Felice—pouf!"

"As for the promise to meet him at the Moulin Rouge—so!—my compliments. I am married since last week; yes, I am married, and to no baboon. And no more will Emil Jean Marie see of me. La-la-la-la-la!" And she walked away, swishing her skirts.

What are sons? Ingrates, ingrates—that is, some sons. And never will madame forgive the insult put upon her by Emil Jean Marie. And as for him, he has learned well the lesson that all men should learn, and forever remember, of the valuation of a pretty bonnet, and of its price.

FOR BATHING FROCKS

STYLE AND MATERIALS VARY ENOUGH TO SUIT ALL.

Elaboration Permitted, Though It Will Be Frowned On by the Women of Taste—Black and Dark Blue the Popular Colors.

(By MARY DEAN.)

Smart bathing frocks are as varied in style as are the finest dresses of the season, and they may be made as plain or elaborate as the taste of the wearer dictates. However, the woman of refinement who is fond of bathing for the sake of the sport, will prefer to err on the side of conservatism rather than to dress conspicuously and attract undue attention to herself. Black, and dark blue are the most popular colors for these water suits, although plaids, stripes and solid colors in bright hues are seen in some of this season's models.

Nowadays the skirt and blouse are joined at the waist line, which prevents any unpleasant separation after the wearer has entered the water. The blouse portion of the modish suits all show pretty much the same lines; the waist and sleeves are generally cut in one with a lacing, or fancy vest finish at the front and a turn-down collar of contrasting goods. It is in the skirt portion that the striking features are introduced. The tunic, the pleated skirt, the flare skirt and the pantaloen skirt all have their place and vie with each other for popularity. Quite the newest and most unusual to be seen is the pantaloen skirt. This has two plain top flounces with a third under flounce that is divided. By means of rubbers each side of the skirt is drawn in closely to the knees and thus forms pantaloons. It is claimed for this skirt that not only is it a pretty, graceful model, but that it is comfortable to wear and easy to swim in. This model is hardly suitable for stout figures, but then there is the long tunic that is sure to prove becoming to the majority.

The choice of material is important and should be governed by its wearing qualities and by its appearance when wet. Satin has long been a favorite because it looks well even in the water and, if a good quality is employed, one will get a whole season of hard wear out of it. Salt water satin comes about thirty-six inches wide and costs about two dollars a yard. Taffeta and moire are also used for bathing suits, but to get satisfaction a very good quality must be bought, for the cheaper grades do not stand the salt water. Nothing can compete with cravenetted mohair for good hard wear, and this material is quite as light and comfortable to wear as any of the silk weaves mentioned. When making these suits the rule of pearl, or bone buttons should be observed whenever they can be made to do service, for hooks and eyes are apt to rust and be very unsatisfactory.

Plain and Checked Silk.

THE REPRISAL

By GLADYS HALL.

(Copyright.)

I have had my death sentence. There can be no reprieve, no court of higher appeal, no leniency. But before I go I shall tell the world that love may not be toyed with, that primordial man still lives.

Now that the veil of all illusions, all earthly conceits, is to be rent asunder, I shall write the truth, naked and unashamed.

There came into my life about my twentieth year a man who came nearer to mastering me than anyone I had ever met, and on this man I exercised, successfully, every wire in my power.

For a year I played with him, devoting to him all of my time and attention and devotion—apparently. He grew mad as the days went by—mad with the terrible passion of a strong man's love.

As a cat toys with a helpless mouse, I reveled in his torture, in his ecstatic pain; finally—I sent him away.

Another man crossed my path, and I was weary of the one game. He was not easy to send, this man who cared so faithfully—I think I shall never forget his face when I said the words.

I have seen a great many mangled hearts, torn by this white hand they are so eager to seize; but this man's very soul lay crushed—and in his eyes was a hell of despair—but he never said a word.

Fifteen years had nearly elapsed, and he had become little more than a memory when, in the hotel dining-room, two weeks ago, I saw him.

Something, I can't say what, made me raise my eyes, and I gazed full into his eyes gazing back at me. They were sunken eyes with two things in them—a dead thing, the soul I had killed, and a look that seemed to say aloud, "Repay, repay."

He did not look my way again; I can't imagine why, for the beauty of twenty has increased sevenfold, and I was sheathed in clinging, filmy gray, with a red rose in my breast.

As he finished he rose very slowly, and deliberately crossed to my table. "How do you do?" he said simply, his lips smiling, but his eyes tragedy-filled as before.

"This is a surprise, indeed," I told him with as easy a manner as I could command. I had met him later years, many of the men whose hearts I had played with, some sunk into the mire, some broken, some reckless cynics, but none had looked as this man looked, or held in their eyes that dead thing—Oh, God, I can see it now!

His next words filled me with amazement, that yet was not rid of a haunting fear, as he said lightly:

"I'm so glad to find you here; I feared it might be dull; but you will take pity on a lonely man and let me renew our acquaintance a bit, will you not?"

Something said "Yes"—it wasn't me; and something whispered, too, that flight would be unavailing—that this man's hour had struck—that he was master now.

The days that followed—they were like no other days I had ever spent. He was my constant companion; we rode and drove, attended the opera and theater, lunched and dined, and always he was courteous, attentive, kind—always he was the master.

Oh, of course, he never proved his dominance; but often in this life unspoken words are more potent than those uttered, and unused mastery more powerfully felt than that of outward sign.

One night a week ago we took a walk, and here I must say that strange thing had come into my life—a something hitherto wholly alien to heart and mind.

It was a half-formulated, half-vague wonder what life might have been as a wife and mother—perhaps.

It had curiously softened me this night as we strolled out toward the lake; I felt a new sense of harmony, of well-being, and I even knew a throb of pity for him, instead of the previous cold fear.

As we drew near the wooded path that circles the lake I felt, instinctively, a sudden change in the man at my side, a new intensity and force; and then, without warning, I was in his arms—crushed close in a mad frenzy—while on eyes and hair and lips and throat rained the wild, terrible kisses of a famished man.

"Oh, God!" I heard him sob. "Ah, God—at last!"

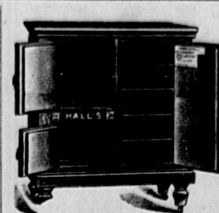

As abruptly he changed again, stepped back, and, after a few seconds to master himself, he said slowly and with a sardonic smile worthy of Satan:

"Mme. La Vampire, I am through—my task is accomplished—and you are mine forever. I bid you a very good night."

Shaking with hysteria, I groped my way back to the hotel.

That was a week ago; night before last I consulted a physician; I was badly racked and feverish, and my red lips were cracked and white.

I feared for my beauty—but why tell it all? I am in my room, cringing and cursing—and tomorrow they take us away—together—on a ship, a very exclusive ship—we are lepers!

PONY LICENSE GRANTED

action the committee will bring in the name of one person to whom a license should be granted. Alderman Clark said that in the favorable report of the committee on this matter, some one had wished McGourty as the one expressman in Ward 6, and he wished to object to McGourty in that capacity. Alderman Cox said that the chairman of the License Committee (Mr. Rice of Ward 6), had suggested that name, and Alderman Rice promptly repudiated that he had done so, saying that he had only said "that McGourty was as good as any of them." The motion to rescind was then defeated by a vote of 5 to 14 and the board took a recess to allow the committee to meet.

When the board reassembled Alderman Rice submitted a majority report naming the American Express Co. as the one to hold the single permit to be granted. Aldermen Blakemore and Cox being a minority of the committee. Alderman Murphy opposed this report on the ground that this company did not serve the south side and Alderman Rice said it covered six of the wards of the city. The permit was then granted the American Express Co.

All the other applicants for these licenses, including D. F. Warren, Simon Morrell, G. DeLuco, M. J. Mulcahy, D. P. Lynch, W. O. Harrington, J. S. Roberts, E. I. Lindley, M. J. Feeney, F. E. Carvelli, Adams Express, F. E. Butters, L. Sampson, F. C. McGourty Johnson & Assoc., Clearing House, Parsons Delivery Co., Veducio and William Bailey, were then refused by a voice vote.

Alderman Murphy questioned if the law requiring these licenses to be granted in April had been complied with and President Blakemore said the board was within its rights in granting these licenses now. Alderman Porskan raised a laugh in answer to a query from Alderman Cox, "if any member of the board held any stock in the American Express Co.," by saying, "I don't, but I wish I did."

There was another debate on the order making payment of $166.66 to former street commissioner C. W. Ross, in lieu of two weeks' vacation. Alderman Cox thought it costed a bad precedent and that a principle was involved in this peculiar situation. He thought a vacation ought to be given to officials who served the full year and not to one who resigned on April 15. He didn't want the tax payers money given away without service rendered. Alderman Bartlett said that Mr. Ross had resigned on April 15 and had worked up to that date. He had held himself ready to help out the city during the next two weeks, which he had taken as a vacation. The matter came well within the opinion given the committee by the city solicitor and the committee believed that Mr. Ross should be allowed this money.

Mr. Slocum was called in and gave his opinion that the board could pass this order, although Alderman Cox asked how any member could OK a bill of this kind. Alderman Bemis said he had voted for the order under a misunderstanding and the matter was re-committed to the Finance committee. The order for $1300 for the Waban playground was favored by the Public Works committee and a majority of the Finance committee deemed it inexpedient. Alderman Murphy said the city was being called upon to spend $100 for a fence about the playground and it was understood that only small amounts should be expended yearly in the matter of grading. He did not think it was the time, with a high tax rate facing us, to appropriate any more money than was necessary. Alderman Barker said that we were now using private land for playground purposes, and that when this fence is built, the children will not have any place to play without this grading is done. He was not fair to take away their facilities to play. Alderman Murphy thought that the boys might be allowed to continue the present summer, if the owners knew the fence was to be built in the fall. Alderman Bartlett said that the people of Waban had put $4000 in that playground but it doesn't demand anything of the city. Alderman Pratt said that the city must build the fence, but he should vote against the grading for financial reasons. He believed that a little money would give the smaller children a place to play after the fence was built and as most of the children went away during the summer, the matter could very well rest until next year. The order was then passed with Alderman Bemis, Murphy, Pratt and Blakemore voting in opposition.

An order for $8500 for improving the heating apparatus in the old and new Clafin schools was opposed by Aldermen Pratt and Richardson as it had not been before the Finance Committee, and by Alderman Barker, who said that he had looked into this matter each year for the past four years and believed they could get along another year. The board refused to suspend the rules, by a vote of 5 to 13 and the matter was referred to the Finance committee.

There was more or less half faceious discussion of the item of $271 for hot water showers at the High school, but it was finally passed unanimously. Alderman Bemis objected to the additional appropriation of $2400 for collection of ashes, saying that this work was done in 1906 for $7781 and that $25,400 was asked for 1914. He thought it was time to do something to keep this appropriation down. Alderman Pratt agreed that the amount was growing beyond all reason, due to two causes, first, because the former accounting was not right, the cost of teams and care of dumps being charged to Street Maintenance, and also due to the fact that citizens were putting out all kinds of stuff for the department to carry off. Alderman Barker gave some illustrations of what was being done in this way and said it was high time something was done to reduce the expense. President Blakemore suggested the advisability of having the work done by contract and it was voted to request the street commissioner, thru the mayor to give the board a report on this method of doing the work.

The board accepted the invitation of the Board of Co. to be its guests on July 9th and at 12:40 A. M. adjourned to Sept. 14.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—The second and positively last week of "The Meistersingers," in their superb new scenic spectacle, "In Gloucester," is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre. Next week will mark the last of "The Meistersingers" in their new aquatic spectacle, and seats are now on sale for all the remaining performances. Of the new program, perhaps the chorus number that makes the biggest hit is "The Storm," a sea song by George Lowell Tracy, the well-known Boston composer, with all manner of electrical and lighting effects. The second week of "The Meistersingers" in Gloucester" will be surrounded by an excellent vaudeville bill, full of comedy, music, and dancing, and exceptionally well adapted for this time of the year. Redford and Winchester, the world famous jugglers, who have juggled their way around the universe, and appeared in every civilized country on earth, will return after a long absence, and other features will be Lydell, Rogers and Lydell, in "A Man From Arkansas"; Ralph Riggs and Katherine Wichita, late features of "The Enchantress"; and "All Aboard," in a series of dance diversions; Brooks and Bowen, two dark spots from Dixie; Leffell Trio, in an initiation into the "nut order"; Borden and Shannon; and Zoda and Hoot, the dragon and the owl, in contortionist features.

NORUMBEGA PARK

Next week the Great Cartoon Musical Comedy hit, Buster Brown with Tigre, Mary Jane and the Campbell Kids and Master Harold West in the title role will be the attraction. On the Fourth band concerts will be given in the Band Court by the Famous Norwood Brass Band. The Zoological Gardens with its collection of rare wild animals is always the centre of admiring throngs. The latest addition to this feature is the Alaska Bear from the Great Northwest and it is certainly a continuous performance to watch this almost human animal in his antics. Watch him bait the wolves on either side and you will get a good lesson in natural history. Canoeing and boating is the ideal summer sport and at Norumbega's enlarged boat houses you will find the best livery and service.

PRIZE ESSAY

W. Van Kirk, Jr. Wins Prize of Newton Equal Suffrage League

The judges appointed by the Newton Equal Suffrage League to examine essays submitted by pupils of the Newton Schools on the subject, "Why Women Should be Voters," has awarded first prize to Robert W. Van Kirk, Jr., of West Newton, second and third prizes to Thalia Clark of Newton Highlands and Robert A. Cunningham of Newton.

Mr. Van Kirk's essay is as follows:—

WHY WOMEN SHOULD BE VOTERS

In this age of progress we have come to recognize that woman is man's equal morally and intellectually. Because of his superior physical strength man has usurped the power and held woman in an inferior position for centuries. Those who oppose the enfranchisement of women are still governed by this barbaric, oriental spirit.

Our government is based on the principle of equality. Yet it discriminates between the two sexes, when one is as well qualified to vote and hold office as the other. That there are hundreds of thousands of women today who earnestly desire the ballot cannot be denied even by those radically opposed to this movement. On the other hand there are hundreds of thousands of men with the franchise, who never use it. We give to those who are indifferent, and refuse those who are desirous. The safety of a democracy lies in the interest taken by the people in the government. If we do not avail ourselves of the services of such willing, interested individuals, how can we claim that ours is a "government of the people, and by the people?"

If we are to discriminate against certain classes, why not do so in a more rational way? Under present conditions inferior men are allowed to make laws for the benefit of the people. The franchise is granted to criminals, inebriates and such men, whereas it is denied the brightest women in the country.

The ballot is the inalienable right of every citizen of a free country. The female population constitutes just as valuable a body of citizens as the male. We must remember that man is as vitally dependent on woman as woman upon man. Our discrimination is not the result of logical reasoning, but is rather a relic of barbarism and orientalism, where woman has occupied a degraded and inferior position. We must break away from these unnatural conditions, and grant woman the rights from which she has long been so unjustly excluded.

POLICE NOTES

A fine of $50 was imposed upon Mrs. Plomena Piscoolido of 192 Adams street, Nonantum, by Judge Kennedy in the Police Court Wednesday morning, on the charge of assault upon Biaggio Fronio of 460 Watertown street with a razor a week ago last Sunday. Fronio was in court heavily bandaged, having been released from the Newton hospital yesterday. The young woman testified that she has been repeatedly assaulted by Fronio and on the day that the assault was committed he passed her house several times each time making some remark. Once she went out and warned him not to speak to her again, and she testified that he struck her and she returned the blow. When, as she claimed, he made a motion to draw something from his pocket and she hit him on the side of the neck with her razor. She paid the fine.

SIX CENT FARES

Middlesex and Boston Co. Gives Public Notice of Proposed Increase

The Middlesex and Boston Street Railway Company has given notice to the public service commission of a proposed increase in rate of fare, effective August 3, 1914, to six cents for every ride between any two fare limits, additional charge of one cent for every transfer issued. The commission has ordered the railway to give public notice of the increase ten days prior to July 20 by publication.

At present the company charges five cents for all rides between fare limits within the city of Newton and Waltham, except that within limits of these two cities an additional charge of one cent is made for every transfer issued. The rate has been six cents upon the lines previously operated by the Newton & Boston Street Railway, without charge for transfers. The new rates will be upon all other lines, except that the company issues for $2.50 each, books containing 50 tickets, each ticket good in lieu of a cash fare of six cents between any two fare limits west of Newton Lower Falls.

The request by the company to be allowed to raise its tariff comes as a result of the recent dispute between the line and its employees, and the decision of a board of arbitration that the carmen are entitled to a 15 per cent raise and back pay from June 1, 1913. It is estimated that the award will cost the company about $25,000 for back pay and about the same amount each year in addition to the amount heretofore paid for wages.

While the Public Service Commission has not assigned a hearing on this matter, it will probably do so if sufficient public interest develops to cause petitions to that end to be filed with that body.

CHASE-HATFIELD

Miss Margaret Hatfield, the only daughter of Hon. and Mrs. Charles Edwin Hatfield of West Newton and Mr. Stuart Chase of West Newton, were married last Sunday afternoon at Medawisla, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield at Centre Harbor, N. H. The ceremony took place in a beautiful pine grove overlooking the lake and was performed by Rev. Henry Dyke Sleeper, D. D. of Smith College, with only the immediate families of the bride and groom being present.

The bride is a graduate of the Newton High School and of Smith College '09. While at college she was interested in various musical and dramatic societies and has been prominent in the affairs of "The Players," the Newton amateur dramatic society. She is talented as a musician. For some time she has been interested in settlement work and is an ardent suffragist. She is a member of the Brae-Burn Country Club, the North Gate Club and other social organizations. Mr. Chase is a graduate of the Newton High School, where he was noted as a hockey player. He entered Technology and two years later went to Harvard, graduating with the class of 1910. He is a member of the Brae-Burn Country Club, the Newton Club and the Neighborhood Club of Newton.

WINS THREE PRIZES

Newton Boy Shows Class at Winthrop on July 4th.

Leo Hughes, pupil at the Clafin-Mann School, Newton, now with his parents at their Winthrop cottage, was successful in winning a silver cup for the 50-yards swimming race at Lewis Lake, July 4th. He also took part in the 100-yards race and won another silver cup. At the field sports in the afternoon he won a silver medal for high jumping.

A SUCCESSFUL FOURTH OF JULY

Interesting Celebrations at Newton, West Newton, Newton Centre and Waban

Newton made a remarkable record for celebrating Independence Day last Saturday, when only one alarm was rung for fire (and that proved to be false) and not a single accident reported to the police throughout the day. Not for years has the city so thoroughly enjoyed a safe and sane and successful Fourth.

There were special observances of the day at Newton, West Newton, Newton Centre, Waban and at the Brae-Burn Country Club.

At Newton the business men of the village arranged an enjoyable program on the Y. M. C. A. field including ball games in the morning, band concert and sports in the afternoon and a band concert and fireworks in the evening.

West Newton and Auburndale had its celebration on the Common in the afternoon and a large crowd enjoyed a band concert sports and a horse show. The folk dancing between the West Newton and Auburndale girls was won by the latter while girls from both villages shared the awards in the individual dancing events. Mr. Harry L. Burrage won first prize in the horse show. In the morning the Catholic Club won a ball game from the Waltham Athletic Club.

At Newton Centre a program was conducted by the Newton Centre Improvement Society, in which several hundred residents took part. There were several hundred children in a parade. Each child carried a flag, and the "horribles" marching caused amusement.

A few Civil War veterans were also in the ranks. The parade went over the following route: Union, Beacon, Centre, Langley road, Sumner and Willow streets to the Newton Centre Playground. The children in the parade gave a flag drill, and an exhibition of folk dancing was given by the children under the direction of Miss Ethel Loring.

At baseball the Playground nine won from Davenport A. C. of Newton Centre, 16 to 9. A large auto truck was at the disposal of the children for rides. In the evening the display of fireworks was held on Crystal Lake, Newton Centre, during which a band concert was held.

AT NEWTON

Married vs. Single Men.

The Single Men won the annual game in a whirlwind finish coming from behind in the last two innings and winning by the score of 9 to 8.

For seven innings Gene Murphy had the single ones right at his mercy, striking out eleven men in seven innings. But Gene was given very poor support in the 8th inning, fly balls that should have been caught were allowed to bounce before being played. Charlie Newcomb handled everything on first with one hand.

A Wilson who still plays with the single men could not be induced to run after a fly ball that he missed and allowed a home run. "Howie" Allen figured as a pinch hitter for the single men, but three healthy swings was the best he could do.

Score by Innings: 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H E

Single Men 1 0 0 0 0 0 6 2 9 6 4
Married Men 1 2 0 1 0 3 0 1 0 8 10 6
Batteries: Whalen, Adams and Ellis; Murphy and Macpherson. Umpire, Cady.

Notes of the Day.

Mr. Sanderson was the busiest man on the field.

Chief Mitchell was interested in the High Jump.

President Hubbard wore a pleased smile during the day.

John Brimblecom took a chance on tennis rather than baseball.

That married men's team looked like champions for seven innings. Charlie Elliot is some felder.

Charlie Newcomb is going to start training right away so that he can do his own running next year.

It was evident that Bill Cady is still a single man.

We were surprised to see Geo. Miess playing with the single men. Next 4th George says.

"Herb" Fraser looked like a real comeback at short stop for the married men.

AT WABAN

The Fourth of July committee headed by Don Hill and organized as the big noise, rode around town in autos the morning of the Fourth and with bugle and horns reminded the residents that Waban's celebration had begun.

At 9 A. M. the Track and Field sports for boys and girls were run on the playground with 70 entries. There were four classes for boys and two for girls. A cup was given to the one in each class making the most points. First counting 5 points, second 3 points, and third one point, the events were:

For Boys—Running High Jump, Running Broad Jump, Potato Race, 40-Yard Dash, 100-Yard Dash, Sack Race, and Throwing Baseball.

For Girls—Potato Race, Sack Race, 40-Yard Dash, Running Broad Jump, and Throwing Ball.

The winners of cups were, Joseph Troy, Class A Boys, Ainsworth Lane, Class B Boys, Elbridge Luck, Class C Boys, Charles Gilmore, Class D Boys, Marion McPherson, Class A Girls, Kathryn Burnett, Class B Girls.

The championship Baseball Game between the two sides of the town was started at 3 P. M. and drew a good-sized, interested audience, and a

FORTY YEARS AGO

Description of the Newton High School in 1874

The following paper was prepared and read by Miss Mildred Sherman Corson at the recent graduating exercises of the Newton Classical High School.

NEWTON HIGH SCHOOL FORTY YEARS AGO

First I am going to ask you to forget the present and go back forty years. I invite you to stand with me on the other side of Walnut street just in front of the spot where this building now stands. It is about quarter past eight on a beautiful May morning in the year 1874. In front of us stands an oblong mud colored building about one-fifth the size of this. What an inartistic color you think. Perhaps so, but surely the surroundings are beautiful enough to dull the first impression. At our left is a field, finally ending in a velvety green lawn which slopes up to a very imposing looking mansion surrounded by beautiful elms. This is "The Old Elms," the home of the governor of Massachusetts. On our right is a field and near by a few houses, but you will notice that the whole scene has the appearance of being a small village street.

Let us turn again now, however, to the building. In front of it we see a semi-circle of iron posts. There is an interesting superstition among the pupils about these iron posts; that whoever passes through a certain two of them shall be delinquent in his studies during the day and receive, I suppose, the necessary punishment.

But now the pupils are beginning to arrive. Most of them come on foot laden with books and lunchbaskets. But what is this team we see filled with merry young people, who are all getting out of the school? This is the school bus which brings at a certain price those who live too far away to walk. (We notice that Walnut street has no car tracks on it.) Now they are going into the building, the boys by the front door and the girls by the side. Evidently the school authorities do not believe in Woman Suffrage.

Let us follow them inside. We go upstairs and find ourselves in one large room which covers the whole upper floor, and seats about one hundred scholars, the entire school body. The first class pupils (now known by the dignified name of seniors) occupy the seats of honor in the back of the room. All the members of the school have their desks here. This is where they hold devotional exercises in the morning and where they study during the day. Let us glance around the room. In front is the customary teacher's desk. On the walls we see colored mottoes in frames. These seem to be the only pictures in the building. But they mean more than is shown by their appearance. It has been the custom when a class has graduated for them to choose a motto containing the same number of letters as the number of pupils in the graduating class and to have it painted in colors chosen by the class. For instance in a class of eighteen members the motto is the trite "veritas quæratur"—"let us seek truth."

But now the bell has rung and the pupils pass to their different recitation rooms below. No talking is allowed between bells. At recess they return to eat their lunches, some of them in the school room, others outdoors. The boys hurry through to play ball. A resemblance to the boys of today! What would they all think if we could foresee our lunch room! After recess there are lessons again, and school closes at half past one.

This then, is a day in the Newton High School forty years ago, but one day cannot show all the changes which have taken place and I want you to see more.

To begin at the beginning—it was more difficult to enter High School then. An examination of sixteen questions was given on the five topics which had been studied in Grammar School and seventy-five per cent was required to pass. Then, after one entered High School, the courses were different. There were two courses, a three years' course which would correspond to our general course, and a four years' course which fitted for college. (Continued on Page 4)

A PR. TEST

Against Proposed Increase in Street Railway Fares

Editor Newton Graphic: The proposed increase of fares on the Newton trolley is not warranted by the service, and will not be received by the people as anything but injustice. Five cents is ample; if the company wishes to get the public goodwill and increased patronage, let it improve the service, not raise the rates!

To pay more than a nickel for a ride from Auburndale to Waltham, or to any of the Newtons, for example, is exorbitant. Already we have to pay six cents for transfer connections in our own city; the extra cent is always grudging. To add another cent will be begrudging. To add another cent will be fatal.

As the head of a family of eight people, all of whom use the trolley daily and pay full fare, I warn the company that if the increase goes into effect the result will be a loss of business.

I know of families that would rather move into a five-cent-zone town than stay even in the Newtons with a six-cent fare with another cent added for transfers.

Any properly run trolley system can make money on a five-cent fare. If Newton permits this proposed increase to go into effect, Newton will be the loser.

The proposed increase means that for each dollar we now spend in local car fares, we will have to spend $1.20. The people will not stand it!

Yours truly,
W. I. CLARKE.
Auburndale, July 7, 1914.

HIGHEST SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

The honor of having the highest average school attendance per 100 inhabitants in 1912 of any of the 105 cities in the United States canvassed goes to the city of Newton, according to the recent Government census report on financial statistics of cities having a population of 30,000.

The average established by Newton was 21 per 100 inhabitants, Newark was second with 20.5, Chelsea third with 18.9, Hartford fourth with 17.9, Everett fifth with 17.8 and Brockton sixth with 17.6. Boston maintained only 14.5.

The city of Newton, with $834, was also second for the average payment for the expenses of elementary day schools, secondary day schools and night schools. Pasadena reported the highest average with $899.

NORUMBEGA PARK

The Famous Zoological Gardens, always the centre of admiring throngs will be more popular than ever now by the addition of a baby Elk. Born on July 4th at 4 P. M., it was immediately christened George Washington. For the coming week a big vaudeville bill has been arranged of 5 acts and some of the latest motion pictures.

Dine under the trellis vines of the Grape Arbor Cafe where the cool breezes from the Charles keep one comfortable and refreshed. Then ride on the Merry-Go-Round or take a motor launch trip down the river. The enlarged boat houses with its island casino are proving more popular than ever. The host of attractions found at this famous amusement Park are all well patronized.

REAL ESTATE

Through the office of Alvord Brothers, William D. Smith has sold his estate 432 Dedham street corner of Parker street, Newton Centre, in the Oak Hill section, to F. F. Jonesberg, for a residence. The property consists of a good-sized modern house, garage, tool house, pigeon houses and about 6 1/2 acres of land. The house was formerly occupied and owned by Mrs. Levi C. Wade and built by her. The property is assessed for $15,500, of which $7200 is on the buildings, and $8300 on the land.

Alvord Brothers have also leased the following: The Lamkin house 175 Warren street to Vincent P. Maloney. The Wilson house 21 Eastbourne road to Walter R. Washburn.

Mayor Childs continues to get in deeper and deeper in the Neagle case and now adds an injustice to an entirely innocent man by taking the name of Police Officer Meehan off the payroll. The mayor evidently believes that two wrongs make a right but it will take him a very long time to make the people of this city believe that his action in this matter is for the best interests of Newton. I trust that officer Meehan will enter suit against the city for his salary and he ought to be reimbursed by the city for any expense incurred in that procedure.

The liquor situation in this city has not been cleared by the selection of the American Express Co. to transport liquor. The liquor dealers will continue to bring their product into the city and the police are evidently powerless to prevent it under the present law. Our extreme prohibition friends may gather some consolation from reading the leading article in this week's Saturday Evening Post on the liquor situation in Kansas.

With the Great and General Court in its business on Beacon Hill, the eyes of the politicians will be turned towards the coming state primary on Sept. 22 and the persons to be named at that time.

With an audience conservatively estimated at 15,000 persons, the business men of Newton evidently met a popular demand in their celebration of the Fourth of July.

DEALERS NOTIFIED

Chief of Police Mitchell on Monday notified all persons known to be delivering liquor in this city, that the American Express Co. had been given a permit to transport liquors in this city and that all others are warned that they would be liable to prosecution if others than that Express Company continued to deliver liquor in this city.

This notice had the effect of stopping several of the liquor dealers but one prominent grocery concern has got around the matter by having its customers accept delivery of liquors at its Boston store and take all risk of delivery in this city. It is said that a verbal order to this effect is equally good so far as the law is concerned and the police will certainly have some difficulty in prosecuting persons who will bring liquor into Newton in their own teams.

PLAYGROUNDS OPEN

The playground season opened Monday and the attendance at each playground was exceptionally good. Many improvements are being made on the playgrounds, under the direction of the superintendent, Ernest Hermann, among them being a cement wading pool on the Stearns Playground, No-namum, and swings, slides and saws
on Farlow Park, Newton, Auburndale and Lower Falls Playgrounds. Mr.
Hermann is making out a program which will give attendants at the various playgrounds a certain number of points for their work and at the end of the season efficiency prizes will be awarded.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME

The Legislature was prorogued about midnight Tuesday, after a session of 183 days, and which has only been exceeded in length by three others.

Two recess committees were appointed in the closing hour, Representative Bothfield being made House chairman of the committee on Revision of the Rules of the General Court.

That all three of our representatives have taken prominent parts in the session just closed was indicated in the Globe cartoon on Wednesday where out of five men featured, three of them were from Newton.

The state tax was fixed at $8,750,000.
An increase of $750,000 over last year.
This will give Newton a state tax of $154,000 or an increase of $13,200 over last year, affecting the tax rate on the present valuation about fifteen cents. On the whole we are to be congratulated that the amount is not any larger.

The bill abolishing party enrolment was passed, but must await a referendum at the coming state election.

J. C. Brimblecom.

POLITICAL NOTES

Mr. Howard Emerson, chairman of the Republican City Committee, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the House of Representatives at the coming State primary.
Mr. Emerson will resign today as chairman of the city committee in order to be entirely free to accept the nomination.

AUBURNDALE REAL ESTATE

E. Burnard Squire reports the following sales:

To Mary Lally, the property, 97
Hawthorne avenue, comprising a cottage house and 15,000 feet of land, valued at $2500. Aaron Fred Van Wormer was the seller. Lena Bell Edgar has sold through the same broker to Wilbur D. Gilpatrick, a lot of land on the north side of Wolcott street containing 20,000 feet and assessed on $1400. The Burnham Soluble Iodine Company have taken title from the heirs of Emma F. Johnson to a lot on Lexington street containing 13,300 sq. feet and well suited for business purposes. Harry D. Perkins buys from the estate of Edwin B. Haskell a corner lot on Washington street and Aspen avenue and will soon improve.
Papers have gone to record in the transfer from Lillian G. Budding to Alexander Gaw of the estate 49 Evergreen avenue consisting of an eight-room house, stable and a 10,400 feet lot, all valued by the assessors at $2300.

Mr. Squire has also under agreement
the following sales:

Estate of Charles H. Hayden with Marcus H. Gilbert, lot on Ash street and Commonwealth avenue containing 11,075 feet assessed on $2200.

Frederick Plummer with Arthur F.
Brown, 45-2 feet on Hawthorne avenue. Mr. Brown will erect at once an attractive six-room cottage to be placed on sale through this office.

William D. Smith with John Mc-Donagh, a lot of land on the northwest side of Ash street having an area of 10,000 feet on which it is planned to build a two-family house of brick and stone. The lot is valued at $1000.
Agreements are signed for the transfer of the estate, 17 Washburn avenue.
John P. Keating will convey to Percival Waters, who will occupy. The property is valued at $3800.

Another transaction to be closed
soon is the purchase by Arthur L.
Goodrich of 316 Central street from the estate of Addison P. Foster. There are 13,500 feet of land and a comfortable house, valued together at $5500.

Hattie C. Blake is to sell to Frank V. Avancio a parcel of land containing about 32,000 square feet on Islington street, bordering Ware's Cove.

The inquiry for Auburndale property is reported as very good.

Refuted Argument

In a recent lecture in London, a scientist called attention to the fact that Aristotle said that a weight of ten pounds, for example, fell ten times as fast as a weight of one pound, and the world went on believing it for 2,000 years. But Galileo preferred to try for himself by dropping Aristotle's weights from the Leaning Tower of Pisa, and though people still did not believe him, he showed that they reached the ground practically together.

AUTOS RUIN THE WHIP MAKER

Englishman Forced to Close Shop Because Nearly All His Customers Have Taken to Motors.

There is pathos behind the announcement made by George Schomberg, a whip maker who has been in business in Brompton road for 45 years, that owing to nearly all his customers taking to motor cars and discarding their horses he is forced to close his shop for good, says the London Chronicle.

"My yearly turnover ten years ago from the sale of whips used to be between $15,000 and $20,000, but last year my turnover was only $4,000."

"Before everybody gave up horses I used to sell six to eight dozen whips in the shop each week, whereas now I only sell two or three," he said.

"There used to be over 60 high-class whip makers in London about 12 years ago, but when I will have put my shutters up for the last time there will be only two or three left."

"Prince Christian, the duchess of Albany, Lord Londsdale and members of the royal houses of Russia, Italy, Germany and other continental countries have bought whips from me. So have many Indian rajahs."

Up till a few days ago Mr. Schomberg had nearly 30,000 sticks, none of which had been cut less than 17 years ago, stored above his shop for the making of whips. These he has given to his assistant Albert, who has worked for him for 26 years.

Nickel a By-Product.

There are no producing nickel mines in the United States. The output of nickel from domestic ores is merely a by-product from electrolytes of the copper refineries. Salts and metal equivalent to 328 short tons of metallic nickel were saved in domestic refineries in 1913 from both foreign and domestic ores. Nickel ore "imported for consumption," is mostly from the Canadian deposits.

Scotch Fuel Oil.

Fuel oil obtained from Scotch shale fields has been found highly suitable for the British navy and it is estimated that from 400,000 to 500,000 tons will be available annually for 150 years.

SENDING PICTURES BY WIRE

French Inventor Has Succeeded in Telegraphing Photograph From Bordeaux to Paris.

Edouard Belin, a French inventor, has succeeded in telegraphing a photograph from Bordeaux to Paris in the record time of four minutes.

M. Belin's process differs radically from Korn's method. Instead of using selenium he prepares a photographic plate, the basis of which is bichroma-tized gelatin and the surface of which is uneven. A small metal point, passing over the uneven surface of the plate, causes a variation of the electric current, which renders possible the transmission over a telegraph or telephone wire of the lights and shades of half-tone plates, and is attended with remarkable regularity and speed.

The most interesting feature of M.
Belin's invention is that it is possible to carry, about a small apparatus weighing about sixteen pounds and immediately attach it at any telephone station. This renders possible the telephoning of pictures over long distance.

In the experiment referred to a photograph 6 by 5 inches was sent. An hour was occupied in preparing the plate with the uneven surface, but only four minutes were occupied in the transmission of the photograph.

ELECTRICAL STREET CLEANER

Eighteen Battery-Driven Sprinkling and Scrubbing Machines Employed by City of Berlin.

The street cleaning department of Berlin, Germany, employs 18 battery-driven sprinkling and scrubbing machines. The total daily operating and maintenance cost is $4.41 each. The daily cost of each ten horse-drawn machine is $4.57. Each of the electrically driven machines cleans 55,496 square yards in the average eight-hour day, while each horse-drawn machine cleans 44,013 square yards. The former, therefore, accomplishes over 26 per cent more work at about four per cent less cost, or, in other words, are about thirty per cent more economical.—

Two women stopped and peered in.

MAKES GOOD CORD AND ROPE

Formation of Marketable Products From Wood Pulp Is a New Industry in Europe.

An industry which has attained considerable importance in Europe, is the making of cord and rope from wood-pulp. These new ropes are twisted out of thin threads made from the pulp. At the present time these ingenious fibre ropes are used more or less extensively in the foundries of Germany. The fine threads which make up these ropes are made by forcing the chemically-treated wood pulp or cellulose through very fine tubes with running water, in which they harden.

After they are dry they are perfectly pliable and somewhat elastic, and may be spun or twisted into any form whatever. These minute elongated threads are caught up as they are forced through the fine tubes and spun into ordinary silken threads, which are woven into a fabric resembling silk.

A French inventor discovered that paper may be cut into narrow strips several millimeters wide, and that after these have been steeped in certain chemicals which give them tenacity and durability, they may be rolled and twisted into threads, which may be worked up into fabrics of various kinds and put to a great variety of uses.

Another French chemist has discovered a way to make such fabrics, as well as ordinary paper, waterproof, and a German inventor has produced a good quality of thin paper practically waterproof.

LITTLE MAN HAD HIS OPINION

General Verdict of the Company Was That He Spoke From Experience More or Less Bitter.

Conversation had drifted once more to the ever-interesting subject of marriage. The smoking room was full, and almost every man had contributed something out of his own personal experience to the discussion.

Some said long engagements were better than short ones, some held that marriage was an utter failure, and others that it was the only thing that made life worth living.

One perky little person insisted that a man should be "master in his own house," but was violently opposed by a regular giant, who believed in "leaving things to the wife," and so on.

This subject, however, was sidetracked by somebody observing that it was curious to note how little men almost invariably married large women. At this, a very small, unhappy looking little man burst suddenly into life.

"No, sir; you are wrong!" he protested mildly. "In my opinion it is the big women who marry the little men!"

Annals of the Fiji Kings.
Tanoa, Cacobau's father and great-grandfather of the present Ratu, was one of the most villainous of all the kings who ruled in Bau. The history of his atrocities makes professional ogres like Nero and Catherine de Medici appear like martyred saints. At his death his son, Cacobau, who succeeded him, strangled his father's five wives, his own mother among them, in accordance with the custom of the land. Later in life, Cacobau embraced the new lotu—Christianity. From the date of his conversion he committed no more outrages and discarded all of his wives save one, whom he married with the church ceremony when both were baptized. His son, Ratu Abel, did not look very favorably upon the new religion, and mixed very little with foreigners, yet no charges of cannibalism or other cruelties were laid at his door. The present Ratu Dadavu is a well-educated man, and with his cousin Ratu Pope, attended the University of Sydney.—Christian Herald.

Detention Home.
The reason his name is James is because it isn't. If it were, his wife would identify him at once and there would be no end of trouble. He went to a physician the other day and said in so many words: "When a man has smallpox what should he do?" "Do you mean that you have smallpox?" was the frightened response. "If you have," said the doctor, without waiting for any further remarks, "you must go to the detention home at once."

Cigarette Smoked by George Sand.
A curious relic of George Sand has just been sold by public auction at Paris. It is a cigarette case that belonged to the author, which contains the charred end of a cigarette smoked by her at the house of Doctor Lallemand. In the case, too, as guarantee of the relic, is a note signed "Cauvert, engineer." "Cigarette smoked by George Sand at the house of Doctor Lallemand, member of the Institute, in the evening of November 8, 1846, at Paris."

Evidently From Satisfied Diner.
Philadelphia waiters must receive high tips if the statement of one of them was intended to appear plausible. He was trying to dispose of a $50 gold piece which had belonged to a collection of extremely rare coins. On being arrested for complicity in stealing the collection, the waiter asserted that the coin had been given to him as a tip by a guest at the hotel.

RECIPES FROM FRANCE

POPULAR DISHES IN THE LAND OF GOOD COOKING.

"Pot-au-Feu," National Soup, Delicious When Properly Made—Eggs With Cheese—Bouillabaisse Resembles American Chowder.

Pot-Au-Feu.—This may be called the national French soup. It is frequently found on American menus, but seldom cooked correctly. It is a delicious, nourishing soup, and a large pot of it can be utilized for several days. It should be made in a covered earthenware pot.

Take three pounds of round of beef, a large marrow bone, six carrots, two or three turnips, two leeks, a bunch of parsley, several cloves, a bay leaf and one lump of sugar. Put the beef into the pot and cover it with as many quarts of water as there are pounds of beef, add a little salt and let it boil up, then skim carefully and add a little cold water. Let it boil again, skim and then add the vegetables. Cover with the lid, allowing a little air to get in, and let cook over a good fire constantly at boiling point for several hours. When cooked, remove the meat and vegetables, skim the liquor and serve in a tureen with slices of bread. The vegetables may be served separately, and the meat which has been cooked in the pot may be used in many ways; stewed, cooked au gratin, is especially delicious served with a thick tomato sauce.

Eggs With Cheese.—This is a simple and delicious luncheon dish. Break as many fresh eggs as there are persons to be served, in a china baking dish; cover over with thick, fresh cream, season with salt and pepper, and sprinkle over with a thick coating of grated Parmesan cheese. Cook for five minutes in a hot oven. The cheese must be very hot and brown and the eggs well set.

Both of these recipes are in use in almost every French kitchen, and you will find them well worth adding to your recipe book. The pot-au-feu should, of course, be cooked on a coal range or in a fireless cooker, as seven hours of boiling over a gas range would add considerably to the cost of the soup. The egg and cheese dish takes only a few minutes to make, and is simplicity itself. The French serve this, and indeed the majority of their egg dishes, individually—one egg or two to a person cooked in ramequins or flat china egg dishes.

Bouillabaisse.—For this dish take four and a half pounds of fish—any large fish such as flounder or mullet—and a small lobster. Cut the fish into pieces three or four inches square, put them into a large saucepan with a pound of sliced onion, two cloves, two bay leaves, a small bunch of parsley, two small pieces of garlic, two shallots, and two carrots, four large tablespoons of olive oil, and pepper-corns, one small chili, and two quarts of water. Cover and let cook for 25 minutes. When cooked, pass the liquor through a colander and stir in a teaspoonful of powdered saffron. Place some slices of slightly toasted bread in a deep platter or tureen, spread fish on them, pour the liquor over and serve.

Cream Meringue.—Whip up some whites of eggs with powdered sugar, allowing one pound of sugar to twelve whites of eggs. When a thick paste is formed, spread some sheets of white paper upon a making tray, and put a tablespoonful of paste on the paper at intervals of two inches. Lightly dredge with powdered sugar and cook in a slow oven. When the meringues are cooked, remove them carefully from the paper and lightly crush in the centers with a spoon. Before serving fill the centers with whipped cream.

Cream of Ham Salad.
Soak one-half envelope of gelatin in one-half cupful water until soft, then add one cupful of boiling stock and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Mix this with two cupfuls of boiled ham, chopped fine, season highly with paprika, mustard and a little catsup and put aside until it cools and just begins to thicken, then stir in lightly the stiffly beaten white of one egg and one-half cupful whipped cream. Turn into wet molds and set in a cold place until firm. Turn out on lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise.

Casserole of Chicken.
Clean and joint a tender spring chicken. Put into a frying pan three tablespoons of butter and fry in this a small onion and a carrot, both cut into tiny dice. When these vegetables are lightly brown, turn into the casserole add to them two cupfuls of clear soup stock, in which three bay leaves and a little thyme have been boiled and then remove. In this consommé lay the jointed chicken, put the closely fitting cover on the casserole and set in a steady oven. It should cook for an hour.

Labels for Silverware.
It is a great nuisance to have to open up all the rolls of extra silver to find what one wants. By pasting labels with the name on each on the flannel covering, one can find the article desired at a moment's notice and it is at the same time the cheapest means of marketing.

Making Your Own Washcloth.
A satisfactory washcloth is made of two or three thicknesses of mosquito netting. The edges are finished by crocheting a scallop in pink or blue.

VARIOUS USES FOR GELATIN

Properly Plays an Important Part in the Preparation of All Kinds of Desserts.

Gelatin plays an important part in many a recipe. A tasty dessert is made thus: Dissolve the contents of one envelope of granulated gelatin in one pint of boiling water; stir it to melt the powder and then pour it into a bowl, and as soon as it starts to "jell" beat with a rotary egg-beater until it is light. Then pour in half a pint of rich, sweet milk, a pinch of salt, two ounces of crushed stale almond macaroons; if this is soft, put it on the ice until it stiffens again, then add a few drops of sweet almond flavoring and one gill of granulated sugar. Wet a mold, pour the water out of it and refill with the mixture; put it in the refrigerator to ripen.

Serve with plain or whipped cream and lady fingers.

With Fruit.—Fill individual glasses a little more than half with mixed fruit, fresh or canned; drain off all juice; make one pint of orange or lemon gelatin; as soon as cold put it by spoonfuls over the fruit; serve very cold, with cream and sponge cake.

Prune Delight.—Wash, soak and cook in only enough water to cover them one pound of good prunes; while they cook put in a pinch of salt, two inches of stick cinnamon; grated yellow rind of an orange and one lemon; six whole cloves, one gill of strained lemon juice and one gill of brown sugar. As soon as the prunes are very soft stir in one package of granulated gelatin previously dissolved in cold water. There should be over one pint of liquid. Stir until melted. When cold serve with cream and soft gingerbread.

COLD ENTREE HARD TO BEAT

Mousse of Sweetbread Just the Thing for the Table When the Weather Is Hot.

Line a plain mold with pale aspic jelly, dotted with diamond-shaped pieces of truffle. Blanch and braise a large sweetbread, and when it is cold, pound it in a mortar with eight ounces of the white meat of a boiled fowl and a tablespoonful of pate de foie gras, and then pass the mixture through a fine sieve. Bring a large cupful of milk to a boil with a small chopped onion, a dozen white peppers, a blade of mace, a few thin strips of lemon peel and a tpin slice of fat bacon. Simmer twenty minutes and then strain over a tablespoonful of butter rubbed smooth in two of flour. Stir quickly until thick, season with salt and white pepper, and dissolve in half an ounce of gelatin. Pour into a basin with the sifted chicken and sweetbread and two tablespoonfuls of sherry.

Whip a pint of cream, and as soon as the sweetbread mixture is cool, stir it in and add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Pour the mousse at once into the molds lined with aspic, and leave it on ice to chill. Turn out on a flat platter and garnish with alternate slices of tomato and cucumber and a bunch of watercress here and there.

Green Gooseberry Pudding.
This may be made the same as rhubarb pudding with a suet paste, and boiled, steamed, or made in a deep pie dish with good ordinary pie paste with a little cornstarch mixed with the sugar to thicken the juice. When the gooseberry filling is thick enough to support the mixture, lift off the crust and pour in a layer of cornstarch custard cooked in a double-boiler, the whites of the eggs reserved for a meringue to cover the top. The top crust may be served at another meal spread with canned peaches or pears. Or instead of a top crust, cover the dish with another pie dish until the gooseberries are done. Another way is to replace the top crust and return pie to the oven until the custard mixture is cooked quite firm. The pie is then served cold with upper crust, without a meringue.

Chocolate Fudge.
Three cupfuls of light brown sugar, two squares of chocolate, a cupful of new milk, one-half teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Cook in a granite pan until it threads; add a lump of butter the size of a walnut, and when thoroughly mixed remove from the fire, add a tablespoonful of sweet cream and a teaspoonful of vanilla and beat till it begins to thicken. Pour into shallow buttered pans and when nearly cold cut into squares.

Mistress Ford's Green Currant Pie.
Line a deep pie dish with paste. Fill with green currants and sugar in alternate layers, using at least two-thirds as much sugar as fruit. Heap the fruit up well as it shrinks in cooking, and shake over the top a tablespoonful of flour to thicken the juice. Cut slits in the top crust or prick with a fork. Bake in a moderate oven from thirty to forty-five minutes.

Delicious Pie.
Line a deep pie plate with a rich crust, rub crust with flour and put in a layer of dates, ten to twelve to an ordinary pie; they must be stoned and cut in pieces; then fill the plate with sliced rhubarb, three heaping tablespoonfuls of sugar mixed with one spoonful of flour; put on top crust.

To Clean a Clothelaine.
A clothelaine may be conveniently cleaned by wrapping it around a washboard and thoroughly scrubbing it in soap suds.

ARMOR COVERS VITAL SPOTS

Pieces of Mail Sewed Between Cloth and Lining of Coat Affords Means of Protection.

Since the days of dueling and promiscuous stabbing have passed, one would think that armor was no longer needed, but a California woman thinks otherwise. She has designed an armored coat that may not have a general sale, but will be a comfortable garment for persons threatened by the Black Hand or other blood-thirsty organization. It may also be useful for fencers. In outward appearance this coat is not different from an ordinary coat, but between the cloth and the lining are sewed pieces of mail, consisting of small metal plates joined together in such a way that they are more or less flexible. This mail can be distributed over practically the entire coat or it can be sewed in to protect only the vital parts of the body.

MAKE ARTIFICIAL SAPPHIRES

Stones Have All the Properties, Chemical, Physical and Optical, of the Genuine Gems.

News comes from Paris that at last artificial sapphires have been produced, after many unsuccessful experiments.

Artificial rubies are now an old story. The artificial stones have all the properties, chemical, physical and optical, of the natural gems. The only way in which experts can detect them is by finding them too perfect, as the natural gems have microscopic irregularities and inclosed imperfections that are absent from the artificial product.

The stumbling block in the making of sapphires has been the color. Either the experimenters could not produce desired blue, or the stone would have a crystalline structure that made its detection easy.

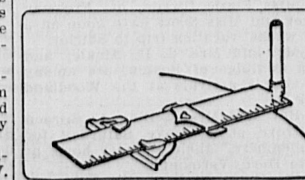

Now, however, M. Verneuil has submitted to the academy of sciences stones which he has made, colored with oxide of titanium, which, after a severe examination, are pronounced identical with true sapphires, though it is just possible that cutting them in gem form may reveal some irregularity of reflection or refraction.

MAKE CIRCLE WITH SQUARE

Seemingly Impossible Performance by New Tool—Advantages of the Improvement Shown.

The seemingly impossible achievement of making a circle by means of a square is accomplished by a new device which has been lately patented by a resident of New Britain, Conn. A view of this implement is given herewith and anyone who may be the least bit familiar with the construction and use of a T-square will see at once how it is done and also the advantages of the improvement.

A flat, graduated rule has a socket at one end, designed to hold a point such as a piece of lead or lead pencil, and the length of the rule is traversed by a metal slide, designed to be secured at any point and adapted to perform the ordinary functions of a square. The slide is supplied with a projecting point which is used in making the circle in conjunction with the lead or pencil point, as shown in the illustration.

Circle Made With Square.

Work of Aviators.
French aviators flew 8,500,000 miles last year, as compared with 2,000,000 miles in 1912; 136,000 hours were occupied in flight, as compared with 39,000 hours, and 48,000 passengers were carried, four times as many as the previous year.

LOCKED CORK FOR BOTTLES

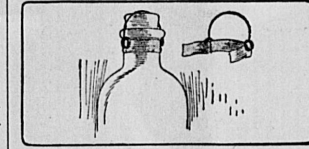

Key Takes Place of Corkscrew With This New Stopper—Safety Afforded to Poison Phials.

An ingenious method of corking bottles has been invented which is applicable to the bottling of more expensive liquors. Chambers' Journal states. This latest device comprises the familiar cork made to standard sizes so as to fit bottles of varying capacity and shapes and provided with a patent metallic double cap. The cork is driven into the bottle in the usual manner; but, instead of a corkscrew, a small key is used for its withdrawal. In the metallic cap is a small slot for insertion of the key, which is slightly depressed. This causes the upper part of the cap to fly upward by means of a spring. This movable disk, which slides upon a substantial though slender shaft, serves as a grip for the fingers, so that a steady and direct pull draws the cork without damaging it. Consequently, when some of the contents of the bottle has been poured out, the cork may be replaced and driven home, the bottle being thus sealed as tightly as it was originally. To all intents and purposes it is the application of the Yale lock used for doors, etc. The cork cannot be drawn without the key, so that tampering with the contents or improper use is impossible, because the key is in the possession of the owner or some responsible person. The drawing of a cork thus becomes an easy operation, and destruction of the cork is prevented. Although the stopper has been designed specially for the liquor, wine and spirit trade, it at the same time completely solves the vexed question of securing the safety of bottles containing poisonous liquids, as a bottle stoppered with this new appliance cannot be opened without the key; and as this is in safe keeping, premeditation is required to obtain the contents.

GUARD FOR POISON BOTTLES

Gummed Band Carrying Wire Loop Gives Warning That Phial Contains Dangerous Substances.

A very simple device for conveying a warning that a bottle contains poisonous substances has been patented. It consists of a gummed band carrying a wire loop, the ends of which, terminating in spring collars, are firmly fastened in the texture of the band, says Popular Mechanics. The wire loop is normally held over the top of the cork, but may be pulled back with the forefinger when the cork is to be removed, and springs back to upright position. It is obvious that the cork cannot be removed without indicating the nature of the contents of the bottle. The device is applied by simply moistening the gummed side of the band and sticking it around the neck of the bottle.

NOTES OF SCIENCE AND INVENTION

An attachment by which any camera can be used to enlarge negatives has been patented.

It is said that a hair from the tail of the horse is the strongest single animal thread known.

Heroult, the French scientist, who made aluminum commercially valuable, died recently at Paris.

A new firebucket is equipped with an automatic device which announces that it is empty when the contents evaporate.

More than 400 patents have been issued by the United States for devices intended to harness the power of sea waves.

London scientists are investigating a rare mineral found in rocks in Wales that radiates a faint light in its natural state.

The Chinese government is sending students to the Philippines to study scientific forestry under the insular government.

At 500 feet below the surface of the water the amount of illumination is about the same as that on the surface on a clear but moonless night.

Gold-filled teeth have been found in the jaws of skeletons exhumed in Pompeii.

The use of powdered coal in an Ohio steel mill has resulted in increased economy of operation and lessening the smoke evil.

Ties made of a species of native hardwood have been used on the Panama railroad without renewal for more than fifty years.

An acetylene burner used with ordinary coal gas will give a hot flame for soldering, almost equal to a blow-pipe.

A STRONG COMPANY

The Massachusetts Insurance Department has just completed the report of its triennial examination as required by the statutes of the commonwealth, of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston. The examination is as of September 30th last and covers in great detail the entire financial and agency operations of the company. The report confirms the annual statements made annually to the policy holders by the Directors of the company and refers to the immense detail of its accounting as "well devised work, carefully and accurately done throughout."

The work of examining the mortgage loan department alone demanded the scrutiny of over 10,000 separate loans aggregating over $46,000,000. The Insurance Department in referring to the satisfactory manner in which the John Hancock handles its payments for death claims that "It is the company's practice to err, if at all, on the side of leniency toward the claimant."

The examiners in calling attention to the "remarkable growth" of the institution since its last examination says: "Its annual income since 1909 has increased from 22 millions to over 30 millions; its assets from 65 to 105 millions and its insurance in force from 527 to 712 millions of dollars."

The simple terse sentence with which the Insurance Department summarizes the report of the company needs no further comment: "The John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company is thoroughly organized and is honestly and efficiently administered."

MEEHAN DROPPED FROM PAYROLL

Mayor Childs on Monday ordered the name of Police officer Bernard Meehan dropped from the police roll and that of officer David Neagle substituted. As there was a difference in the rate of pay of these two men Comptroller Daboll refused to approve the matter and the mayor then ordered Neagle's name put on the roll at the rate of $2.75 per day. As this violated the law prohibiting any reduction in the rate of pay in the civil service, it was finally decided by His Honor to drop both names from the payroll, altho both men are still working for the city.

NEW BISCUIT DAINTIES

RECOMMENDED AS VARIATION FROM STANDARD RECIPES.

Appetizing With "Filling" of Stiff Orange Marmalade—Nut-Drop Confections Popular With Everybody—Clover Biscuits.

Light, flaky, biscuits, temptingly browned, always receive a smiling welcome at the table. But have you ever tried any variations of your standard recipe? I have experimented and have concocted some goodies that disappear like cake, writes a contributor to the Woman's World. They are delicious not only for the home meal but for lunches. And the housekeeper finds them just the thing to serve with chocolate as light appetizing refreshments to guests.

Orange two-story biscuits are my own idea. To make them, sift together two cups of bread flour, two teaspoonsful baking powder, half a teaspoonful salt and a tablespoonful of sugar. Beat one entire egg and add two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk for wetting the dough. No shortening is used. Knead the dough lightly and roll thinner than biscuits are usually made. Cut the rounds with a cookie cutter or the open end of a pound baking powder can. From half of the rounds remove the centers with a smaller cutter. Spread the whole rounds with melted butter, lay one of the dough rings on each and fill the centers with stiff orange marmalade before baking.

Nut-drop biscuits were my next successful trial at making "goodies." For them, sift together a pint of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonsful of baking powder. Rub in a generous tablespoonful of butter and stir to the consistency of a thick batter, using sweet milk to moisten. Add half a cupful of chopped nuts and drop the dough with a spoon upon a greased baking sheet, leaving an inch between "drops" for swelling.

Sandwich biscuits require four cups of flour, four tablespoonsful of baking powder, a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonsful of meat drippings, half a cupful of milk, and water to complete the wetting to the ordinary biscuit consistency. Roll the dough thin, like pie crust, cut, spread half of the rounds with butter, add a filling of seasoned, finely ground, cooked ham, then lay on the covers and bake.

Clover biscuits are dainty mouthfuls. Use any standard recipe for regular biscuit dough. Cut into rounds an inch in diameter. (I use the center of my round loaf cake pan, inverted, as a cutter.) Place the tiny rounds in three in greased gem cake pans and glaze the tops with egg yolk mixed with a little water. When baked, the group of three from each mold will come out in trefoli shape. They are nice to serve with cheese.

Hot-cross biscuits taste good at any season of the year. Their ingredients consist of: One quart flour, one teaspoonful salt, four teaspoonsful baking powder, half a cupful of butter, half a teaspoonful each of ground cinnamon and nutmeg, one tablespoonful finely chopped citron or candied orange peel, half a cupful of currants, one egg, and sweet milk to make a firm dough. Some brands of flour absorb more moisture than others, so the amount of milk or water used for biscuits is not absolute. Roll an inch thick, cut in large rounds, cut two gashes at right angles across the top of each, and moisten the tops with milk before baking. Some cooks like to fill the cross cuts with sugar.

Poached Eggs in Muffin Rings.
When frying or poaching eggs for breakfast, slip into the pan a muffin ring for each egg, break the egg into it, and when it has set as much as desired, lift it out with a cake lifter, ring and all, then remove the ring. The white of the egg is in a nice circle, and not only looks better and is tenderer because it is thicker, but it is easier to serve. The washing of the muffin rings is not as much trouble as trying to "slide" a broken egg to a plate from a hot frying pan.

Mixed Fruit Ice.
Three oranges, three lemons, three bananas, one cupful dried apricots soaked several hours and cooked, three cupfuls of sugar, three cupfuls of water. Squeeze the juice from the oranges and lemons. Put the bananas and apricots through a sieve. Cook the sugar and water together to make a thin sirup (ten minutes). Add the juice, pulp, and freeze. Very inexpensive and good.

Prune Ice Cream.
Prepare cream same as for vanilla ice cream. Drain and seed carefully cooked prunes. Rub through the puree sieve of a colander, or they may be even chopped very fine. For every quart of sweet cream use one pint of the prunes, unsweetened, and one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Freeze, pack and let ripen for one hour.

What to Do With the Covers.
Save the covers of cocoa or mustard boxes to use for cleaning frying pans and saucepans. Hammer down sharp side. Scrape with the sharp lower edge. The rounding corners of the covers fit in the round pans much better than anything you can buy for the purpose.

When Making Potato Salad.
If potatoes are being cooked for salad boil them with the skins on. They will be less soggy.

ECONOMY IN THE KITCHEN

Croquettes of odds and ends are made of any bits of good food that happen to be left over from one or more meals. For example, take bits of left-over roast or chops of any kind, cold hard boiled eggs, a little cold potato. Chop well and season, mix in one raw egg, a very little flour and milk, then make in the form of croquettes and brown in hot fat. They are really excellent.

Another left-over dish can be made of scraps of hash, cold rice, boiled oatmeal left from breakfast or any kind of fresh or salt meat and bread crumbs may be used. These should be put together and mixed with milk, but care must be taken so as not to have them too dry or too moist to cook in shape. Serve on square of buttered toast with celery.

To use left over roast lamb, take it and cut away all the bone and gristle and grind through a food chopper or chop fine in hash bowl, mix with six sprigs of parsley and two stalks of celery. Add crumbled soda crackers, one tablespoonful of softened butter, a little salt and pepper, one spoonful of minced onion and enough milk or water to make moist and then beat in one egg and form into a steak. Put in a buttered pan, place in a moderate oven and roast for 25 minutes, basting with melted butter or good drippings. Just before the last five minutes is up spread a generous layer of fine bread crumbs mixed with egg yolk over the top and sides to brown, serve on a hot platter and garnish with sliced lemon or parsley.

RAGOUT MAKES SAVORY DISH

With Veal, or Any Other Meat, French Cook Turns Out Concoction That Is a Triumph.

A writer in a French newspaper lauds a ragout of veal (or other meat), declaring it as savory and nourishing a dish as any one could desire. It is also said to be a most economical dish for a family, and this is how the French cook prepares it:

She uses about two pounds of the shoulder of veal, which she cooks for 20 minutes or so in a small iron pot, with salt, pepper and butter, until it is well browned. She turns it over from time to time. Once she adds a small wineglassful of water to prevent burning. (She is very chary of spoiling good things by water dilution, and in the iron pot there is little danger of burning.) She then sprinkles and stirs in well two teaspoonsful of flour—that is, she sprinkles it over the meat and turns the meat over and over; then she adds four large carrots cut into small dice, four onions (sliced), several pieces of parsley, about two cupfuls of peas and a glassful of water. She cooks a plateful of small, uncooked potatoes, cut in half. From time to time she stirs it, and the savory steam that arises at each removal of the lid is a promise amply fulfilled when partaking of it later. Other meats than veal can be used, and left-over vegetables of any sort; but what makes it good is the way it is done.

Marmalade.
Cut perfectly ripe pineapples in slices and peel, taking care to remove all eyes. It will be found a much easier plan to peel after slicing than to attempt to handle the whole fruit at once. Cut the pine in pieces about the size of strawberries, or you may chop it coarsely in the chopping bowl. Measure an equal quantity of hulled strawberries. Cook the pineapple in its own juice for 15 minutes, then add the strawberries and cook five minutes. Measure and add sugar, using three-quarters of a pint of sugar to a pint of fruit. Cook for an hour very slowly, pour in tumblers.

Rhubarb and Apple Jelly.
Cut the rhubarb into small pieces and heat over a slow fire without adding water. Quarter and pare good sour apples and heat in just enough water to cover, as for plain apple jelly. Strain the juice from both and measure. Boil 20 minutes. Allow three-quarters of a pint of sugar to every pint of juice. Heat in oven, add to the boiling juice and let boil ten minutes longer, or until the mixture will jelly when dropped on a saucer. Pour in glasses and let stand in the sun a few hours.

Shadow Proof.
Of interest to housekeepers who like to use a two colored window shade, or a "duplex" shade as it is called, are the new shadow-proof shades which are made of a patented cloth, which is absolutely opaque. However strong the rays of the sun may be as they beat on the new patented material, it is claimed that the color on the outside will not show through. They come in all color combinations, in plain colors and in stripes.

Aid in Darning.
The work of darning on huckaback may be lessened if the material is first treated as follows: Lay the huckaback right side down on a Turkish towel and press with a hot iron until thoroughly dry. This will make the surface threads stand up so that the work can be very easily picked up with the needle.

To Keep Fruit Cake Moist.
If you want to keep fruit cake moist for a long time, put a piece of bread in the tin box with it.

BEING A GOOD FELLOW

By E. V. COTTMAN.

(Copyright.)
Jerry Deems, pickpocket and second-story man, paused a moment in his delicate work of removing a piece of glass from the dining-room window in one of the fashionable houses on Riverside drive. He listened carefully, but could not hear a sound. Reassured by the favorable conditions, Jerry cautiously continued his operations, and in a few seconds a semicircular piece was lifted out of the pane, a cautious hand slipped through and sprung the catch, and Jerry's portly form struggled through the open window.

It was long after midnight, and he was tired. This was not the first house Jerry had visited that night. He had made a few calls in another part of the city with satisfactory results, and by all means should now have been safely making for his quarters. But Jerry possessed a trait that many of us have—that of not letting well enough alone. This he soon realized, for when he straightened up to get his bearings, the light was suddenly flashed on, and he found himself looking into the steely mouth of a six-shooter in the hands of a tall, slender woman.

"Surprised, are you?" asked a cool, mocking voice. "I think I am the one to be surprised. My visitors do not usually enter through the window."

She was dressed in a loose pink bathrobe, and had a lace scarf twisted about her head.

"Don't move," she said. "Now put your hands up on the table." Jerry did so, and she looked him over scornfully with her bright eyes.

"Well, start the ball rollin'," said Jerry, who was getting disgusted with the whole affair. "Does you want to know what church I goes to, or would you like to know if I'm married or single?"

The lady smiled. "Neither," she said, "but I would like to know why an able-bodied man like you can't find something better to do than sneaking into other people's houses in the night? Isn't there plenty of work for a man to do that is honest and respectable?"

Jerry squirmed uneasily in his chair. "Cut it out, mum," he said, raising a wrathful pair of eyes to hers. "Cut it out! I didn't come out tonight to listen to a sermon on honesty. If you're goin' to call de cops, do it, but hold yer jaw, fer I ain't in no humor just about now to be guded."

"But you haven't answered me," persisted the lady. "Why don't you work?"

"Work!" broke in Jerry. "You're a perty dame to be talkin' about work. Have you ever worked in yer life? What do you know 'bout work and about being broke?"

"I know more about it than you think," she returned, letting a little warmth creep into her dark eyes. "For that is precisely the position I find myself in at present."

"You broke?" exclaimed Jerry incredulously, throwing his eyes around the richly furnished room.

"Nothing but the truth. We are ruined. My husband's fortune is swept away, this house is mortgaged, my jewels—even my very dresses—have been sold."

"Is what yer givin' me on the level, lady?" asked Jerry.

"It certainly is," she replied. "Can't you see how hard it is for me? One can never judge by appearances."

"Come," she said, rousing herself, "it is time you were off."

He opened his eyes in astonishment. "Yer don't mean ter let me go?" he asked.

"Certainly," she answered, with a faint smile.

Jerry looked at her in a perplexed manner. "Say, lady," he said in a voice shaking with feeling, "I'm sure sorry yer up against it, and since you are so white to a fellow, I'd like to give you a souvenir myself. Yer see," taking a small, carefully wrapped bundle from his pocket and opening it, "so if you will kindly accept this necklace," holding up a beautiful string of diamonds and emeralds, "I'd be mighty proud ter give it ter you. So long, and good luck," he whispered, as he swung himself softly from the window and disappeared.

Several minutes passed. The lady stood holding the necklace in her hand, watching the light flash and scintillate on the gleaming stones. She pursed up her lips and gave a low whistle.

"What a beauty!" she cried. "Worth $5,000 at least! Oh, the fool, the fool!"

Slowly she unwound the lace scarf from a sleek, black head, closely cropped, and slipped out of the enveloping folds of the pink bathrobe, standing revealed a young man, lithe and slender.

"Lucky for me I came through the bathroom and heard him first," he said to himself, bringing up a dark lantern and a mask from somewhere under the table. With one hand on the electric button he looked cautiously about, then turned out the light, climbed softly through the window, and was gone into the night.

EASY TO KEEP FOOD FRESH

Fruit and Vegetables May Be Bought While Cheap and Preserved Almost Indefinitely.

It is much more injurious to food to keep it in a box with a scant supply of ice than to leave it covered on a pantry shelf where there is a good supply of fresh air. If one must be economical with ice wrap each cake in a piece of old woolen blanket, which must be removed and boiled in water and baking soda once a week.

Fruit and vegetables may be bought at the height of their season, when they are at their best and cheapest, and by simple and safe methods kept until a later time, when they will be more of a delicacy because out of season and more expensive to buy, and more than likely not in the market at all.

Lettuce, parsley and all other green things may be kept deliciously fresh if first washed in cold water, shaken and then packed in a tin pail that has a very tight cover, so that the air may not penetrate to them, and set in a cool place. In the case of lettuce, when the cover is removed the leaves will pop up and you will find them as crisp and fresh as if they had just come from the garden.

Even lettuce that has wilted to a sorry state will revive wonderfully if subjected to a few hours of such treatment. To purify greens that are to be eaten raw, use a pinch of boracic acid powder in the water in which they are washed.

Tomatoes picked when just ripe and firm and attached to the stems will keep almost indefinitely with no noticeable loss of freshness if covered with brine made by dissolving a teaspoonful of salt in a gallon of pure, fresh water. Place them in an earthen vessel. A mixture of water and vinegar will also keep them fresh for a long time.

To treat cabbage in order to have it retain all its fresh, crisp, clean qualities for a long time, strip off the root and old outside leaves clear down to a compact head. Take two or three thicknesses of clean newspapers and wrap up each cabbage in a tight, neat little bundle. Place in a box or barrel.

If you will take freshly gathered green corn on the cob or carefully shelled peas or beans and dip them in boiling water, then dry them in a room in which there is a free circulation of air, they will keep for a long time and retain all their freshness and flavor.

WASH THE CELERY STALKS

Advice Given by the Department of Agriculture Should Be Heeded by Every Housewife.

Since the United States Department of Agriculture has discovered that it is practically impossible to bring satisfactory celery to market unless the plants have been sprayed with bordeaux mixture, or the salts of copper declared injurious for use in food products, two warnings have been issued, one to the housewives telling them to wash the celery before using it, and the other to the farmers telling them that the danger in using this blight preventative was due to a faulty spraying apparatus. It should be spread at high pressure to make a fine mist instead of in a stream which settles on the leaves and runs down the stalks. In this way it settles in the roots and is not washed away by the rain, giving the celery a blue look.

However, even if the spray is properly used the department of agriculture advises the consumer to break the bunches and wash and scrub the stalks before they are eaten. Chemical analysis proves that his cleansing removes nearly all the copper left by the spray and prevents injury to those eating the celery.

Rhubarb Ice.
Use the red-stalk variety of rhubarb. Wash well, cut finely and stew until soft in plenty of water, making a thin sauce. Then strain and measure. Add a cupful of sugar to a pint of juice. Stir until the sugar is dissolved and the mixture is cold, then freeze. A dash of orange peel may be cooked with the rhubarb, and the juice added to the cold mixture. This may be made into more elaborate ices by adding meringues—plain or marshmallow or almond, candied orange peel or cherries and various other dainty touches will modernize the original idea.

Helpful Suggestions.
After you have washed and starched your curtains spread on the lawn with a tooth pick in each scallop.

To remove ink from white clothes soak in sour milk and wash as usual.

To take out mildew soak in chloride of lime and put in the sun.

Use peroxide on scorched linens and put in the hot sun.

For green grass stain use molasses and wash.

To remove paint from your clothes soak well in turpentine and wash while wet.

Raspberry Water Ice.
Press raspberries through a fine hair sieve—enough of them to make three pints of juice. Add one pound of powdered sugar, the juice of one large lemon, and one teaspoonful of raspberry extract. Then freeze.

Lobster Creams.
Whip one-half a pint of cream stiff, season it highly with cayenne and salt; cut up half a boiled lobster and mix with cream. Put into cases. Garnish with parsley and some lobster coral.

Baked Eggs in Peppers.
The canned red peppers (pimentos) are best for this dish. Butter a cup, put in a whole pepper, drop in an egg, sprinkle with salt and buttered breadcrumbs. Bake until the egg is set.

OLD-TIME DELICACIES

SUITABLE DESSERTS FOR USE DURING "GREEN" SEASON.

Rhubarb Compote Always a Favorite With Our Mothers and Grandmothers—English Rhubarb Pudding—Apple and Pie Plant Pie.

(By LIDA AMES WILLIS.)
In response to several recent inquiries for recipes for rhubarb and gooseberry dishes, such as mother or grandmother "used to make," the following list has been compiled:

Rhubarb Compote.—This is Aunt Betty Martin's recipe: Make a rich sirup by adding sugar to the water in which long strips of orange peel have been boiling until tender, allowing two oranges to five pounds of rhubarb. Drop into the hot sirup a single layer of tender rhubarb cut in three-inch lengths, and cook gently until clear. Remove with skimmer and add another layer. Use tender red stalks that do not require peeling, if you grow your own plants.

Baked Rhubarb.—Aunt Betty's grandniece sends this old-time recipe: Wash and peel the stalks and cut in inch pieces, place in a covered pitting or bean pot, sprinkle each layer well with white sugar, allowing at least a cupful to a quart of rhubarb. Bake in moderately hot oven about an hour and a half. In olden times this was placed, with the baking, in the Dutch oven.

Old English Rhubarb Pudding.—Make a suet crust with one cupful of finely chopped suet, a pinch of salt and two cupfuls of flour tossed well together. Then mix with just enough water to make a dough. Do not handle much. Roll into a sheet, line a buttered baking dish with the dough, reserving enough to cover the top. Wash, wipe and pare off the outside skin from six stalks of rhubarb and cut into small pieces. Fill the basin with the suet, strewing a cupful of moist sugar through it. Cover with the suet, pinching the edges together, tie up in a cloth, well floured inside, put into a deep saucepan and boil for two and a half hours continuously, or place in a steamer and steam for two hours, first cutting a hole in the middle of the top crust to allow the steam to escape. When done, turn from the basin, if you wish, and serve with sugar or a hard sauce as you prefer.

Apple and Pie Plant Pie.—This is a recipe from Missouri: Use equal quantities of tart apples and pie plant, or garden rhubarb, and a good pie paste. Peel and slice the fruit and fill an earthen dish heaping, covering thickly with sugar, letting it sift through the fruit. Wet edges of dish, roll the pastry about a quarter of an inch thick and cover the pie with it, being careful not to press the edges of the paste. Cut two or three little slits in the pastry and bake for three-quarters of an hour in a moderately hot oven, or until the fruit is quite done. Sift the powdered sugar over the top of the pie and serve hot as a pudding, or cold.

Rhubarb Lemonade.—When you have rhubarb juice left over from stewed fruit you will find it a nice substitute for lemonade, or mixed with orange juice it may be frozen and served as a refreshing and cooling iced.

Uses for Benzine.
Buy one gallon of benzine. Collect all the kid gloves, white kid gloves or slippers, silks, and coat collars that need cleaning with benzine. Put some benzine in two basins, one for washing (washing the most delicate articles first) and use the other for rinsing. When the dirt has settled in the basins, carefully pour off into a jug, and break up into it a 10-cent cake of ice camphor.

Let this stand a day or two until thoroughly dissolved, and use in an oil feeder over the beds, picture frames, mop boards, and any furniture around the bed.

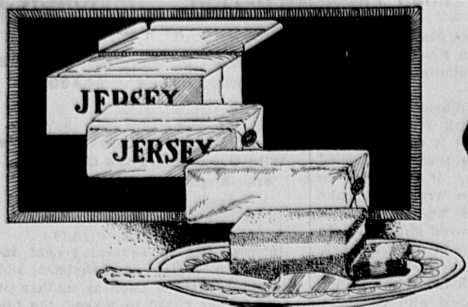

The benzine will quickly dry, leaving no trace of stain.

Rice Apples.
To one pint of boiled rice add, while hot, half-cupful of thick, white sauce, the well-beaten yolk of one egg, half-teaspoonful of salt, three tablespoonsful of grated cheese and a dash of cayenne; set aside until cold; shape in form of small apples, roll in flour, egg and crumbs, fry in deep fat, drain on brown paper; insert a clove at both stem and blossom end of each apple.

Green Pepper Catsup.
Take the seeds from five pounds of green peppers and put into a large preserving kettle. Add two large or three smaller onions, chopped fine, and one-half teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves, all-spice and mace. Pour in vinegar until the contents of the kettle are well covered, and simmer gently for three hours. Rub through a sieve and when cool bottle.

For the Pieplant Season.
Prepare pieplant in the usual way for pies. Then put it in an enameled basin and cover it with cold water. Place on the range where it will heat slowly until it reaches the boiling point. Remove and drain. This takes out the rank flavor and acid.

Baked Eggs in Peppers.
The canned red peppers (pimentos) are best for this dish. Butter a cup, put in a whole pepper, drop in an egg, sprinkle with salt and buttered breadcrumbs. Bake until the egg is set.

SOME EXCELLENT SUGGESTIONS

Correspondent Advocates New Park On Charles River and School Yards For Playgrounds

To the GRAPHIC:—
“Now that the base ball season is over and the young boys who play it are scattered for their vacation, it is a good time to consider calmly the question of spaces for that game and see if the demand for more room for that sport is really needed and whether there are not other claims to be considered before buying new spaces for that purpose.”

“First—Just consider what facilities for base ball and tennis are open to the boys of this part of the city now. There is the large space of Cabot Park, the large playground at the foot of Boyd and Morse street, the High School playground for the older ones. If this is not enough, if more room is needed, why are not the grounds of the Underwood and Bigelow schools and the school on Thornton and Pearl streets put to the use of the pupils to play in?”

“In the rear of the Underwood school there is ample room for a playground nearly, if not quite, as large as on Farlow Park, for the younger children, only requiring wire screens to protect the windows of the school grounds adjoining. The basement too is there for all their bats, balls, nets, whatever they need to play with. Why cannot the grounds of the Bigelow school be made into a very good playground for base ball and tennis? There must be room for at least two tennis courts in the rear of the house and room on the north side of the building for a good playground, and on the south with some grading and a retaining wall on Arlington street, narrowing up the needlessly wide concrete walks, with a wire fence to keep the ball within reasonable bounds, an ample base ball diamond could be had at a small expense. The paraphernalia of their games in the basements of the house.”

“If the rear of the Underwood school house is used for this purpose it would be better than to have the children play in Farlow Park, as their games interfere with the little ones who come with their mothers or nurses, who rest while the children run about on the green grass and walks, to say nothing of the older ones, who like to sit under the shade of the trees on the few seats that are scattered about. Certainly some attempt ought to be made to make the yard of the school house on Thornton and Pearl streets a fit place for those children who live in that thickly settled section to play in.”

“Then too, could not some scheme be devised by which the use of the Y. M. C. A. grounds could be used by the boys and girls of this neighborhood. Part of the grounds are never used at all. This might be given for that purpose. A Christian spirit might be shown in this way.”

“It is proposed to bring poor children from Boston occasionally to play here. A good thing, but why are children, who have the misfortune to live in Newton, denied this privilege?”

“Are there not places from which gravel has been taken for the highways that might at trifling expense, be turned into playgrounds? So much for the demand for playgrounds for base ball.”

“Now comes the question of open spaces, parks if you want to call them so, for the “grown-ups.” Do we realize how little open ground there is now unoccupied and how fast all open lots are being built upon.

“Those who have lived here some years have seen houses going up everywhere and no longer are there open spaces where they can wander about as they could not long ago. Every year takes away the chance for any open space for a park near the center of the town.”

We ought, the Newton Improvement Society, ought to look ahead and plan for those who come after us. Now is the time and now is the chance for Newton or this part of Newton, called the “Corner,” to have a rarely beautiful little park on the Charlesbank road, perhaps two or three acres, with some trees, a lovely little brook and a chance to make a walk on the river bank along the reservation of the Metropolitan Commission, for perhaps half a mile, that would be far prettier than the esplanade in Boston along the river in the rear of Beacon street. I assume, of course, that the Metropolitan Park Commission would gladly, willingly, join in having the reservation thus used.

“If any one would go and see what a charming prospect, what a restful little park could be made there, there would be no question as to what they would do or try to have the citizens of this part of the city do. The cost of the land is the only expense, it might almost be said, that it would entail.”

“There is a cellar hole to be filled up, and a foot bridge across the brook to be repaired. Other changes could be made in time. A little dam built across the brook to make a little pond and a little waterfall. For the pond water lilies, with shrubs, trees and flowers as needed.”

“But these things can be done later, the duty for us now is to secure the land, not for a playground, not for a baseball field or tennis courts, but for a place for those who have no summer home by the sea side, lake, or view or among green with distant views of mountains or hills, to go and rest in summer days or evenings, or in bright October days, to enjoy the beauty of the river, running brook, trees and distant views of hill and meadow and the charm of the tower of the chapel of the Blind Asylum with its chimneys.”

“I know of no town which has such an opportunity as we of the “Corner,” have, in giving to those living and those who come after us, such a park, or call it what you please, in this strip of land now waiting for us to secure.”

“I am sure that all abutments or owners of property along the Charlesbank road will be glad to join the rest of the dwellers in this part of Newton in forwarding such a plan for improving not only Newton, but their own property, and saving for those who may live here after us this unequalled little gem for their enjoyment.”

“In England and near London, they are spending thousands of dollars to secure hill tops, a bit of timber, a rocky knoll, that some real estate men want to use for building sites.”

“We ought to profit by their example and secure the place now rather than wait till too late and we see what we have lost.”

INCREASE OF FARES

Some Pertinent Facts on the Financial Condition of the Company

There is considerable discussion in this city over the proposed increase in fares and the additional cost of transfers proposed by the Middlesex and Boston St. Railway Company and the matter will undoubtedly be thoroughly thrashed out before the Public Service Commission at the proper time. The Board of Trade of Waltham has been working on the matter and has filed two petitions with the Public Service Commission already, one protesting against the proposed increase and asserting that the company is discriminating against the city of Waltham, and the other asking the Commission to obtain and analyze the figures of earnings presented by the Company, with a view to apportion the income among the various divisions of the road.

So far as the reports of the Company to the Public Service Commission indicate the facts are as follows:—

The Middlesex & Boston Company was organized July 24, 1907, with an original capital of $300,000 and has subsequently combined with the Westboro & Hopkinton, with capital of $40,000, the Natick & Cohasset, capital of $100,000; the Newton Street Railway Co., with capital of $322,000; the Newton & Boston, with capital of $200,000 and the Lexington & Boston with capital of $525,000; making the total authorized capital of $1,987,000. All of these consolidations were authorized by the former Railroad Commission of this state and have been sanctioned by the very stringent anti-stock-watering laws of Massachusetts.

The last financial return for the year ending June 30, 1913, shows in round numbers an operating revenue of about $940,000, with operating expenses of about $662,000 and a gross income, less operating expense of over $278,000. In addition to the operating expense, the Company paid $35,109.93 for taxes, $161,133.25 for interest charges, $2,159.76 for discounts on bonds, making a total of $198,452.94 leaving a net revenue of $79,547.06. From this sum a 4 per cent dividend was paid amounting to $79,480, leaving a surplus of $446.39. There was a deficit of some $211,000 brought over from 1912. This was added to a further deficit for 1913 caused by the Lexington & Boston Co., amounting to over $55,000 so that the total deficit for 1913 was $266,569.22. Other pertinent facts are that 17,857,955 passengers were carried, 654,940 transfers issued and an income from passengers of over $699,000. There is a funded debt of $1,868,000 carrying an interest charge of $89,610, and notes payable of $1,232,350.

PARAGON PARK

Paragon Park's popularity as an ideal summer sea-side resort is ever increasing and this is due to the high standard of entertainment maintained and the policy of introducing each week new features. Each day finds the Palm Garden with its capacity of 2500, filled with patrons who journey down to this resort by train, trolley, automobile and boat.

In the Cabaret this week a special new feature will be La Petite Sisters, offering a clever and unique singing and dancing act, Mlle. Emerie, in poses plasticque, who scored such a great personal triumph during the past week has been retained and will produce with the aid of beautiful colored light effects many famous statues. All of the famous Cabaret Girls will be on hand to help make things pleasant for the diners and no table however remote will be without its special entertainment.

Clever exhibitions of modern dances are introduced in the Dansants by Miss Jean Thompson and George Schaffer, New York Society dancing favorites and the patrons may dine and dance or dine and look on at other dancing. A special tango orchestra provides the music.

The varied attractions of the park especially the congress of rare water-fowl from all parts of the world assembled in the lagoon are all popular and well patronized. There is a little boat back to Boston at 10.45 P. M. every night.

NARROW ESCAPE

Presence of Mind Saves Girl On Lower Falls Railroad Bridge

Miss Catharine Doyle, the 24-year-old daughter of Mrs. John Doyle of Cedar street, Wellesley Hills, by her coolness and presence of mind, had a narrow escape from death Saturday night. As it was she suffered a severe injury that may result in permanent disablement.

Miss Doyle left her home just before nine o'clock Saturday night to go to Boston to meet friends who were coming from a distance. She was to board an express train at the Riverside station on the Boston & Albany line and as the electric train that runs from Newton Lower Falls near her home to Riverside did not connect with the express train she started to walk along the track.

The branch line of the railroad crosses the Charles River on a trestle known as Long Bridge. The girl was walking over this bridge in the darkness when she suddenly saw coming toward her the combination electric car which carries passengers and baggage on the branch line. It was running from Riverside to Lower Falls and the girl had no opportunity to get out of the way. The car is one especially constructed for the purpose, resembling a regular railroad coach and it runs at high speed.

Miss Doyle screamed until her voice failed her but, apparently the motor-man did not hear her for the car swept toward her. She was afraid to jump into the river as the bridge is quite high above the water, and as the river is low there are a number of posts and beams underneath that would cause terrible injury if she fell on them.

In this emergency the girl's quick wit stood her in good stead. The trestle extends beyond the rails and is flanked on each side with a heavy guard rail of wood. She threw herself down between the guard rail and the track, drew her skirts as tightly as possible and then extended her head over the edge so it would not be struck.

One of the steps of the big car struck her left hip, however, and threw her from the trestle but her hands caught the guard rail and clung to it.

As the car passed motorman G. T. Davis caught a glimpse of the figure clinging to the edge of the trestle but so great was the speed that he was unable to stop the car until it had passed over the trestle. Then he and the conductor, Frank Glaser, ran back with two or three passengers who were aboard but they were unable to find the girl and supposed she had fallen into the river. They searched for some time and the Metropolitan Park Police were also notified.

In the short time that elapsed between the time she was struck and the car stopped Miss Doyle, dazed from fright and the pain of her injury, climbed back onto the track and wandered toward Riverside. In the darkness she eluded those who were searching. After walking a short distance she fainted in the grass beside the tracks but recovered and managed to reach Riverside in time to board the train for Boston.

At the South Station she met the friends who were waiting for her but on seeing her condition and hearing her story they brought her back to Newton and took her to the hospital. Wednesday she insisted on leaving the institution and returning home but is unable to walk and may have suffered internal injuries.

NEW BANK BUILDING

West Newton Savings Bank To Build Next Spring

At the meeting of the trustees of the West Newton Savings Bank Tuesday night it was unanimously voted to purchase about 8000 feet of land on the corner of Washington and Highland streets, known as the Woodberry corner, and to obtain plans for a handsome, one-story building exclusively for use of the bank, and which will be an ornament to the city. Actual building operations will probably be deferred until the spring of 1915.

The bank has occupied its present quarters in the post office building for 28 years and has been for some time very much cramped for room, particularly in the vaults. At the same time, President Bullard desired the assets to reach over two millions of dollars before taking steps to erect its own building. The assets today are above that figure, and the West Newton Savings Bank will soon have quarters commensurate with its standing in the community.

LONGWOOD TENNIS WEEK

Eastern Doubles Championship and Twenty-Fourth Annual Longwood Singles.

July 20 to July 25, 1914.

The Tournament for the Eastern Doubles Championship and the twenty-fourth Annual Longwood Singles will take place on the grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club, July 20th to July 25th inclusive.

Some of those who are expected to take part in one or both events are M. E. McLoughlin, R. N. Williams, 2d, Wallace F. Johnson and R. D. Little the members of the United States team who brought back the Davis Cup last year; Wm. M. Johnston, of California, present holder of the Longwood Challenge Bowl; Wm. J. Clothier and F. B. Alexander, former champions of the United States in Singles or Doubles; R. L. Murray and Herbert Hahn, the California collegians who have been distinguishing themselves in Eastern tournaments this spring; T. R. Pell, F. C. Inman, G. M. Church and Dean Mathey of New York; N. W. Niles, A. S. Dabney, G. P. Garner, Jr., W. M. Washburn and E. H. Whitney of former Eastern Doubles Championship Teams, H. C. Johnson and R. C. Seaver, former champions of Massachusetts in Singles or Doubles, and many other prominent players.

The tournament will be especially interesting because among the players contesting will undoubtedly be those who will later make up this year's United States team to defend the Davis Cup.

The presence of so many strong players will result in interesting matches throughout the week. Matches will occur both mornings and afternoons.

The Longwood Cricket Club, located at the corner of Brookline and Longwood avenues, Boston, may be reached in twenty minutes by electric cars from Park street subway, via Longwood avenue or via Ipswich street and Brookline avenue, or in twelve minutes by the Brookline Branch of the Boston & Albany Railroad to Longwood station.

GUESTS OF EDISON COMPANY

Representative Men of Metropolitan Boston Inspect the New Service and Welfare Building

Quite a number of city officials and business men of this city were guests of the Boston Edison Electric Illuminating Company last week Thursday afternoon and inspected the new service and welfare plant of that company on Massachusetts avenue, Roxbury.

About once a year the Edison Company invites the officials and prominent business men of the cities and towns with whom it does business and about four hundred were present last week.

Among those from Newton were Aldermen Fornkall, Murphy, Blanchard, Winslow, Wagner, Early, Cobb, Rice, Clark, Barker and Jarvis, Street Commissioner Stuart, Chief W. B. Randlett and Messrs. C. G. Newcomb, C. W. Sanderson, H. H. Hawkins and John Temperley.

The party were entertained at the head quarters at Foxway Park during the afternoon and then took special street cars to the new plant of the company in Roxbury. The buildings were shown to the guests by officers of the Company and an excellent dinner was then served in the banquet hall, enlivened with some good ragtime singing by a colored quartet.

Following the dinner President C. L. Edgar of the Boston Edison Company welcomed the guests and explained something of the broad policies the Company follows. He particularly upon the Company's growth and how throughout that growth consideration of customers' best interests has been uppermost.

General Superintendent W. H. Atkins followed with a brief word of welcome giving additional facts about the Company's business and then H. W. Moses, Head of the Welfare Bureau, explained the scope of the Company's work in these lines where the Company is showing its direct interest in the welfare of its employees, in promoting their efficiency makes for general efficiency of service to customers.

L. D. Gibbs, Superintendent of the Company's Advertising Department, went more into detail. He illustrated his talk with lantern slides and said in part as follows:

"Increase in the demand for any commodity improves its quality and its delivery service. That is the reason why the public service corporations as they have steadily grown larger and larger have also steadily improved their service and their methods of rendering it. That is the reason why The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston with its great generating plant and its thousands of miles of distribution lines is dealing with you and your neighbors with a broader policy than it ever did before. That is the reason you are getting more regular, even, uninterrupted service. That is the reason you find an Edison store or an Edison motor car or an Edison man at your elbow in time of emergency; and, what suits us all most, that is the reason why you are paying less for your electric service and getting more of it than you ever did before."

"You men have been asked to gather with us here this evening so that we could explain some of these things to you and through you, as the representatives of your different cities and towns, to our customers and the people at home it is impossible for us to reach with this information in any other so direct a way.

Here the speaker showed lantern slide pictures of the first little generating station of the Company in Head place in Boston in February 1886. Then was shown a picture of the big generating station at L street in South Boston with its enormous coal pile of a hundred thousand tons and the thousand horse-power capacity. In this connection, as an emphasis upon the protective measures of the Company for uninterrupted service, was mentioned the fact that the Boston Edison Company has emergency connection arrangements with the nearby Boston Elevated Railway station so that there is a possibility in case of necessity of exchange either way of electric capacity to the extent of fifteen thousand horsepower.

The speaker showed a view of Boston, pointing out the location of the generating station on the water front securing the best and most economical delivery of coal and the convenience of harbor water for condensation purposes, and the location of the big Service Buildings on their 20 acres of land on Massachusetts avenue in Roxbury, their location anticipating the city's growth of many years and making possible a consolidation of many means of service.

A map was then shown of the territory now served by the Boston Edison Company including 40 cities and towns and the growth from the past 10 years was noted. Interior views of various substations where electric current is changed to various pressures were shown.

The broad supervision of the Company's distribution system under the Maintenance of Lines Department was mentioned and attention called to the general location of supply depots throughout the territory. It was emphasized that by the end of this year all of the transmission lines of the Company over which current is transmitted at high pressure to the substations will be underground except one auxiliary line between Woburn and Lexington which is in the nature of a duplicate service. That however, will be underground next year. All of these improvements make for uninterrupted service and are an insurance, at tremendous expense on the Company's part for the protection and comfort of their customers.

The Company has been liberal in the extension of its lines to prospective customers and has always made these extensions except where the cost is prohibitive or where local conditions have made it impossible. Edison service now runs along 57 per cent or 519 miles of Boston's streets and along 50.3 per cent or 1025 miles of suburban streets.

The services of expert engineers on power applications and of the salesmen of the Company are always available. These men are always working to help bring new manufacturing industries into the territory. They are glad to consult with the authorities in the different cities and towns and of course the addition of new industries means more people and more local business.

The police of Newton and of Watertown have at last been allowed by the judges of their respective police courts to make complaints and bring into court, men who are bringing intoxicating liquors into no license communities, in their own teams. This matter has been tested in other police courts with various interpretations of the law, and the decisions of our own court will be of interest. In a general way it might be said that the decisions will be based on whether the delivery of liquors at the home of the purchaser is a part of the sale. If it is, the defendant is guilty of breaking the liquor law. If such delivery is not a part of the sale, the complaint will be dismissed. One large Boston house now requires its customers to make a written order for liquors, in which title to the goods is acknowledged by the purchaser to pass to him when the package is marked and set aside for him at the store of the dealer in Boston, and it is evident that not many verdicts of "guilty" will be found in such cases. It is quite certain that the law needs amendment if this situation is to be corrected.

So many questions enter into the proposed increase of fares on our local street railway system that it would be wise to hear all the evidence before taking a decision standing on the matter. From figures published in another column it is evident that the street railway company is not making money very fast, and a four per cent dividend is none too much,
and indeed, is entirely inadequate to tempt capital to make further investments in public service corporations.
There is the question, of course, as to why people of this vicinity should pay the losses entailed by the company in parts of its system many miles away, and some have suggested that it might be advisable to compel the company to dissolve itself into its former smaller organizations. I have asked for some additional information in regard to the financial condition of the company, which, if furnished, will enable me to discuss the subject with more intelligence than is possible at the present time.

Mr. William F. Garcelon, the member of the Republican state committee from this district, invites members of the Progressive party to return to their former allegiance with the Republican party and hints that there are a number of Republicans who would work for the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt as president in 1916 on that ticket. Mr. Garcelon is allowing his personal preferences to run away with his political judgment.
Progressives and Republicans ought to work and vote together for the good of the country and not for the personal aggrandizement of an individual.

The city of Waltham is marking a the purpose of regulating traffic. It would be a good idea to attempt something of the kind in Nonantum square.

It is a matter of some local pride that of the eight players left this

the state championship, six are residents of this city.

Increases of $5.50 in the tax rate of which way the taxation wind is blowing in this state.

LIQUOR DEALER IN COURT

A test case of the State law relative to the transportation of liquor into a no-license city was made in the Newton Police Court this morning.
Liquor officer Richard J. Goode is the complainant and the defendant was Michael H. Glynn, a liquor dealer of Frishton. Instead of bringing the driver of the wagon into the Newton Court the complaint summons Mr.
Glynn.

Mr. B. B. Johnson of Waltham appeared for the prosecution and Mr. E.
Mark Sullivan for the defendant. After hearing the evidence Judge Kennedy reserved his decision until August 12.

BRAE-BURN CLUB

This is the largest number that Brae-Burn has ever had.

Brae-Burn again won the Windler Shield, and the Club now has the honor of winning the shield more times than any other Golf Club.

Doubts, and How to Dispel ThemBy REV. HOWARD W. POPE
Superintendent of Miss Meady Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"I am the light of the world;
he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."
John 8:12.

It is not strange that men are doubters. Sin has so blinded our moral vision that we do not see the truth as it is, but in a distorted fashion which makes it less attractive. "The natural man receiveth
not the things of the Spirit of God;
for they are foolishness unto him;
neither can he know them because they are spiritually discerned." (1 Cor. 2:14).

Furthermore, the truth as it is in Jesus carries with it condemnation for the sinner, and no one enjoys reproof or rebuke. As the lawyer, willing to justify himself, said: "Who is my neighbor?" so the natural heart
questions the authority of the Bible, and even the existence of God, rather than confess its sin. Add to this the fact that the devil who first injected doubt into the mind of man, and who is rightly called by our Savior the father of lies, is ever seeking to prejudice the creature against the Creator,
and it is not strange that all thinking people pass through a period of doubt as to the fundamentals of religion, and some are so completely blinded that they never come out of their spiritual darkness.

In dealing with doubters it is important to ascertain their real position. Some skeptics are mere triflers who are too indolent to grapple with the truth in a resolute way, and so find it easier to doubt and drift with the current of their natural inclinations. Others use their skepticism as a cover for an ungodly life. You can say to such when they question the inspiration of the Bible that one proof of its divine origin is the fact that it describes their condition so complet-ly, and tells how they came into that condition.

Remind them that to doubt the Bible does not alter the facts which it reveals, but it does subject them to the charge of making God a liar (1 John 5:10), and it puts them under condemnation. "He that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten son of God. And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil" (John 3:18, 19).

It is said that a vessel once sighted an enemy just at sundown, and kept up a cannonade until the darkness put a stop to it. When the sun arose the next morning, they were charged to find that the supposed enemy was an immense rock, which still remained intact after many hours of bombarding. So in all ages men have been demolishing the Bible as the enemy of the human race, but the old Book still stands, silent, but solid as the Rock of Ages. For trifling skeptics John 8:21, 24 is very good as showing the consequences of unbelief, while John 5:40 discloses the origin of their skepticism. "Ye will not come to me that ye might have life."

There is another class of doubters who are really desirous of knowing the truth. As some one has expressed it, "He wishes there was a God to whom he could come as a child to his father, but he does not know whether there is or not, and he wants to know. He wishes he were an immortal spirit; but he is not positive that he is anything more than an animated machine, and he seeks for evidence. He would be glad to believe that this unknown God has provided for this unknown soul some way by which it could know both its father and itself. He does not disbelieve in God or Christ, but he does not know, and he wants to know."
For such people there are two paths to the light, the intellectual and the moral. The first begins with the known and argues its way to the unknown. The creation proves a creator. Intelligent and moral beings imply a creator capable of producing such. The scientific method results only in a high degree of probability.
It is true, but then we act every day on just such probabilities, and we ought to act upon them in religion.

The other method starts with the distinction between right and wrong
which we all know, and which no moral man can doubt. Into this world has come Jesus of Nazareth. He needs our ideals, he commends himself to our consciousness, he commends our will. If we take his life and follow it, his teachings and obey them, we will soon find our way into the light. "I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life" (John 8:12). If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself" (John 8:17).

HER SHAKEN NERVES

STORY OF THE WAYS OF THE MODERN WOMAN.Shocks That Would Seem Calculated to Disturb Pass Comparatively Unnoticed, While a Smaller Thing Causes Trouble.

Mrs. Preston put on her wraps and stepped into the elevator of the apartment house. On the way down to the ground floor the green elevator boy reversed the lever by accident and the sensation was startling. Mrs.
Preston smiled at the fright of the elevator boy.

On the way out one of the employes
who was cleaning the entrance hall dropped a mammoth incandescent bulb which shattered with a report like that of a young cannon when it struck the tessellated floor.

"Too bad, Tony; they'll probably take that out of your wages," she said to the cleaner.

As she made her way downtown she stopped to chat with a friend at a corner where a building was going up.
Automatic riveters made the air hideous as they tapped bolt heads into steel girders, but Mrs. Preston and her friend pitched their voices a little higher and continued their conversation.

Later as she passed beneath the elevated structure one of the trains thundering, groaning, shrieking around the curve made a short circuit, whereupon vivid blue flashes filled the air and loud reports brought crowds. Mrs.
Preston watched it with interest for a few moments and then passed on.

As she was crossing a street she stepped back out of the way of an electric truck just in time to prevent being run down. As she stood there the truck, apparently beyond control, dashed into the side of a crostown car.
The air was filled with shattered glass and shrieks of frightened passengers.

"The driver of that car was certainly careless," murmured Mrs. Preston as she went on.

A policeman stepped forward and held up a warning hand to her just as several pieces of fire apparatus came swinging around the corner in a wide half-kidney arc, the gongs clanging and sirens howling.

"Is the fire near here, officer?" she asked. The policeman did not know.
Just as she was entering a department store a woman pushed her hurriedly aside and tried to get through the door.

"Stop her," yelled several voices.
Two salesgirls grabbed Mrs. Preston, but a third came running up, crying that she was not the woman. Mrs.
Preston went along to the glove counter, and as she made her purchases
she remarked:

"Wasn't that some shoplifter trying to get out?"

The girl at the glove counter admitted that it was.

"How interesting," commented Mrs.
Preston.

The hour was late and she took a taxi to her home. On the way up the avenue there was a loud report. The inner tube had suffered a blowout and Mrs. Preston laughingly got into another taxi.

At home that evening in her apartment all was quiet and comfortable.
In the adjoining room her maid, while passing through, accidentally knocked a small book from the table and it fell to the floor with a sharp little slap.

"Good heavens, what was that?"
screamed Mrs. Preston, turning pale and clasping her hands to her heart.

Mrs. Preston scolded the maid roundly and then sent for a physician.

"Oh, dear, doctor," she said when that gentleman arrived, "you positively must do something for me at once.
I assure you my nerves are absolutely wrecked!"

Breaking Up Pavement With a Plov.

The street car company of Cleveland has recently designed a novel pavement plow for the quick and economical breakup of paving antecedent to track work. The plow consists of a heavy steel casting of suitable shape for lifting the paving blocks and for cutting the tie rods at the same time. It is pulled by a service motor car. Three men and the crew of the motor car are all the personnel needed to operate the machine. This unique plow can remove 1,300 square feet of pavement in one minute. On another occasion the pavement in a stretch of track 2,600 feet long was removed in 35 minutes. The plow is used but once or twice a week, for an hour's work with it will give the street car company enough track to work on for eight or twelve days.—Electric Railway Journal.

She Wanted to Hold Car.

George Gerodette, motorman, was just starting his car from Patchogue, Long Island, for the run to Bayport, when a young woman walked up to him.

"Please wait ten or fifteen minutes for me, so I won't have to stay over for the next car," she said. "I've just found a dress at the store that I like awfully well, but I think I ought to try it on first."

"I'm sorry," said the motorman, "but I just can't do it."
The bell clanged, the car started,
and the young woman was left standing in the road. The motorman's conscience pricked him. At last he said:
"I'm used to stopping to tell 'em
the time of day, whether the water's fine, and how the fish bite, but blessed if that girl don't get me."

PLAY FOR HIGH STAKES

BEACH CLUB AT PALM BEACH IS GAMBLERS' PARADISE.Reckless Spendthrifts Win Occasionally, Though Money Is Almost Invariably Left in the Wide Open Coffers of the Bank.

The play at the Beach club is worth studying, being so unlike the usual gaming. It is a sure thing for the house, yet the most dangerous kind,
the kind where the winnings of a month may be swept in an hour. The recklessness of these spendthrifts who know nothing of money values
makes them dangerous to the house.
They do not play skillfully, place their bets regardless of accepted rules, and destroy all the laws of averages. I have seen a few play, or attempt to play, abortive "systems," and one or two try systems learned from a book;
but the majority ignore entirely the laws of mathematical progression upon which "systems" are founded. The nominal limit at the club is $1,000 on a color, although this limit may be raised indefinitely by a simple request, and it is not recorded that the proprietors ever refused to permit a plunger to dive as high as he pleased—provided he could afford it. The player will stumble upon a run of luck, or drop a disproportionate bet upon a single winning number. Many of them play the long shots steadily and, of course, occasionally some one wins a large amount in a hurry. I once saw a young fellow put $10 in checks on number 5, get $350 for it, put $250 of that on the odd, $25 on each of the corners round the five, and $10 on the 5 which repeated. He placed a pile of checks on each number in the first 12 except the 5, played the first 12 to win and stacked a huge bunch on the red. In three rolls of the wheel he had won nearly six thousand dollars. An hour later he quit about five hundred dollars winner.

These winnings are not regretted much by such clubs. I saw one case of how such "killings" affect the Beach club. A young Falls River fellow had been playing regularly each evening and losing almost as regularly—how much I do not know, but it ran into thousands. One evening he had just such a run of luck as I have described, and, as nearly as I could tell, he took about six thousand dollars out of the club—possibly more, but not much. Before he reached the breakers, where he was stopping, the sum of his winnings, according to corroborative gossip, was trebled. In the grill, where he was buying wine an hour later, the statement was made he had won $35,000. By midnight it was reported as authoritative that he had won nearly one hundred thousand dollars and that the Beach club was hit hard. The next afternoon and evening play at the club was much heavier, and applications of membership were in such demand that I was offered $25 for the use of a membership card for the afternoon by a young man who had neither the wealth nor the influence to get in.—American Magazine.

Steel in Old Skyscraper.
Among the first of the tall office buildings in New York was the Tower building, which although only ten stories high was considered a skyscraper when completed in 1889. Its recent demolition has called attention to its position among pioneer constructions of the modern type office building and it has been mistakenly credited as the first example of steel case construction. It illustrated an early stage in the development of tall steel buildings, the different character of details prevailing only twenty-five years ago, and affords valuable information on the effects of corrosion on iron and steel members imperfectly protected through a quarter century of service.

A careful and thorough examination
made as the building was demolished showed practically no case of very bad rusting, that is, of corrosion sufficient to impair the strength of the metal.—

Build Island to Construct Bridge.

With the completion of the Pamban channel viaduct connecting Tonitural in India with Pamban on the Island of Rameswaram the first link has been forged in the railway line between the south end of the Indian peninsula and the island of Ceylon. This viaduct is 6,776 feet long. Rail connection is made across the island of Danishodi and then by steamer across a 22-mile strait to the island of Manar to which point the Ceylon railway system has been extended.

To facilitate the work of sinking the bridge cylinders an artificial island, made of coral boulders and concrete in sacks, was created, one on each side of the stretch of water.

This bridge was made by Indian labor, under two contractors. There was intense and sometimes by no means friendly rivalry between the two crews of workers.

New Epoch in Java.

In Java there are more than twenty-four living converts from Islam to evangelical Christianity. There seems to be much ferment in the Moslem community. A great popular organization, the Sharikat Islam, has been formed and holds immense congresses.
A missionary in Java writes that greater changes have come into the minds of the Javanese in the past year than in twenty-five years. "We stand before a new epoch."

Unpleasant Passenger.

DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR

By SELINA ELIZABETH HIGGINS.

"A clean slate, Mr. Boyden," proclaimed Warren Bliss with a great sigh of satisfaction and relief. "I begin life all over again."

"You are a fool!" growled Samuel Boyden.

"I hope Cleora does not share in the same sentiment," observed Bliss, hopefully.

"She will when she knows the details!" stormed Boyden. "Why, what sense or reason was there in your shouldering the Evans claims. That $15,000 was charged as a debt due the company, not you. It's a shame, an outrage! That was your individual money, and it would have set you and Cleora up at housekeeping, it would have furnished capital to start up again, and now—"

Mr. Boyden choked up at a memory of the fearful blunder Bliss had committed in being honest and proving the true man.

"I did just what was right," replied Bliss very quietly, but with implacable conviction. "When I sold my best friend, Ross Evans, $15,000 worth of material to build the dam at Moreton, I knew it was a risk. I could not consent to charge the company for a line of credit that might not be met. I guaranteed the bill. The dam was a failure. The money is gone. I paid it. That ends it—paid dollar for dollar, and it's a clean slate and a clean heart, and I'm glad I could do it!"

"Humbly!" snorted old Boyden. "Sentiment!" spoke up a new voice, and Warren Bliss stood fairly electrified as the woman to whom he was engaged appeared at the door of the room. The mask was down now. It was the cruel contempt in that dark siren face that told Bliss that he had escaped a precipice.

"You will understand, I think," she said frigidly, extending their engagement ring. "Since you think more of others in divesting yourself of your means than of me, you show your shallow regard."

"Cleora! Cleora!" cried Bliss poignantly, hurt to the soul, but she turned from him. There was no sympathy in the malignant face of John Boyden. The young man sighed. Then with a bow he silently left the house.

The Mask Was Down Now.

It seemed as if amid that terrible blow to his pride, his hopes, his loyalty he was crushed, blinded, stunned. He was sick at heart. He could not yet face the world. Bliss turned at the doorway and struck out, not for the public street, but to reach the quiet, shady lane at the side of the garden reach. He wished to be alone, to think, to recover from the rude shock that had revealed Cleora Boyden in her true colors.

A light form had crossed the garden a moment previous, but he was too absorbed to note its presence. Out in the deserted lane he chose a grassy spot beside the hedge and buried his face in his hands in painful thought.

In a single day he had seen the business of years go by the board. There had been the consolation, however, that the assets had paid off every dollar of debt—that is, with his own private inherited fortune thrown in. He believed in Cleora. He had anticipated that, like a true woman, she would sympathize with him in his affliction, comfort and encourage him. How cruelly was he disappointed!

Suddenly Bliss lifted his head in sharp surprise. Some one was sobbing on the other side of the hedge. Then came the words:

"And, oh, Midget! How cold and cruel they were! After all his love for Cleora and his noble loyalty to his friend! They have thrown him out on the cold world just as Uncle John said I would have to go. Oh, cruel! cruel! And Mr. Bliss was so kind to us!"

Peering through the hedge Bliss made out a young girl caressing a pet kitten and confiding to the purring animal her heart's grief. He knew Dorothy Lane well—a poor relative of the haughty Cleora. He had pitied her life of drudgery, and once when Miss Boyden was away had thoughtfully strolled up to the place with a box of caramels for Dorothy and a pretty new ribbon for Midget's snowy neck. It had been a pleasant hour and he had not forgotten. Now vast sorrow and pity oppressed him as he realized that the hard-hearted selfishness of the Boydens was to be wreaked on this helpless, innocent orphan.

It was two weeks later when a new surprise came to Bliss. He had rented a vacant store in the village, and his clear business record enabled him to secure a limited stock of goods. Cleora was a dead issue with him now, but his business pride was left. He resolved to build anew among those who knew and respected him.

"It's only Dorothy and Midget, Mr. Bliss," announced a sweet, confiding voice, and looking up from his desk, Bliss recognized Dorothy. In one arm she bore a bundle, in the other her pet kitten.

"They are going away to the seaside, Cleora and her father," she explained. "All the money my mother left me is gone, he says, so they turned me out. But I came straight to you!" cried the little waif brightly, as if that fact solved all troubles in her path.

"Oh, you want advice, little one?" said Bliss in a kindly tone.

"No, I don't," dissented Dorothy, strenuously. "I know what a great, grand man you are, and I want to work for you and help you. Oh, we need so little, Midget and I, and an old lady in the village will give us a free home for getting the meals and keeping the house in order. I've thought it all out. Daytimes I'll come here and be your clerk. You can teach me how to sell goods and keep your books, and I'll work like everything. Oh, please, don't say no!"

A humid blur came before the eyes of Bliss as he appreciated the impetuous, unselfish devotion of this poor little wayfarer. He saw that he would fairly break her heart if he denied her.

It was wonderful how quickly Dorothy learned the business way. She was bright, joyous company all day long. Then, too, the business began to grow. At the end of six months she was proudly earning a salary. She wore neat, fitting clothes. She was "Miss Lane" now.

One afternoon, just as Dorothy left the store for the day, Bliss stood gazing after her rapidly. Something new, something love-inspiring stirred within his soul.

"Hello!" uttered a sudden, jolly voice, and a glad hand slapped Bliss heartily on the shoulder.

"Why, Ross Evans!" exclaimed Bliss in surprise.

"That's who. Been east—among the big promoters. Your carrying that bill gave me a breathing spell. New company formed to carry on the project, your $15,000 in my pocket with interest, and—your noble fellow! You are one in a thousand. But the pretty little maid?"

"She has been my helper, my guide, my truest friend," pronounced Bliss fervently. "She has been my refuge, my inspiration through all my dark moments, but, tomorrow—"

"Thinking of something, aren't you?" rallied the quick-thinking Evans.

"I am—and it is this: Dorothy shall become my wife—if she will have me."

And Miss Cleora Boyden, returning wearied from a fruitless quest for a husband at the seashore, found "that beggarly brat" and Warren Bliss settled down happily in a beautiful home, with the money and the growing business to maintain it.

Highlanders' Costume.

The picturesque dress of the Highlanders in early times is a subject of much controversy. It has been said, and widely believed, that the kilt as a separate garment was simply the invention of two Englishmen so late as 1728. J. Roach, in a short article on the Fellehead beag, gives an extract from the "Journal of John Astor," which distinctly shows that the kilt and shoulder plaid were separate garments in the reign of Charles I.

He also gives confirming passages from Thomas Kirk and Sir William Brereton, both of whom refer to this material in describing their visits to Scotland. These references ought to settle an old controversy.

Father of Photography.

The inventor of the process of photography was Louis Daguerre, born at Cormeilles, France, in 1789. He was first employed painting scenes for the theater, and while thus at work he discovered the method of representing night and day by the illumination of a transparent canvas painted on both sides. This was in 1822, but as early as 1814 Nicéphore Niepce had made some experiments of photography on metal. In 1826 he and Daguerre became partners, but in a few years the former died, leaving Daguerre to develop the remarkable art. The French government gave the medal of the Legion of Honor to the inventor of the daguerreotype.

SCIENCE and INVENTION

STARTER FOR AN AEROPLANE

Overhead Carrier Also Assists Aviators in Landing—Tower of Steel Rises High Above Ground.

Aviation is far advanced indeed when people begin to invent towers to start the airships from. A New York man has designed such an apparatus, and it is described here. Aviators agree that there is not much trouble in keeping an aeroplane going once it is started. The difficulty lies in getting a good start and making a safe landing. That is what the tower is for. It is of steel, of course, and rises high above the ground.

Aeroplane Starter.

above the ground. Extending horizontally from the top is an arm from which a large steel ring depends on cables that yield to a certain extent when the machine alights to prevent a jolt. To use this apparatus the airship must be equipped with a catching device on the top to engage the ring.

In this way it can be lifted from the ground and swung clear till the engines get started. Then, released from the ring, it will fall off into space with nothing to obstruct it. In making a landing the aviator sails his aeroplane close to the ring and "books on" to it. If he misses it the first time he can easily try again as there will be no harm done.

"Hello!" uttered a sudden, jolly voice, and a glad hand slapped Bliss heartily on the shoulder.

"Why, Ross Evans!" exclaimed Bliss in surprise.

"That's who. Been east—among the big promoters. Your carrying that bill gave me a breathing spell. New company formed to carry on the project, your $15,000 in my pocket with interest, and—your noble fellow! You are one in a thousand. But the pretty little maid?"

HANDY FOR ELECTROPLATING STUDY "STYLE" OF THE HAND

Illustration Shows Simple Apparatus Which Can Be Made at Home—Keep Parts Clean.

The illustration shows a very simple electroplating apparatus which can be made at home. The piece to be plated (A) is connected to the negative pole of a battery, from the positive pole of which a conductor (G) carries the current to the anode (D). The rubber bulb (F) is filled with the electrolytic bath, that is, the liquid containing the plating metal in solution, which can be squirted through the small tube (E) into the larger tube (C). The smaller tube passes through a cork in the end of the larger, which also serves to give support to the mouth of the bulb. The amount of the liquid pressed out must be sufficient to keep the sponge (B) moist. Care must be taken to clean carefully the parts to be plated before beginning. —Translated from L'Electicien by J. H. Blakey.

CLEANER ON A MULE'S HIDE

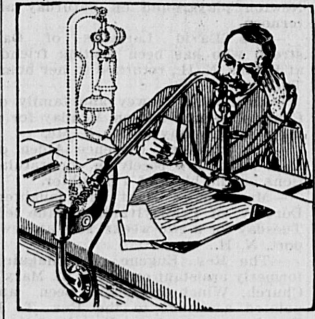

Effectiveness of Vacuum Apparatus Demonstrated on Hide of Mine Animal Attracts Crowd.

The electric service company at Scranton, Pa., recently attracted and held a large crowd of people in front of its offices by demonstrating the effectiveness of a vacuum cleaner on the coal-begrimed hide of a mine mule. The animal, having probably never experienced a similar sensation before, expressed its surprise when the vacuum cleaner was put in operation by delivering a far-sounding "hee-haw." The noise soon attracted a crowd, which watched the demonstration and probably carried the news to more quarters than any other form of advertising might have done. —Electrical World.

SUPPORT FOR A DESK PHONE

Adjustable Device Recently Patented by Two Illinois Men—Out of Way When Not in Use.

A patent upon a support for a desk telephone set has been issued to Kemper B. Miller and Charles G. Ashley, Chicago, says Popular Electricity. The invention consists of an anchor post, swivel block, spring and arm disposed so as to hold the desk set at the end of the arm in position for use and, to support the set out of the way when the arm is placed in a vertical position. Besides the movement to and away from the vertical position, the arm may turn around the anchor post as a center.

Automatic Telephone Service.
England is ahead of the United States in the development of the automatic telephone service and contracts for automatic exchanges of the total value of nearly half a million dollars have been placed.

Advertising Banners.
For advertising purposes hollow banners made of semi-transparent material on which lettering may be painted and containing reflector-backed electric lights have been patented.

Electrified Railroads.
The United States now has nearly sixteen hundred miles of steam railroads that have been electrified and plans are under way for changing the power on 1,443 miles more in the near future.

Novel Advertisement.
A Philadelphia electric company has made a novel advertisement by turning a powerful searchlight upon the streamers of steam that pour from the tall stacks of its centrally located power plant.

Electric Razor.
A safety razor in which the blade and frame are vibrated rapidly from side to side by an electric motor taking current from an incandescent light socket has been patented by a Chicago man.

Light for Firemen.
For the use of firemen or others working in dark places a New York man has invented a storage battery electric lamp, to be fastened to the hat or head by spring clamps.

Of More Importance to the General Effect Than Most Women Seem to Recognize.

Among the numerous small items which make up the sum total of a good or bad effect, as far as matters of dress are concerned, there is one in particular that many women entirely overlook; that is, the "style" of their hands.

Now there is something very definite about the hand. It is so full of personality, so closely connected with the individual characteristics of its owner, that those who are wise realize it requires setting off to advantage just as much as the face and figure, and therefore its special attributes must be studied, and the sleeves and cuffs worn made to harmonize.

Long, slender hands look their best set off with dainty white ruffles or falling chiffon frills, while hands that are squarely made and of a workmanlike and capable appearance look out of place amid soft lace, the plain sleeve and turn-back cuff suiting them far better.

There are people who should never on any account wear short or three-quarter length sleeves, and yet how often one notices the entire effect of a gown spoiled by carelessness in this respect!

Some people, again, suffer from bad circulation, resulting in red and unsightly hands—a defect that is very hard to cure—and this redness is emphasized by white ruffles and cuffs, but will not appear to nearly such a disadvantage if black or dark frills are worn.

Hands are always an interesting study, and it is a pity that in these busy days they are not often accorded the care and attention bestowed on them when our grandmothers were young, and white and shapely hands were considered a very important part of a woman's beauty.

Though manicure and constant massage and such like take up more time than the average woman can daily indulge in, she can always see that her hands are suitably becofted, a detail the importance of which, once studied, she will quickly realize.

TURN TO THE RIBBON MODEL

Plateau Hat Suffering From Overpopularity, and is Gradually Being Discarded.

Like all fashions easy to copy, the plateau hat is already suffering from overpopularity. In those districts where cheapness is essential the little milliner is turning out plateau hats in the poorest quality of straw. It is true, and with the most impossible flowers at a few dollars each. As the death knell of the plateau hat has thus been rung, the more exclusive bouses are turning their attention to the ribbon model, a hat which needs the master hand to drape its graceful crown and brim.

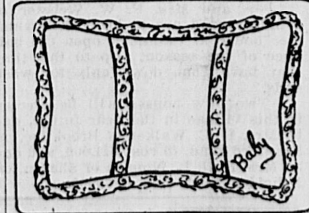

From France the new ribbon hats are arriving, their plaited crowns of rich moire, adorned with fantastic yet beautiful bows, being arranged in the most artistic colors and in the most intricate manner.

One model made entirely of blue moire ribbon about an inch wide has a four-cornered brim edged with an up-standing fold of gold lace, and loops of the ribbon are perched gracefully on the crown.

SLIP FOR THE BABY'S PILLOW

Dainty Carriage Convenience May Be Made With Two Handkerchiefs and a Little Lace.

The baby which is taken out for a daily airing in its carriage needs several slips for the carriage pillow. A covering that is dainty enough for any baby can be made of two handkerchiefs and a few yards of valenciennes lace. If one is skilled in embroidery the word "Baby" may be embroidered on one section of the pillow.

One handkerchief should be cut in two to form the ends of the pillow and the remaining handkerchief should be used for the center section. Measure the sides of the handkerchief in order to find out just how many yards of lace will be needed. The edge can be finished with lace.

Writing Cases.

Useful, indeed, for the traveler is one of the writing cases of colored morocco. Aside from the blotting pad, firmly held in place by the triangular leather corners, there are four gusseted pockets for stationery and a stamp pocket. A bone-handled pencil is fitted into a leather loop holder, and there is an extra loop for a fountain pen. The case is provided with a handle, so that it is easily carried, and it also has a lock and key.

Variety for Afternoon Wear.

There are two types of afternoon gowns this summer, the more simple kind of sprigged Dolly Varden materials, frilly to a degree, and the afternoon dance frock, which is of more pretentious fabrics.

MENASSER—HART

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday at the Church of Our Lady at Newton, when Miss Nellie T. Hart and Mr. John J. McNasser of Southington, Conn., were married, the ceremony being performed by Rev. A. S. Malone. The bride's gown was white brocade crepe de chine trimmed with very fine lace. She wore a tulle veil, caught with orange blossoms and lilies of the valley, and carried a bouquet of pinks. She was attended by her sister, Miss Katherine A. Hart, as bridesmaid, wearing white brocade crepe de chine and lace trimmings. The best man was Mr. Patrick McNasser, a brother of the groom. A reception followed at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Patrick Hart on Crafts street, at which there was a large attendance. Mr. and Mrs. McNasser will reside at 233 Burlingame avenue, Southington, Conn., where they will be at home after August first.

FARE INCREASE

The Boston Advertiser thinks the request for a change in fare by the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company on all of its lines, may be the first step toward the adoption of the zone system. It says: "The Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company has asked for permission to charge six-cent fares, on all of its lines. The Public Service Commission will probably grant the request, on the ground that the advance is necessary, if the company is to be able to pay dividends and make necessary extensions. This may be preliminary to a move, on the part of the Greater Boston companies, to insist on a charge of six cents for all except the shortest possible rides between cities. This would be equivalent to one cent for transfers. It is a first step toward the adoption of the zone system. In theory, this is the fairest possible scheme. In practice, it is apt to be very unpopular, unless the public can be convinced that there is no other way by which proper transfer facilities can be secured. Abroad, the zone system is almost universally in operation. If the street railway companies here had been wise enough to adopt it in the beginning they would be in a better financial position today."

FATAL ACCIDENT

Newton Boy Killed By Stray Bullet At Osterville

One of the saddest events of the summer season was the accidental shooting on Tuesday afternoon of James Walter Clear, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clear of Church street, Newton.

The lad, who was 14 years of age, had been out rowing with his mother at Osterville, and they were returning to the summer home of Mrs. Lucy E. Prescott by walking on the beach. Mrs. Clear heard the report of three revolver shots, and the sound of a bullet after the last shot, and was horrified to see her son fall to the ground with a bullet behind the right ear, and causing instantaneous death. Mrs. Clear was with the body for ten minutes before help could be summoned. An investigation showed that three boys, Bernard and Wolcott Ames and Edward Hoban, were amusing themselves on a marsh off East Bay, by shooting at a target with a 32-calibre revolver and it was undoubtedly a shot from them that caused the accident. The body was brought back to Newton on Wednesday afternoon. The boy was a general favorite and graduated from the parochial grammar school of the Church of Our Lady last June.

Funeral services were held this morning at the Church of Our Lady. A high mass was celebrated at 9 o'clock by Rev. A. S. Malone. Members of the St. Aloysius Society, to which he belonged, and school-mates acted as pall-bearers. The burial was in Calvary Cemetery at Waltham.

CLUB WOMEN'S PROGRESS

Under the title, "The Club Woman and Public Affairs," Mrs. George Bass, chairman of the local Biennial committee, writes in Life and Labor.

"Just on the eve of the great Biennial Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, it is interesting to cast a backward look at the history of the past twenty years and to note the effect on governmental policies of the development of women in organizations into potent factors in community and civic life, and the even greater effect upon the household and upon the life and activities of women themselves, leading finally to their reaching out for the only civic tool which is able to achieve definite and immediate results—the ballot.

"Almost every constructive statute of the past two decades that touches the protection and prevents the exploitation of women, and children, owes its initiation and passage largely to the organized women. And the twentieth century club woman has learned some things that the nineteenth century suffragist did not know, and these are some of them: that women are no longer solely needed or occupied in their homes, because the home occupations are now common occupations; that charity and philanthropy must be communal, and also preventive and remedial; that housing for rich and poor alike must have the same basis of sanitation and decency and comfort, because no family group in our crowded cities can live to or for itself alone; that all these things are dependent upon the honesty and efficiency of the government; that city and county government is not politics, but is business and applied and constructive humanity; and finally, that women have the time, the inclination and the inherited and developed instincts for the practical affairs of the community.

"And so the call to social service and action has brought the modern club woman along an ever broadening path to the high, wind-swept levels, where she sights limitless opportunity for expression and action, and two things she has come to see clearly, first, that she needs the ballot to do this, her natural work, more effectively; and second, that the Commonwealth needs her. It needs her practical, sure touch upon utilities and humanities, and her clear, non-partisan outlook upon the whole field of municipal housekeeping. Full citizenship has come in several States, and Illinois has given it in the fullest measure to the Legislature and grant Woman, alone, of all the enfranchised classes, has had to earn her citizenship and will have to justify it. We believe she will stand the test."—Woman's Journal.

SUMMER BASEBALL

Supt. Ernst Hermann of the Playground Department completed the summer baseball schedule Monday. Each of the nine playgrounds will be represented by at least five teams, a girls' nine, midlets, juniors, intermediates, and senior teams. The girls will use a soft baseball on a 60-foot diamond, the midlets a junior baseball on a 45-foot diamond, the juniors the same ball on a 60-foot diamond, while the intermediates and seniors will play on the regulation 90-foot diamond and with a professional size ball. The schedule opened yesterday in the intermediate division between the Newton Centre team and the Highlands Playgrounds at Newton Centre; the Upper Falls and Lower Falls teams played at Lower Falls and the Stearns and West Newton nines met on Allison Playground.

Today's matches in the senior division are between Stearns and Cabot on Cabot park, West Newton, and Lower Falls at West Newton, and Upper Falls and Highlands at the Upper Falls. In the Junior Division, Newton Centre plays Highlands at the Highlands, Upper Falls plays Lower Falls at the Upper Falls, Stearns plays Cabot at Nonantum and West Newton plays Auburndale at West Newton.

NEW PRESIDENT

Newton Centre Saving Bank Elects Mr. Henry H. Kendall

At the quarterly meeting of the trustees of the Newton Centre Savings Bank on Tuesday, the resignation of the president, Hon. Seward W. Jones, who has just been elected president of the Newton Trust Co., was accepted and Vice-President Henry H. Kendall was chosen to fill Mr. Jones' place. Mr. Norman H. George was then elected vice-president and Mr. Jones and Mr. Frank L. Richardson chosen members of the board of investment to fill vacancies caused by the death of Mr. Dwight Chester and the promotion of Mr. Kendall to the office of president.

The report of the treasurer for the quarter ending July 14, 1914, shows the bank to be in a flourishing condition, and attention is called to the fact that during the last quarter the bank has passed the million dollar mark, having a deposit account of one million seven thousand dollars ($1,007,000).

This bank opened for business July 11, 1896, and so has just passed its eighteenth birthday.

A glance at the records shows that the largest gain in deposits was made in 1903, the gain being one hundred and one thousand dollars ($101,000). In the last ten years the average gain in deposits has been thirty-one thousand dollars ($31,000). For the year ending July 14, 1914, the record shows a gain of eighty thousand dollars ($80,000), the third largest for any one year in the history of the bank, and following an average gain of thirty-one thousand dollars ($31,000) per year for ten years, makes a most satisfactory showing, and proves the bank to be worthy of the confidence and support of the community which it serves.

THE PARLIAMENTARY LAW CLUB

The Newton Parliamentary Law Club was delightfully entertained on Wednesday, July 9, by Miss Elizabeth C. Wood at her beautiful summer home at Manchester-by-the-Sea. The ladies were met at the Manchester station by Miss Wood and conveyed to her home in her splendid automobiles. A delicious luncheon was served on the broad piazzas facing the water. The ladies spent the afternoon enjoying the spacious grounds and flower gardens surrounding the home and the lovely sandy beach in front of it.

A rising vote of thanks was given to Miss Wood for her kind hospitality to the Club. The Club is planning an automobile outing on August 4.

A MERE INCIDENT

By HERBERT E. HAMBLIN.

(Copyright.)

"Well, Mike, an' how's the new b'y?" inquired the other fireman.

Mike waited to finish hauling the blue shirt over his head, and then replied:

"Oh, be hivin', the finest in the worr-ld! Father Casey was in this morn'nin', an' he says ter me, 'Mike Ferrel', says he, 'ye have the big-gest an' han'somest baby on the block, an' that's no lie,' says he."

"I'm worried about Norah, though; she ain't a bit well," Mike continued, the happy look of the proud father giving way to the troubled one of the husband and provider.

"I don't like the way the docther looks at her," he said. "She's not strong, poor gyur-l. I had a bit o' money saved up for this, but Katy got diphtheria an' that tuck it all, so now I haven't a cent; an' I'm owin' a good bit around, too."

"Ah, well," he continued philosophically, as he picked up the heavy slice-bar and tackled the first of his dirty fires. "It's good I have a stiddy job."

After the fires were cleaned and the fire-room washed down, Mike remarked to his mate:

"I ain't had a wink o' sleep these two nights; I'm fatter ter be home in bed today than afore these b'lers, with this rotten coal; but I dassen't lose no time now for a spell."

The conversation was interrupted by the opening of the engine-room door—a bare crack. A hand and the grizzled beard of old Ferguson, the chief, protruded for a brief instant.

"Hey, ketch this!" he called in a stage whisper, as he flung his pipe into the yawning emptiness of the fire-room with a fatalistic confidence that was inspiring.

It seemed as if the entire plant always ran with clock-like smoothness and precision until the very minute the superintendent entered on his inspection tour; then the most unexpected things would happen, giving that fiery-tempered official occasion to berate all concerned. Now, Mike could hear his high-pitched voice, reading the riot act to the chief inside.

After half an hour, the tumult within having subsided, it was believed "His Nibs" had gone without bothering their department, an always hoped for, but seldom realized, experience.

"Mike threw his brass-cleaning equipment in a corner and leaned against the wall. He was completely worn-out. The fire-room was warm and the air heavy with evaporation from the wet floor. Almost immediately he dozed off, standing upright as he was.

Suddenly the engine-room door was flung wide open. A tall, bony, stoop-shouldered man, his face nearly hidden by a fiery red broom of a beard, stood squarely in the doorway, both hands in his overcoat pockets, glaring savagely into the fire-room.

The super's eyes at once nalled the sleeping man. Not a facial quiver betrayed his intentions. Slowly, deliberately, he entered the fire-room and traversed its length, scanning every detail with a quick, comprehensive glance.

A long, bony finger shot out from the superintendent's side and bored a hole between Mike's ribs. The big fireman's eyes came open slowly, and, to a disinterested spectator, the transformation that passed over his features would have appeared comical.

"Hey, how long have you been here?"

"So-r-r?" asked bewildered Mike.

"How long have you worked here?"

"Goin' on eight years, s-o-r-r."

"What time do you get relieved?"

"At twilve o'clock, s-o-r-r."

"All right; when you go out, you stay out, do you hear?"

"Yis, s-o-r-r."

As the superintendent flitted away to deal to Darby and the coal-passer their respective doses of venom, it suddenly dawned upon Mike that he was discharged. The spirit of murder welled up in his heart, but he restrained it. Nobody had ever accomplished anything by an appeal to His Nibs, except to add to that amiable gentleman's gratification—but Mike's need was desperate.

For the sake of Norah and the baby, he would humble himself. Choking back the desire to kill, he feigned humility and approached the tyrant.

"Ay ye please, s-o-r-r, Mr.—"

"Get out—get out—I don't want any talk from you; your steam is two pounds low now."

"But, s-o-r-r, I only wanted ter ax ye—"

"Shut up—shut up, I tell ye—get away from me; ye're drunk."

Having thus glibly pronounced the doom of a family, His Nibs hastened to the office of the chief fireman, his appetite for blood merely whetted.

As Mike packed up the traps that had accumulated in his closet during his more than seven years' incumbency, he kept muttering to himself: "An' me wid on'y wan day's pay alrined."

When the relief came in at noon Billy Doyle slapped him on the shoulder.

"Hello, Mike, what ye lookin' so blue about? Have His Nibs been troo?"

As Mike picked up his bundle and shambled toward the door, he replied wearily: "He have."

MADE WITH FRIED RHUBARB

Kentucky Delicacy That Has Many Admirers Those Who Are Good Eaters.

The Kentucky variation of fried rhubarb pie is as follows: Cook the rhubarb to a thick, sweet marmalade, flavoring with orange, lemon, nutmeg or ginger, according to fancy, or a few large seeded and chopped raisins may be cooked with the rhubarb. The crust is made of rich biscuit or shortcake dough, rolled thin as possible and size of a tea plate, fried in an iron frying pan and turned like a pancake. As each one is fried a nice brown, it is spread with the marmalade. Four or five are put together like layer cake, and served hot, cutting them like pie. The crust must be short enough to be tender and fried a crisp, but not hard, brown, cutting easily.

Many readers have asked for directions for making rhubarb jelly for dessert. Cut a pound of the fruit into inch lengths and put into a baking dish with a pint of sugar, a pint of water and a little ginger root. Bake until the rhubarb is tender. Soften half a boxful of gelatin with half a cupful of cold water, using the pink gelatin. Dissolve over hot water and strain into the rhubarb; then add the juice of a lemon. Pour into a mold wet with cold water and set away to get firm. Serve with garnish of whipped cream and clear lemon jelly made quite stiff and cut in cubes.—Lida Ames Willis.

CARE OF THE REFRIGERATOR

Matter That Is of Much Importance in the Preservation of Family's Health.

Cleanliness does come "next to godliness" as regards your refrigerator—more, perhaps, than in any other part of the establishment. The housekeeper's first aim regarding her refrigerator must be absolute cleanliness. A few hints concerning this article may be helpful to the inexperienced.

Look over the ice box daily. Wash it at least three times a week. If the pipe connecting the ice chamber and drip pan is adjustable it should be removed and scalded once a week, for you will be surprised to notice the green slime that forms an inside coating. Do not simply empty the drip pan once or twice daily. Clean it regularly also. There is nothing better for the purpose than old-fashioned "salt soda" combined with plenty of boiling water.

Never be guilty of putting ice in the chest wrapped in newspapers. That is well enough to keep in a box or tub and is good at times. It is more sanitary to wash ice before placing it in the ice chamber, and you avoid the risk of clogging the waste pipe with particles of straw and sawdust.

One-Prong Fork.

A clever housewife has almost invented a kitchen tool. Taking an ordinary, long-handled, three-pronged cook's fork, she filed off the two outer prongs, leaving only one, and uses this to test whether a vegetable or piece of meat is tender. The one prong makes less mark and is less apt to break the food than the three pronged. The fork is good also to remove caps from milk bottles, and especially so in taking olives and other foods from long-necked bottles and cans, such as sections of fruit, etc. Indeed, this housekeeper believes that she couldn't "keep kitchen" without it.

When You Sweep.

For sweeping a room neatly there is nothing like newspaper aid. Take a page of newspaper or other convenient paper, wet in hot water and squeeze until it ceases to drip. Tear into pieces the size of one's hand, cast them all over the carpet, then sweep and most of the dust in the room, if you use your broom judiciously, will be gathered into the papers. After a velvet or other heavy pile carpet is thoroughly swept, a sponging with ammonia and water will preserve its brightness wonderfully.

Boiled Salmon.

One and one-half pound piece of salmon, put in double boiler with good slice of butter; season with salt and pepper, a little parsley, mace, thyme, sage, celery and onion; cover tightly and let steam one and one-half hours without uncovering; then add one and one-half glasses of white wine, with a little lemon juice; steam 20 minutes longer and serve. Bouillon may be used instead of wine if preferred.

Connecticut Corn Bread.

Sift together one cupful each of corn meal and flour, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, a half teaspoonful of soda, a half teaspoonful of salt and three tablespoonfuls of sugar. Add one cupful of sour cream or sweet milk. If the milk is used add also two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Lastly, add two eggs without beating. Mix well and bake 20 minutes in a steady oven.

Corn Fritters.

Beat two eggs light with a cupful of milk, to which have been added a pinch of soda and a tablespoonful of melted butter; stir into this two cupfuls of cooked or canned corn, chopped fine; add two tablespoonfuls of flour and salt and pepper to taste, and fry on a soapstone griddle. Eat hot as you would griddle cakes.

To Make Sweet Corn Tender.

Use sugar, instead of salt, when boiling corn, as it makes it tender and sweet. Serve with butter and salt.

ICED TEA FOR SULTRY DAYS

No Better Hot-Weather Beverage Than This Preparation Has Ever Been Devised.

There is probably no drink more refreshing and none that can be more attractively served than iced tea. It can be made before it is needed and kept on hand, always chilled, in the ice box, or it can be made at a moment's notice, provided there is plenty of ice, plenty of fresh boiling water and the right sort of tea on hand.

There are two methods of making iced tea and both have their exponents. One says to put cracked ice in a glass and then put in a slice or so of lemon and, sweetness is liked, a sufficient number of lumps of sugar. Then make tea, rather strong, with freshly boiling water. After the water has stood on the ground for four or five minutes pour the tea on the ice. A safeguard against broken glasses is to put a spoon in each glass. The spoon serves as a conductor of heat.

The other method for making iced tea is more economical, for, according to it the tea is made and poured into a big bottle, fruit jar or covered jug or pitcher, when it is sufficiently strong and then stood in the ice box until it is thoroughly chilled. Slices of lemon and sugar can be added before or after it is served, and a little chopped ice adds not only to the deliciousness but also to the sound of the tea—and nothing is more suggestive of refreshment when the mercury is climbing than the sound of tinkling ice and glass.

BEST WAY OF DOING THINGS

Trio of Useful Aids to Good Housewifery and Preservation of a Tranquil State of Mind.

To make candles last double the usual time, take each candle by the wick and give it a good coat of white varnish. Put the candles away a day or two to let them harden. The varnish prevents the grease from running down and so prolongs the life of the candle.

To remove scorch marks on linen (unless they are very bad) cut an onion in half and rub the scorched part with it; then soak in cold water. The marks will soon disappear under this treatment if they can be remedied at all.

To clean light colored or drab cloth spats or gaiters and shootproofs, peel and wash some potatoes, then grate them into a basin, and while quite wet apply to the surface of the gaiters and shootproofs. Put in the open air to dry and then brush the grated potato off with a clean brush.

To mend a coal scuttle that has holes in the bottom take a piece of cork lino or linoleum and cut as near as possible to the shape and size of the bottom of the scuttle then scrape the bottom of the scuttle until it is quite clean. Next apply a moderate amount of glue, and also put some on the piece of linoleum. Place the lino or linoleum in the bottom of the coal scuttle, fill up with coal and allow to stand a few hours. It will then be firmly set, and the scuttle will last quite a long time, "as good as new."

Boiled Peas and Beans.

My mother used to soak peas over night (otherwise it takes all day to boil them). In the morning wash them and put in a kettle with twice as much water as peas, a piece of salt pork, let boil steadily, but be sure to watch them, as the water boils away very soon. Add more, as you must keep them very moist. Salt and pepper to taste. They are very tasty, we think, and then again mother used to soak over night and in the morning wash and put in bean pot. Boil a little first to soften them, with a piece of pork (mixed), pepper and salt, and bake like beans, and they are fine. We often on Wednesdays boil some beans the same as peas, and they taste fine. Hope you will try and like them.—Mary Clare, in Boston Globe.

Lamb a la Russe.

Serve lamb very tenderly cooked with a brown gravy to which slices of lemon and cucumber (gherkin) have been added.

For the next course have ready a rich pastry dough and roll it very thin, a square in form. Spread this with a savory forcemeat of chopped cooked mushrooms, rice, hard-boiled eggs and cold veal, moistened with butter and broth, and roll it from edge to edge like a "rolly-poly." Put into baking dish, sprinkle the top with bread crumbs and bake one hour. It is to be sliced and served with a wine sauce.

Ginger Creams.

To one package of cream cheese add a dozen seeded and finely chopped table raisins. Take enough sirup from preserved ginger to make with one tablespoonful of whipped cream a spreading paste; one branch of the ginger may be added if chopped or ground very fine. Spread on rye bread and cut into rounds.

Pineapple Pie.

Peel and slice a pineapple and remove the hard center; chop fine, and bruise the pulp in a mortar, adding a little lemon juice, a pint of water, and eight tablespoonfuls of sugar. Mix all together, pounding well, then strain and freeze.

Practical Window Screens.

In making window screens, put white netting on the outside of the frame and black on the inside; thus the vision of a person inside will not be obstructed, while no one on the outside can see through the screens.

THE UGLY CIRCLE

By GEORGE FOXHALL.

(Copyright.)

Snarler Kelly peered through the bars into the prison cell in which sat, sullen, defiant and nursing a desperate revenge, his only son.

"How is it, Jim? Cheer up, boy. Two years don't last long."

"No, it won't be long," agreed the son. "Don't worry about me."

"Jim, I know you never pulled that job. Somebody's stuck the goods on you an' got you in queer."

The other looked up with slow inquiry. "What makes you think so?" he asked.

"Think so! Weren't you always too blamed honest to euit your dad? You'd act tough an' ugly, an' rough house it with the best of 'em; but I never could get you to be anything but honest. Somebody's crooked this on to you, an' I'm going to find out who did it."

His father leered at him through half-closed eyes of infinite cunning. "Be waiting for me when I come out," assented Jim, with more of warmth and life than he had shown before, "and let me know who it is. I guess two years won't make me love him more."

His father turned and passed into the light of the free air, while the son looked after him with a scowl of dreadful hate.

Snarler Kelly plugged doggedly alongside the railroad track and meditated on ugliness. Even apart from the dismal desert landscape he had plenty of material for meditation, for to achieve ugliness had been the ambition of his degenerate life, and in that, at least, he had not failed.

But it's the boy, Jim, with whom this story is chiefly concerned. The Snarler had built up fond hopes of being mighty proud of Jim, for at an early age Jim showed himself an apt pupil in the lessons of ugliness which his fond parent constantly instilled.

One day, the time, in the estimation of the Snarler, being ripe for more definite instruction in the training of his offspring, he had broached unto Jim the pulling of a pretty bit of villainy which was to nourish his own empty exchequer and start the young man upon his natural career.

The boy listened until the man was through, his eyes on the ground and his accustomed scowl knitting his brow. Then he looked up.

"That's thieving, ain't it?" he inquired.

The Snarler was a little taken aback for a moment. To qualify things had never occurred to him.

"Sure, Mike," he said uneasily.

"Then count me out," growled Jim.

So the kid refused his career, and the Snarler, after hiding his disgust in three days of oblivion, resumed his with the careful cowardice of the petty sneak-thief.

A SMALL DEFICIT

At a meeting of the Newton Business Men Wednesday evening, the treasurer of the Fourth of July Fund reported total receipts of about $750 with some small uncollected accounts, and a total expense of over $780, leaving a small deficit. Contributions to make up this deficit will be gratefully received by the treasurer, J. C. Brimblecom, Box 205, Newton.

The treasurer acknowledges subscriptions from G. E. Jewett, W. H. Barker, Mrs. F. E. Stanley, C. R. Watt, Hon. H. E. Bothfield, J. B. Jamieson, A. W. Blakemore, W. T. Rich, Dr. H. C. Spencer, E. H. The Snarler laughed, a trifle uneasily and sheepishly.

"What's the matter, Jim?" said he. "Don't you know your old dad? You sure are an ugly guy."

And Jim put his face close to his father's.

"You bet I'm an ugly guy. You trained me in ugliness, an' I'm learning every day. Your name's scratched on this day, an' there's a sheriff at the next stop. It's an ugly circle, an' you've drew it yourself. Turn around."

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Reasons Which Have Been Awarded a Prize On This Question

The following answers were awarded first prize at a recent contest at Waltham to the above question.

1. They are citizens, and therefore, entitled to a voice in making the laws which they are governed.
2. They are taxpayers, forced to help the machinery of government, and story upholds their contention that taxation without representation is "ranny."
3. They are home-makers, and need a ballot to protect the home from adulterated food, diseased meat, and infected clothing.
4. They are mothers, and, therefore, fitted by nature to set the standard by which the public shall treat their children, and their child-welfare effective they must have the vote.
5. They are wives, and realize the necessity for social purity. They need the ballot to help elect candidates who favor strict vice regulations.
6. They are sweethearts, and intend in their future homes to prompt the desire to aid actively in securing fair wages and an eight-hour law for men.
7. They are daughters, and, rightly, mindful of their parents' welfare. They need the ballot to swell the ranks of the humanitarians who will vote for old-age pensions.
8. They are women, and for centuries have been condemned by convention to confine their activities within the walls of home.
9. They are workers, and have entered the industrial world to stay, therefore, need the ballot to protect themselves.
10. Actual experience in the equal suffrage state has proved the stock arguments against woman suffrage to be groundless; for women have not stirred the home or family while they have shown their fitness to vote for the interests of humanity.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES AT LOS ANGELES

Mrs. Mary Proctor Lamb, the wife of Mr. W. A. Lamb, a former well known resident of the Morse Field section of Newton, died last week Monday at her home in Los Angeles, Cal.

For the past eighteen years the family has been prominent in that city and has always been identified with public enterprises. Mrs. Lamb at the time of her death was a director of the McKinley Home for Boys, of the Florence Crittenton Home and of the Crittenton Home. She was a member of the Psychopathic Parole Society, and for fifty years had been an active teacher in Sunday School. Born in Taubody, Mass., she was a member of a distinguished New England family related to the Putnams and the Emersons. Her father, Abel Proctor, was brother of Thomas Proctor, the Boston millionaire leather manufacturer, and a relative of Edna Dean Proctor, the writer. Her mother was an Emerson of the Ralph Waldo Emerson family, and Mrs. Lamb inherited the strong intellectual characteristics of her distinguished ancestors. Her sympathetic and analytical mind has unraveled many a tangled skein in the life history of unfortunate girls toward whom she had a great and compassionate love. Perhaps no higher tribute could be paid to this gifted woman than that her "strong soul spent its strength in fighting the battles for the victims of misfortune. Before the Humane Society she has eloquently pleaded the cause of many a case, and ever failed to win her point.

Conscious of approaching death, she asked that a room might be furnished and named for her in the new Florence Crittenton Home about to be built, and that a special gift also be made by her family to the McKinley and Strickland homes in her memory.

Mrs. Lamb is survived by her husband, one daughter, Miss Ellen Augusta Lamb of Los Angeles, and a son, Mr. Porter Emerson Lamb of Burlington, Cal.

The public purse pays the politician's philanthropies and promissory note; but private pockets have to fill the public purse.

POST OFFICE FIGURES

Enormous Growth of This Important Part of the Nation's Government

In a recent talk on "The Postal Service" Postmaster Edward C. Mansfield of Boston took occasion to express his disbelief in government ownership of institutions for serving the public, his reason being that government ownership tends to retard the inventive genius of the people, and so blocks advancement in the quality of the service. He was speaking of the pneumatic tubes for carrying the mail from sub-stations to main offices. At present, these are leased by the government, but the leases expire in 1916, and there has been more or less discussion as to the advisability of buying them, instead of renewing the leases. A committee of post office inspectors, of whom Mr. Mansfield was one, some time ago recommended releasing rather than buying.

Mr. Mansfield quoted many astounding figures to give an idea of the magnitude of the business of the postal department. His figures, which were for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, included such inconceivable statements as that 13,589,000,000 postage stamps were sold that year; $90,000,000 was sent in money orders, and over 42,000,000 packages were registered. In the service, there are 325,000 employees, and 58,000 post offices.

The department is necessarily very well organized in order that this immense amount of work can be accomplished. There are at Washington a postmaster general, a chief clerk for the department, an attorney general for the department, a purchasing agent, and a large corps of clerks and inspectors.

Each assistant has charge of certain features of the work, one being responsible for the employing of clerks and carriers, the appointing of postmasters, the handling of complaints; another looks after the transportation of the mail by the railroads, steamships and other carriers; another has charge of the finances of the department, including stamps and postal savings; also the classification of matter to be mailed; and the fourth assistant is at the head of the rural free delivery service and the dead letter office.

Space precludes a detailed account of many points in Mr. Mansfield's talk, but, briefly, some of his interesting statements were: (1) The payment of clerks and carriers is from $800 to $1200 per year, the average being between $1000 and $1100; (2) to determine rates with railroads, every four years, for a period of ninety days all sacks of mail are weighed, and the contents of the next four years are based on this weighing (the postmaster general working with the Interstate Commerce Commission has power to change these rates); (3) pneumatic tubes for carrying mail in large cities were first tried in Boston, where there are now nearly seven miles of tube; in only five other cities are they used, and there are only 67 miles in all; (4) by selling stamps in books, charging one cent more than for the same number of loose stamps, the government makes $200,000 a year; (5) stamps in coils to the value of over $7,000,000 were sold last year; (6) 14,000,000 pieces were sent to the Dead Letter office last year, as a monument to the carelessness of mankind; half of these were returned to the senders; over $50,000 in cash was thus returned, and $2,500,000 in checks and money orders.

Speaking of the improvements in the postal service, Mr. Mansfield said that greater advancement had been made in the last five or six years than ever before. An efficiency record system, designed to furnish a more equitable standard for promotion than favoritism and political pull, has been established and has produced good results. Postal savings banks, first opened on January 1, 1911, have grown until, on June 1, 1913, there were over 300,000 depositors, with an average capital of $102 in the banks. Parcel Post has been introduced, with undreamed of success. The closing of post offices on Sunday, which a few years ago would have been declared impossible, has been accomplished, and Continental Express is to take title.

MANY YEARS AN INVALID

Mr. Horatio Carter, a resident of this city for fifty years, died on Friday at his residence on Austin street after an illness of about twenty-five years, most of that time being practically helpless.

Mr. Carter was born in Lancaster, Mass., and was 79 years of age. He served thruout the Civil War in the 24th Massachusetts Volunteers and was an orderly sergeant of his company.

Following the war he was connected with the well known paper warehouse of Carter, Rice & Co. of Boston, until his illness.

He is a member of Charles Ward Post 62. Two sons survive, Mr. William W. Carter of New York, and Mr. Horace D. Carter of Portland, Ore.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist Church on Monday afternoon and there was a large attendance. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. James W. Campbell, and the Mendelssohn quartet sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," "Eternal Goodness" and "Nearer My God to Thee." Officers of Charles Ward Post then read the impressive burial ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The interment was at Newton Cemetery.

POLITICAL NOTES

Mr. James Mott Hallowell of Reservoir avenue, Chestnut Hill, has taken out papers for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

Major Fred P. Barnes of Otis street, West Newton, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for County Commissioner in opposition to Hon. Levi S. Gould of Melrose, the present chairman of the commission.

An open air meeting under the auspices of the Newton Democratic Club will be held next Tuesday evening at the corner of Chapel and Watertown streets, Nonantum. The meeting will be addressed by Miss Margaret Foley of Boston.

AUBURDALE REAL ESTATE

E. Burnard Squire reports the signing of agreements for the transfer of the Edward Strong estate, 33 Hancock street. There is a house of 12 rooms and more than an acre of land. The assessed value is $9300. Lillian G. Floyd of Winthrop is to take title.

EXAMINATION ORDERED

Public Service Commission To Obtain Facts From Street Railway Company

As a result of the recent petition of the Waltham Board of Trade, the Public Service Commission has issued the following order:

Ordered, That Justin W. Lester, chief accountant, and Henry W. Hayes, engineer of the Commission, be instructed forthwith to examine the books and accounts and the physical property of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Co., including, so far as possible, all accounts of the constituent companies making up the present corporation, and be prepared to advise the Commission orally or in writing as the Commission may hereafter direct, as to all pertinent facts concerning said property particularly all facts having any bearing on the right of said corporation to an increase of rates as shown in a schedule filed with this Commission July 3, 1914.

(Signed)
ALLEN BROOKS, Clerk.
It is said that the formal hearing before the Commission has been assigned for Wednesday, Aug. 5.

BADLY BURNED

Benjamin J. Glidden, a lineman of the Edison Co., was seriously injured and narrowly escaped death when he came in contact with a live wire while working at the top of a pole on Bridge street in Nonantum. He was thrown heavily to the ground when 4600 volts of electricity passed thru his body.

His left arm and right leg were severely burned and the right side badly bruised by his fall from the 35-foot pole.

He was taken to the Newton Hospital and will recover.

Mr. Glidden is a resident of Revere.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD

Mrs. Elizabeth E. McLean, wife of Henry McLean of 162 Circuit road, Winthrop Centre, Mass., died July 16th. Mrs. McLean formerly lived at 14 St. James street, Newton, but has been a resident of Winthrop for the past five years.

The funeral was private and was held last Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

She is survived by her husband three daughters and a son, Miss Laura B. McLean, Miss Albert H. Wright of Quincy, Mass., Mrs. William S. Hamilton of Williamstown, Mass., and William H. McLean of Cambridge, Mass.

TWO ALARM FIRE

Loss of Many Thousands at Lucas Mill, West Newton

Two alarms from box 35 in rapid succession about 5.30 last Saturday night summoned all the apparatus of the city and assistance from Waltham for a bad fire in the Lucas Mill, off Washington street, West Newton, near the railroad bridge.

The flames were seen coming thru the roof before the first alarm was rung in by a small boy, who first noticed the blaze, the mill being shut down for the afternoon.

John Bakstran, engineer of the mill, and Newton F. Lucas, a relative of the owner, were in the vicinity and attacked the fire with two emergency hose lines while waiting for the apparatus. They declare the fire appeared to have its start under a saw-table on the second floor and that it spread with incredible rapidity. On his arrival, Chief Ranlett ordered a second alarm and this automatically called help from Waltham.

The blaze burned out the second floor and destroyed much of the roof, while valuable wood-working machinery on the first floor was thoroughly drenched. A number of wagon loads of finished work was piled on the first floor, while all materials on the second floor were ruined. While the fire was at its height a close watch was kept for roof fires in the neighborhood, as a lively breeze was blowing at the time.

A dense smoke came from the fire and the strong westerly wind drove it down Washington street for a long distance, causing considerable discomfort, as well as some fear that the fire might become a conflagration and sweep thru the village.

The location of the mill, which touches Border street on the north, allowed the firemen to attack the blaze from all sides and it was soon under control. The open trench of the Edison Co. conduit was some trouble and it was found that a hydrant on Washington street was broken underground, somewhat reducing the pressure on that particular line.

A large crowd gathered quickly to watch the progress of the fire and the street car lines were tied up both on Washington and Elm streets. Arrangements were made, however, to run cars each way from West Newton and traffic was only slightly delayed in consequence.

The damaged mill has been the scene of a number of small fires and is regarded as a danger spot. Saturday's blaze was of unknown origin and the loss is covered by insurance.

MY SOLILOQUY

I sometimes think to myself, well, old boy,
When I am called to take the jump,
And reach that place where the best and worst
Must bump the eternal bump.
I can smile to myself and chuckle,
Though the path be exceedingly hot,
For while I lived I was moving some,
Isn't that a holy thought?

EDITORIAL

Some interesting facts bearing on the tax rate for the present year will be announced within a few weeks by the assessors. We can glean from the following figures and comparisons:

The city appropriations are $1,538,398.77 as against $1,440,942.92 in 1913, an increase of about $97,000. The state tax is $154,000 compared with $140,800 last year, an increase of $13,200. The county taxes are $34,953.75 as against $31,031.52, an increase of nearly $4,000. The various metropolitan and miscellaneous items amount to $123,979.02 as compared with similar items in 1913 of $126,562.67, a reduction of $2,583.65. These figures total $1,900,832.54 as compared with similar items in 1913 of $1,779,337.11, an increase of $121,495.43. Last year the assessors reduced the above item of $1,779,337.11 by amounts totalling $301,841.68, of which something like $31,000 were for "free assets in treasury." It is said that the new system of accounting will eliminate this item entirely, so that that credit cannot be figured by the assessors in fixing the tax levy. There is some prospect that the estimate receipts of last year amounting to over $225,000 may be somewhat increased, but this sum is uncertain and may not be much larger than last year. It will thus be seen that the assessors in fixing the tax rate for 1914 must include not only the $121,000 increase in appropriations over last year, but must also add the $81,000 loss from the item for free assets in the treasury, making something like $150,000 additional to be raised this year, as compared with 1913.

The valuations will undoubtedly increase, the average annual increase for the past five years being about one million dollars, that for 1913 over one million dollars. But as one million dollars of valuation at the present rate of taxation yields only $18,200, it will be easily seen that the valuations must increase to the unheard-of amount of over eight millions to meet the increase in expenses, or the rate must be substantially increased. Estimating an increase in valuations of two million dollars, something over $190,000 of the increased expense will have to be met by an increase in the tax rate, and as one dollar on the rate will then raise about $84,000 it means a possible increase in the rate of about 1.50, or a rate of 19.70. Let us hope that these figures can be materially reduced by our efficient board of assessor.

The failure of our city government to remedy the dangerous conditions in Nonantum square and at Weston bridge will not appear serious until some one is injured or killed at these dangerous places in our community.
A recent count at Weston bridge on a Sunday afternoon gave 164 automobiles passing in the course of a half hour,
an average of one every 12 seconds.
With 120 feet of Commonwealth avenue narrowed to 21 feet at this bridge and this amount of travel, it doesn't take an expert engineer to realize the seriousness of the situation. The Town of Weston has already authorized its board of selectmen to co-operate in this matter and the responsibility for future accidents rests on the city of Newton.

The same situation, only in a greater degree, applies to Nonantum square.
It is not necessary for the Planning Commission to give long and careful consideration to this problem, calling for the expenditure of large sums for taking land and buildings. Seventy-five per cent of the congestion can be relieved by taking the Middlesex & Boston cars out of the square, either stopping them in front or near the bank, or better still, running a loop around the bank building. This action should be taken at once and will not affect any future development accepted by the Planning Commission. The responsibility of accidents in this place
also rests with the city of Newton.
Something should be done at once on the lines suggested above.

FOR SALE

I would like very much to comment editorially on the matter of increase of fares on the local street railway system, and give full measure of justice to the company's side of the case, but when letters asking for information from the company officials are absolutely ignored, the only safe course to pursue is to oppose the matter until the company is ready to give the information necessary to form an intelligent opinion.

While this subject is before the Public Service Commission it might be well to also take up the present inequitable system of transfers and fare limits. Points within the city of Newton are supposed to be reached with in a somewhat wide acquaintance with Newton and its people, I know of no one person who had a greater public spirit than the late Horatio Carter, whose death is noted this week. Confined to his bed for many, many years with a disease which made him practically helpless, so that he had to be moved by some sort of a harness, he maintained a remarkable interest in outside affairs, particularly those that bore on the moral and economic side of life, and with much labor and pain kept up a considerable correspondence on these lines. In spite of his serious physical handicaps, he bore pain with fortitude and always presented a happy and optimistic face to a wide circle of friends.

We are glad that death has relieved his sufferings but we mourn the loss of his cheerful outlook on life and his cheerful spirit for years to come.
The memory of his courage in tribulation
and his remarkable faith in humanity,
the present six cent transfer, and yet
the fare from Lake street to any point on the Stow-Street line in Newton is eleven cents. The same thing is true between Lake street and parts of Newton not covered by the Washington street line, crossing Commonwealth avenue. Persons living on the Stowstreet line in Newton can reach their homes from the centre of Waltham for six cents by travelling all the way round thru West Newton and Newton-ville, but cannot transfer at the corner of High and Moody streets in Waltham to the Stow street line, altho this plan would save time as well as considerable mileage. Now that the subject of street railway transportation is under consideration, let us include all the questions which are causing criticism by the travelling public.

Mr. Arthur W. Blakemore of this city showed himself a true sportsman

week at the Longwood Tennis tournament in order that Mr. R. N. Williams, time to recover from the exhausting effects of the Seabright tournament.

THOUGHTS FOR EVERY DAY

Sunday
When the logs are burning free,
Then the fire is full of glee;
Then each heart gives out its best,
Then the talk is full of zest.
Light your fire and never fear,
Life was made for love and cheer.
—Henry van Dyke.

Monday
"To put ourselves in harmony with the day we celebrate, leave out of the whole scheme the idea of what anybody will say or think, and start out to store up sunshine and cheerfulness, and keep aloof from all the whole category of detestable conventions which are based on 'what is expected of us';
stretch out our boundaries toward the poor, and narrow the limits of all that savors of 'give and take.'"

Tuesday
"I will make hope and only hope
My horoscope."
The sombre, brooding clouds of discontent
Oppress one's spirit like a throbbing pain;
One frets and moans in one's environment.
But with a look ahead I sing again,
I will make hope and only hope
My horoscope."

Wednesday
Just to be good—to keep life pure from the degrading elements, to make it constantly helpful in little ways to those who are touched by it, to keep one's spirit always sweet, and avoid all manner of petty anger and irritability—that is an ideal as noble as it is difficult.—Edward Howard Griggs.

Thursday
There is not the least use in preaching to any one unless you chance to catch him ill.—Sidney Smith.

Friday
"There ain't never no use in borrerin' trouble an' givin' up your peace of mind as security, 'cause you don't never git the security back!"

Saturday
"There are two great classes of women—those who minister, and those who are taken care of by others; and the born caretakers and workers are apt to chafe in early life, before people will recognize their right to do."

LIFE'S PHILOSOPHY

It is always right to detect a fraud and perceive a folly, but it is often very wrong to expose either.—Chesterfield.

He that will have a cake out of the wheat must needs tarry the grinding.

Political Tares

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D. D.
Dean of the Moody Bible Institute,
Chicago

TEXT—"While men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat." Matt. 13:25.

The approach of our national holiday gives occasion for a discourse on our political situation
from a Christian standpoint. This nation is a trust
from God for whose wise administration we shall all be held proportionately responsible. Moreover the maintenance of God's honor and the progress of his kingdom are so affected
by human governments that he is not only a weak citizen but a weak Christian who, making one in a republic, allows himself to become indifferent to its administration.

There have been those who have believed this nation to be a peculiar favorite of God. They have felt that he led thither those who laid its foundation upon Plymouth Rock. That he nerved the hearts of their successors who cemented its masonry with the blood of Bunker Hill and Yorktown. They have felt, to change the figure, that these men sowed good seed in this field, but while men slept, while we have all been engrossed in our schemes for wealth, an enemy hath sowed tares. The situation today is not the harvest our forefathers would have wished. It is not the legiti-mate outcome of the Declaration of Independence.

I. One of our political tares is the peculiar tide of immigration to our shores, the character of which has changed radically within a few years.
Our first settlers had an inborn spirit of freedom and a past history of conquest and success, and their immediate successors, though sometimes inferior in other respects, were of kindred blood, and came from lands
where the spirit of liberty and the political duties of the individual have been cherished. They have thus been easily assimilated and have helped to build up the prosperity of the country.
But it is not so with reference to the present immigrants, many of whom have been down-trodden politically, and have no ideal of citizenship. We should rejoice, indeed, at an opportunity to be a blessing to them, but we should not swallow more of them than we are able to digest.

II. Another of these "tares" is the liquor traffic, lying as it does at the center of all political and social mischief, and paralyzing energies in every direction. The responsibility of Christian citizens lies in their willingness to permit it to exist, and worse still to permit it to exist for a consideration. It is impossible to destroy the appetite, but it is not impossible to deny the opportunity to gratify the appetite by law. Has not the time come for Christians who know the meaning of the Declaration of Independence, to say nothing of the Decalogue, to break the shackles which bind them to a social custom, to a blind prejudice, or even to a political party, in order to serve their homes, their God and their native land in driving this rum demon from our shores?

III. Another of these "tares" is the secularization of the Sabbath day—
a growing tendency to change that day from a holy day into a holiday, to convert it from a day of rest into a day of labor, to neglect the public worship of God, the sacred observance of his laws for the sake of social pleasures and business gains.

Who is responsible for these things?
Could secular enterprises prosper on the Lord's day if Christians frowned upon them? And has not God a controversy with us for these things?
Will he not avenge himself on such a nation as this? How can we have religion without worship? And how can we have worship without a Sabbath?

What can we do about these things?
(1) We can throw the weight of our example on the right side. We can certainly do this so far as the keeping of the Sabbath is concerned, and so far as the liquor traffic is concerned. God would have saved Sodom had there been ten righteous men in that place.

(2) We may throw a ballot on the right side. As Joseph Cook once said:
"The managing politicians care for nothing but arithmetic and, therefore,
one of our supreme duties is to stand up, and stand together, and be counted." The powers that are to be ordained of God, and as God's servants we are to see that his will, and not the will of Satan, is carried out in the selection of them.

(3) There is a third thing we can do, and that is pray. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man avaleth much. Remember Abraham's intercession for Sodom and Nehemiah's for Jerusalem. But alas, how little do we pray for these things!
Alas for our patriotism when we are besieging the throne of grace!

SMART COATEE BLOUSE

LATEST NOVELTY THAT HAS BEEN BROUGHT OUT.

In Design It Resembles a Modified Bolero Jacket—Really Clever Combination, and is Bound to Be Popular.

When the king and queen of England were in Paris all the streets and avenues took on a gala appearance.
The sun was royally generous to this royal meeting, as it has been throughout every hour of each day of their majesties' visit, and on all sides
the advent of warm weather was heralded by lovely gowns and suits that shone as a veritable rainbow of brilliant colors.

An interested spectator in the grandstand wore the extremely smart coatee blouse that I have sketched for today.
This style of blouse, that rather resembles a modified bolero jacket, is quite the latest novelty, and it is bound to find favor in the eye of those who dislike the appearance of a blouse and skirt on the street without a jacket, for both blouse and jacket were cleverly combined in the general effect of this design.

In this case the blouse was of georgette crepe, a delightful new material for dainty waists, and it was made on exceptionally good lines.

Except in front, where it ran off, curving up to the bust, the lower edge was even all round, and hung over and below the belt about two inches, then,

Crepe.

at a high waist line, a cording terminated in a scroll at either end held in a line of gathering about the sides and across the back. The back of the blouse was slightly gathered to a square shallow shoulder yoke, with a similar cording. Long sleeves, prettily finished with double-ruffled cuffs, were set into straight extended armholes. A flaring medall collar of fine white batiste finished the neck and is run under by a narrow tie of the waist material outlining the edges of the blouse fronts and crossed under the bust, hooking in place beneath. Narrow lapels with a square cutout border and an outline of French knots side
the necessary finish at either side.

As the front of the blouse was very open to its lower edge, hung free over the girdle, it was necessary to wear a little net of batiste sleeveless gumpie underneath, and this was merely shirred about the top and bloused over a sash girdle whose ends hung out below the coatlike blouse in back—

Star.

TO KEEP HANDS IN CONDITION

Important, After Cleansing, to Rub Lather Well In Until It Is Absorbed.

Use a soap rich in oil and containing no alkali to crack and harden the skin. Castile soap is good, but there are other good soaps that are just as suitable. After the hands have been cleansed and thoroughly rinsed, a lather made from the soap should be rubbed into the hands and wrists. Continue the rubbing until all the lather has been absorbed or there is very little to wipe away. The oil feeds the skin, keeps it soft and prevents the shriveled appearance and feeling which comes especially to hands that are kept for long periods in hot water.
Hands thus treated are soft and white.
It is important to remember that the lather which is rubbed in is not the lather with which the hands are cleansed, but a fresh lather, made after the cleansing has been completed.

Draped Skirts.

Feminine fashions are really feminine just now; we've grown tired of trying to look mannish, and have turned to frills and drappings with relief. The skirts are somewhat longer than for some time past, yet the draped ones give an effect of shortness, though this is from the manner of their looping rather than from their actual cut. One can have her skirt draped anyhow just now, looped front or back as one prefers the Oriental or the brand new bustle effect.

HER CROWNING GLORY

By MARGARITA WILLOUGHBY.

(Copyright.)
Dorothea was very happy in the first weeks of her engagement, happy in the serenely unconscious way of the newly betrothed. I scarcely understood why in this case, for marriage to the Puritan could be nothing but a marriage of convenience—that is, convenience as far as his wealth was concerned, inconvenience when it came to his piety.

Perhaps the trousseau was the source of her beatitude, for Dorothea is an artist in regard to clothes and loves them with an artist's fervor. And an artist's fervor was put into that trousseau!

In the midst of these splendid preparations came Aunt Nan's sickness, and Dorothea was called South.

The Puritan chafed somewhat at the sudden postponement. During the months of Dorothea's absence I knew very little of her, for her letters were mere telegraphic notices of Aunt Nan's condition, but the moment she stepped off the train on her return I noticed a change. It was quite evident she had met "some one" else, and I knew indeed it was "some one."

"You left Aunt Nan quite well?"

"Quite." Oh, the frigid finality of that tone!

"The Puritan will be very happy to see you again—he is out of town just now."

"Yes?"

When we were cozily at tea that evening, with a merry grate-fire and the warmth of red roses from the Puritan, Dorothea grew a little more talkative.

"Dorothea, your seclusion and Aunt Nan's foibles have got on your nerves. You are not well," I said.

"No—I am quite well—I think I must be tired. If you don't mind, I will go up now and unpack. No, I don't need any help."

She rose listlessly and walked to the stairs; half-way up she paused and leaned over the rail. "No, I'm not sick," she said; "I'm just bored."

Next morning she still wore her tragic air.

At breakfast, Katie, the maid, entered the dining room precipitately after answering a ring at the door—she held a yellow envelope at arm's length and the tears were standing in her eyes.

"I hope it's not so bad, Miss Dorthy, dear," she said, thrusting it at Dorothea.

Dorothea lazily tore open the envelope, read the message and sighed, then handed it over to me.

"No one is dead, Katie," she said. And Katie went back to the kitchen, quite comforted.

The message read:

"Home tomorrow. Shall have pleasure of escorting you to church."

"F. Van Doort."

F. Van Doort, of course, is "the Puritan."

Dorothea did not show any signs of enthusiasm, and I did not have the courage to make any remarks—so the mail drifted on. Once I looked up from my plate and found Dorothea looking out the window with the most mischievously amused expression I have ever seen any one wear. Then she arose, still with the smile in her eyes and the little upturn at the corners of the lips, and said: "I am going to town as soon as possible."

She went to town and came back with a few small packages, but said nothing in regard to their contents. The next morning I knew.

It was ten when the Puritan's trap dashed up to the gate. From my open door I heard Katie admit him, heard Dorothea come downstairs, and heard—a most unusual conversation.

She—Good morning, Frederic.

He—Good morning, my dear Dorothea; it is good to have you back again.

She—Thank you—it seems years.

He—What have you done to yourself, Dorothea? Your hair presents a most unusual appearance.

She—Oh, that! Do you like it? It's the same old hair you've always seen, only—I've done it a bit differently, that's all. It's just pinned on—you know.

He—And Dorothea! Is it powder on your nose? Really, Dorothea, I never imagined—I loathe powder. Dorothea—it is like cheap finery, and it is such a palpable lie!

"You are right. I had not thought of it just so. Your wife must not powder her nose. But really I have to, you know, to make it match the rest of my complexion. Give your powderless lady this with my best wishes."

"Dorothea! Your ring! I did not mean—"

"Take it!"

I felt sure he took it, because you have to do what Dorothea tells you.

"You will always be glad of my discovery—about my nose," she added. The Puritan got away somehow, after remarks which were quite incoherent, but I heard Dorothea say "Good-by!" in a very cheerful and friendly voice.

In a few minutes I went into the hall, where I found her standing in front of the grate-fire, smiling meditatively as one by one she unpinned little bunches of curls, undulating "puffs," and a fat braid, and dropped them into the fire.

"She transits gloria—" I began.

"My crowning glory," she interrupted.

"And now I must write a letter to 'some one' down South."

WHEN MIRANDA FORGOT

By CONSTANCE NESSLER.

"I mustn't postpone dusting them another minute," said Miranda, as she opened her bookcase in order to find room for a new volume and noticed how the tops of the old ones were covered by a layer of dust.

With Miranda the dusting of books was a prolonged and serious ordeal, usually attended with much sentimental reminiscence. She couldn't merely wipe the dear backs and faces of her favorite volumes without renewing acquaintance with them. Generally before she had reached the second shelf she was seated on the floor, a pile of books about her, the soiled duster lying by her side and some once loved novel open at her favorite scene. It was where Lord Ormont had confessed his inability to exist without his Evelina, or where the spirited Miss Bennett had dismissed the haughty Mr. Darcy, or where—but there was no stopping and no dusting when once Miranda had fairly started on this dual feat of dusting her books and refreshing her memory.

This morning she banged the book backs and flitted her duster without a pause until she reached the George Eliot shelf, and noticed a telltale vacancy in that beloved set.

"It's 'Daniel Deronda' that has gone," wailed Miranda as she carefully dusted the top of each volume after giving it a bang that was enough to bring all the characters to life again.

"And I know who has it. I loaned it over a year ago to Lina Helft, and though I have seen her a dozen times since then she has never mentioned the book. And now she has moved to the suburbs and I suppose she has taken my book with her and will never think of it again or remember that she has broken my set."

"It is like breaking up a family to lose one out of a set," she continued, "and I think that there ought to be a special punishment devised for people who borrow books and never return them."

She leaned forward, but Neri had lifted him to the tannoy. He was unconscious. As Neri propped him back on the seat, Marjorie saw he was young, and no peasant type. The car rolled along at top speed, taking the rise of the road easily without jolting.

"The castle, signorita," Neri called back over his shoulder. Above them Marjorie saw a lonely mass of masonry, clustering piles around one huge tower.

Neri stopped before a postern door. Above it hung a lantern lighted. After repeated pulling at an iron ring fastened to a bell rope at the side the door opened, and an old Italian peered out anxiously.

"The castle, signorita," Neri called back over his shoulder. Above them Marjorie saw a lonely mass of masonry, clustering piles around one huge tower.

"Santa Maria!" he gasped. "Where did you find him?"

"Don't ask questions," Marjorie exclaimed. "Get some help. He has been stabbed. Carry him in."

Marjorie waited, a silent, restless figure swathed in gray silk motoring coat and gray veil, while they bore the limp form into the shadowy courtyard. She followed slowly, under an arched door into a dim old hall, low ceiled and spacious. Here they laid him on a couch, and Neri talked in low tones with the old man.

"What is it, Neri?" asked his mistress impatiently. "Does he know him?"

"Know him? Signorita, we have had the fortune to rescue the Marchese di Ruscioni. He has been set upon by certain roaming banditti whom he had threatened. He would have died if we had not happened by. The marchesa, his mother—"

"I know all about her, Neri," Marjorie smiled in a tantalizing fashion at all her own. Deliberately she went to the couch and looked down at the face there. She had been evading meeting the marchesa for days. Lady Mooreparke had talked of no one else.

"He says it is dangerous for us to return tonight," continued Neri. "Perhaps if you would stay here with the marchesa, signorita, I could make the trip, and relieve your father's mind."

"I think I will stay, Neri," she answered.

The following day Ira Bradshaw, conveyed by Lady Mooreparke, called at the old castle. Marjorie was in the garden.

Bradshaw stopped under the heavy flowering vines of the pergola to look at her. She sat beside a couch, leaning forward and talking eagerly. Her lap was filled with roses. She had tucked a dark red one over her ear like a Sicilian girl, and another, its mate, lay on the marchesa's breast.

"You saved my life last night," he was saying. "It lies in your hands, signorita, like your roses, to do with as you please."

Marjorie raised the roses to her lips, and smiled down at him.

"You are to stay here as our guests for awhile, did you know that?" he added.

"I know. I told Neri last night to tell dad I wanted to stay," she said. "And all the rest is right on the knees of the gods. They've started something that interests me."

He reached for both her hands impetuously, but Marjorie rose, letting the roses fall.

"When you are well," she warned. "You mustn't make love with a wound in your side. And see, it is only one day."

"It is the day of fate," he said huskily. "If you are not kind, I shall hope to die from the wound."

She bent over him teasingly, yet with tender eyes.

"Which wound, Guido?" she whispered. "Love's or the banditti's. Haven't I said I wanted to stay? Get well just as soon as you can. I will wait until you can ride down the mountain with me, before I go away."

"But you will never go."

"Oh, yes, I will, signor," she smiled. "because, you see, I always wanted to be married in my own land."

AT THE GRAY CASTLE

By CORA A. CLAUSSEN.

"Why don't we go on?"
Marjorie leaned forward anxiously. It was too dark to see the road. Only the broadening pathway of light thrown out by the car's lamps showed ahead of them.

"Neri!" she called again, quickly. "What is it?"

From the side of the road came Neri's voice, soothing and musical, in his own Palermese dialect.

"Some one has been hurt, signorita. We very nearly ran over him, but I stopped in time. He is half dead, stabbed, a little below the heart."

"Oh, Neri, and we're miles from a town. Can you lift him in here with me?"

"Signorita, he is very badly hurt. There are lights on the mountain yonder. Let me go for help."

"And perhaps find the very people who stabbed him. 'No,' shivered Marjorie. 'I hate your Sicilian neighborliness. Lift him in, and I'll sit way over on this side. How far is Arest?'"

"Too far for tonight. He would not live. There is a castle on the farther side of this mountain. The Rascalloni family live there. We might find some help there. A village lies below it, possibly a surgeon and a priest. He will need both before morning."

"Oh, be cheerful, Neri, please. It's quite dreadful enough without burying him already. Can I help you?"

She leaned forward, but Neri had lifted him to the tannoy. He was unconscious. As Neri propped him back on the seat, Marjorie saw he was young, and no peasant type. The car rolled along at top speed, taking the rise of the road easily without jolting.

FISHIN'

Supposin' fish don't bite at first, What are you goin' to do? Throw down the pole, chuck out your bait.

And say your fishin's thru? You bet you ain't; you're goin' to fish.

And fish and fish and wait Until you've caught a basketful Or used up all your bait.

Supposin' success don't come at first, What are you goin' to do? Throw up the sponge and kick your self.

And growl, and fret and stew? You bet you ain't; you're goin' to bait.

And bait and bait again, Until success holds on your hook, For grit is sure to win.

—The Publicist.

The poetryman of the Cleveland Motorist breaks into song regarding "The City Street," revealing that there are certain marked resemblances between highway affairs of Newton and the Ohio city. This is it:

They took a little gravel And they took a little tar, And various ingredients, Imported from afar. They hammered it and rolled it, And when they went away, They said they had a pavement That would last for many a day. But they came with picks and smote it.

To lay a water main; And in time they called the workmen To put it back again. To run a railway cable they took it once more;

And later put it back again, Just where it was before. They took it up for conduits To run the telephone; And they put it back again, As hard as any stone.

They took it up for wires, To feed the electric light, And then they put it back again, Which was no more than right. Oh, the pavement full of furrows; There are patches everywhere; You'd like to ride upon it, But it's seldom that you dare. It's a very handsome pavement, A credit to the town; They're always digging of it up Or putting of it down.

PLACE BELIEF IN TOAD SOUP

East Indians Have the Idea That This Nostrum is a Cure for Insanity.

The general report on the census of India, 1911, which has just reached England, is not a mere compilation of statistics, but is as full of romance and interest as any novel dealing with native life and customs could be.

For instance, there is a most interesting note on popular beliefs regarding insanity, and Mr. O'Malley, who superintended the census taking in Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, says that the lower classes think that insanity is due to an excess of bile in the system, or to worms in the head. "Neglect of the worship of the gods, or the curse of a Yogi, Sadha, or other holy man may produce it," he says. "It is especially liable to attack those who practise Tantric arts, but fall to control the spirits which they evoke. Generally, however, it is attributed to demoniacal possession."

"The spirit which is most commonly thought to produce madness is Brahmadatya, the spirit of a Brahman who has died an unnatural death. Madness being due to possession by an evil spirit, every attempt is made to appease or exorcise it. The exorcists hold smoking chillies to the nostrils of the patient and chant mantras, addressing the spirit in filthy and obscene language, all with the idea of driving it away. When these means prove futile they prescribe a diet calculated to force the spirit to leave his victims in fear of losing his caste, for Brahmadatya is the spirit of a high caste Brahman. The unfortunate patient has, therefore, to consume soup made of toads, etc. When these abominable nostrums fail the use of medicated oils and of indigenous herbs and drugs is resorted to."

"The medical treatment of the insane prescribed by the Kavyajals sometimes takes the following forms: The mud taken from putrid tanks is plastered on the patient's head, or aloe pulp is mixed with water and applied in the form of an emulsion. A favorite remedy is soup made from a particular kind of frog."

Great Coal Deposits in Chile.

The Chilean government some time ago engaged the noted geologist, Dr. Johannes Brugger, to study the coal deposits of the country, believing that the carboniferous region of the province of Arauco alone could supply the needs of Chile for a period of 200 years.

Doctor Brugger has gone thoroughly into conditions prevailing in Arauco. The coast country is particularly rich in coal. There is an abundance of this material in the vicinity of the town of Buena Piden.

Some years ago these deposits were exploited on a large scale, and railroads and wharves were built to facilitate shipments. But work was not continued because the survey was incomplete and now exploitation is to be done under improved conditions and with expert advisers superintending the work.

The hills in the vicinity of Ronquell, Misionguia and Millaneco contain large deposits of coal of the finest quality, and several coal mines are now in operation.

A Century Ago.

Mme. Anna Bishop, one of the most celebrated singers of her time, was born 100 years ago, in London. She received a good musical education and at an early age made her debut as a concert singer. Later she devoted herself to Italian music and sang with great success in Italy and other countries on the continent. She next visited America, where her genius won her recognition and she became a great favorite with the music-loving public. Mme. Bishop was several times married and her life was filled with romance and adventure. In the late fifties she made a perilous trip across the South American continent and a few years later she was shipwrecked while on her way from Honolulu to China. Owing to the loss of her voice she retired to private life in 1868. Her death occurred in New York in 1884.

The New Philippines.

While it was not until the year 1898 that the name "Philippines" became a familiar one to Americans, it is a fact that, not a hundred years before, the name of the "New Philippines" was applied to a large area of American soil.

The first settlement in what now constitutes the state of Texas, was made in the year 1685 by French immigrants. During the 25 years following there was a constant struggle between the French and the Spanish for possession and supremacy, a struggle that finally resulted in favor of the latter. So, in 1814, the name of the "New Philippines" was given to the country. This was its official name in the Spanish records for many years, and until the name of Texas, from a tribe of Indians, gradually came into use.

Mexican Camp Routine.

Very little attention is given to the medical corps. The field force breaks camp at dawn when the women with pots and pans and babies start off in advance to prepare dinner and sleeping quarters, cook frijoles and make tortillas. It seems like an excursion party. The losses reported by Mexicans are counted by the rank rather than the number of men killed, for when they lose a colonel or captain it is counted a disaster as compared to an engagement where a few hundred privates are killed.—National Magazine.

DRINK PLENTY OF WATER

Individuals of Every Age Should Remember Necessity for Moisture in the Body.

Individuals differ in their needs, but the average man requires from a quart to three pints of water to drink a day in addition to the pint which is absorbed in his food. Women require a little less and children a little more than this average. Children should be encouraged to drink all the water they want between meals and upon rising in the morning, but they should be taught from early childhood not to sip water between every two mouthfuls of food when eating. A glass of water before beginning to eat is advisable and refreshing as well, but no one should form the habit of moistening the throat with water to make the morsels of food slip down. Water taken in advance of a meal is supposed to prepare the saliva so that there is an abundance of the latter which should be thoroughly mixed with the food before swallowing to make the food ready for the stomach, and while many authorities hold that water taken during the meal is not harmful, it does often become such a habit, especially with children, that one often sees them fairly unable to swallow a mouthful without a gulp of water to follow.

Do not let children drink extremely cold water or water with ice floating in it. It chills the stomach too much, particularly in hot weather. Keep the water against the ice. This makes it plenty cold enough for little folks who are perfectly satisfied with it at this temperature until some one is foolish enough to let them have it with ice.

Never let a child drink a glass of iced water down quickly. If they are very hot it is enough to kill them. There is no harm in allowing a child to suck a piece of ice because the water melts slowly and is fairly off the chill before it reaches the stomach. To satisfy extreme thirst, such as in fever, the ice sucking is preferable for this reason.

Teach a child when drinking water at any time to take long, but slow, mouthfuls. It is not only more satisfying, but better for the digestion in every way.

Arnold Bennett's Yacht.

Possibly for some folk my sloop Velsa's chief attribute would be that, once seen, she cannot be forgotten. She is a lovely object, and not less unusual than lovely. She is smart, also, but nothing more dissimilar to the average smart, conventional English or American yacht can well be conceived. When she goes under a railway bridge while a train is going over it the engine driver, of no matter what nationality, will invariably risk the lives of all of his passengers in order to stare at her until she is out of sight. This I have noticed again and again. The finest compliment her appearance ever received was paid by a schoolboy, who, after staring at her for a quarter of an hour as she lay at a wharf at Kings-ton-on-Thames, sidled timidly up to me as I leaned in my best maritime style over the quarter and asked: "Please, sir, is this a training brig?" Romance gleamed in that boy's eye.—The Century.

In Readiness for War.

One hundred years ago the governor of Virginia, alarmed by the appearance of a large force of British in Chesapeake bay, issued orders to 20 regiments of militia to hold themselves in readiness to march, at a moment's notice, to repel the enemy, in case of any invasion, or an attempt to invade the state. The officers were directed to be vigilant in watching the enemy, and on the first alarm, instantly to proceed to the place of rendezvous. "Let every officer and soldier," said the order, "be on the alert. How disgraceful it would be, if the enemy found us slumbering and unprepared. Freemen and soldiers must see the propriety and feel the importance of vigilance, bravery and activity. The officers, mindful of their sacred trust, will use every exertion in preparing their men to acquire themselves as become Americans."

Floral Societies.

Organizations whose members are interested mainly in promoting the recognition and general use of one specific flower are rapidly becoming numerous. Among these are many whose official findings are not recognized by higher bodies of unquestioned authority.

Among these is the British Gladiolus society. Their determinations have not always met with the approval of the Royal Horticultural society. One case in point lies in the former "turning down" a gladiolus known as General Kuroki, a grand variety in all parts of the United States, England, and in fact, wherever grown. It has been passed by the American Gladiolus society as one of high value, and summer visitors to England declare it grows equally well there.

Use for All.

Admiral Dewey, on being complimented on his superb health, smiled and said:

"I attribute my good condition to plenty of exercise and no banquets. One-third of what we eat, you know, enables us to live."

"In that case," said his friend, jestingly, "what becomes of the other two-thirds?"

"Oh," said the admiral, "that enables the doctor to live."—Tit-Bits.

FRUIT AND FLOWER MISSION

Several members of the Flower Committee of the Newtonville Woman's Club visited the Parker Memorial on Tuesday to witness the collection, announcement and distribution of the fruit and flowers received by the Benevolent Fraternity.

The railroad sends gratuitously the hampers and baskets to the North and South stations, where the Mission expressman collects them.

Thirteen hampers, or boxes, came in Tuesday from clubs, churches, or private individuals.

One little boy from a suburban town sends in regularly his own donation in a peck basket; vegetables from his "very own" little garden, or wild flowers he gathers.

There were ten helpers present, who quickly divided the contents of the baskets on to various tables to be arranged.

One might imagine much poetry in such work as this, but even their plan for arranging bouquets is in rhyme:

"Something sweet and something

bright

Something green and something

white.

One of the helpers said she was beginning her 31st year in the work and judging from her happy smile she is anticipating equal pleasure in her fourth decade. Several were patiently waiting to receive the bouquets; one soldierly looking "gentleman of the old school" several children and one colored woman, who told us she travels here between two invalid

friends, who "saw for the Back Bay"

in the winter but to whom life in the summer brings little.

Two charming young ladies took travels for hospital work. The list of distributing stations showed great impartiality even in a reach from the North End Kindergarten, to the "St. John's" Home, but a large part of the donations go to private cases, "P.

C.'s" as they appear on the record book. District nurses gladly take them, especially fresh eggs and one volunteer "visitor" has a list of sixteen to whom she regularly takes these bits of sweetness and beauty.

The work, tho' taking time and patience, brings to so many their only taste of what summer is to the favored few, that personal experience in it seems an investment of time, money,

or toil, producing large dividends.

Most men find it easier to hold a runaway horse than to hold the tongue.

MUD LUMPS IN RIVER

PECULIAR FORMATIONS THAT ARE HARD TO EXPLAIN.

Presence of "islands," Forming Serious Obstruction to Navigation, Has Never Been Accounted for on Scientific Basis.

The territory within a mile or two of each of the mouths of the Mississippi is characterized by large swellings or upheavals of tough, bluish gray clay, to which has been applied the name "mud lumps."

Many of these lumps, says the Memphis Commercial Appeal, rise just off shore and form islands having a height of five or ten feet, but some do not reach the water surface.

To an observer at the mouth of the river the idea that the region is a great dumping ground for a large part of the United States is most impressive. The land is being built out into the sea at an estimated average rate of about three hundred feet a year. In one place in Garden Island bay the land appears to have advanced 2,000 feet in the spring of 1912.

The mud lumps are commonly twenty to thirty feet broad and stand twenty to thirty feet above the adjacent bottom. Generally a mud lump rises in a few weeks or months to a height of four or five feet above the surface of the water. Then it remains quiet and is beaten down by the waves in the course of a few years. Many of them subside, however, and some disappear overnight.

Among the most conspicuous and impressive features of the mud lumps are the mud springs that are active on many, if not all of them. The discharge from these springs consists of salt, watery mud and gas—in fact, gas escapes at many places on the surface of the delta of the Mississippi. Gas rises in bubbles in all the mud springs.

It is considered by some scientists that the mud lumps are produced by a gentle seaward flow of layers of semi-fluid clay under the land and the shallow water under the ends of the passes. The mud lumps appear to be the product of flow, because in no other places have such thick bodies of clay been found, and the fact that they occur almost exclusively near the ends of the passes and that they are most active during and after times of high water seems to support this theory.

Plowing With Dogs.

One of our correspondents while waiting for a steamer at Eagle on the Yukon was attracted by loud howlings in several different keys, accompanied by a string of fluent oaths and curses. writes the editor of the Engineering and Mining Journal. On investigating the source of the uproar he discovered an indignant prospect farmer attempting to plow a small field with a team of five big, shaggy "huskies." It was July 5, and the temperature was 85 degrees in the shade. The poor dogs, with swollen tongues hanging from their mouths, were struggling gamely in the hot sun, but were moving the plow only by small, irregular jerks. Every few minutes they would throw themselves exhausted on the ground, and then their excited master would assail them with whip, boots and verbal pyrotechnics simultaneously. Altogether, it was picturesque, but ineffective plowing. Unluckily, there was no local S. P. C. A.

The Insulting Grocer.

The admission of bribery on the part of the New Haven lines led Jerome S. McWade, the Duluth capitalist, to say at an advertising men's banquet:

"Confessions of this sort do harm. They make the public think that all capital is corrupt. Yet one corrupt capitalist doesn't prove the corruption of all capital, does it?"

"Yet, apropos of this wretched Mel len business, a Socialist grocer insulted me this morning."

"The man told me gloomily, apropos of some overdue interest, that he'd have to close down—he couldn't make groceries any longer."

"Well," said I, "try some other business. There are thousands of ways of making money."

"Yes, but there's only one honest way, Mr. McWade."

"What way is that?" said I.

"He gave a loud, harsh laugh."

"I thought you wouldn't know it, he said."

One canary bird plus one parrot, divided by twelve, equals X.

Solve for X.

Such is the problem which confronts Judge Rotherger in his attempts to distribute equitably the estate of Mrs. Christina Leonard. One canary bird and one parrot equals a portion of the estate to be divided among the heirs. Twelve equals the number of heirs, and X equals what each will get out of that portion.

Mrs. Linnie Herold and Mrs. R. Curry were called to the bedside of the testator as witnesses to her will. In gratitude for their services, Mrs. Leonard bequeathed to each a bird. The law forbids witnesses to benefit under a will. Therefore the feathered legacies must be divided among the other heirs.—Denver News.

Money in National Banks.

At the beginning of last year there were in this country in actual operation 7,397 national banks, representing a paid-in capital of $1,046,012,560.

WAS FIVE PERSONS IN ONE

Most Famous Multiple Being Would Seem to Have Been "Miss Beauchamp" of England.

Rare cases of true multiple personality are known to have occurred and are of extraordinary interest. The most famous is that of "Miss Beauchamp"—the real name has always most properly been withheld—which was carefully studied by Dr. Morton Prince. By intricate steps he arrived at the conviction that in her case no fewer than five distinct personalities could be traced. The most vivid of all was the one who called herself "Sally."

The normal Miss Beauchamp was a somewhat neurotic woman, the constant prey of slight ailments, and without much zest in life. After a nervous shock "Sally" suddenly became able to take possession of her from time to time, at first with apparent difficulty, and then, as it seemed, whenever she pleased. When "Sally" was dominant Miss Beauchamp's whole nature changed. She became lively, irresponsible, fond of all the violent exercises which the normal woman disliked, exuberantly healthy and different from Miss Beauchamp in every respect. She could not explain herself, but protested that she had "always been here," but could not get control, and one of the most wonderful and best attested facts in this mysterious case is that she confidently asserted her memory of events which occurred when the real Miss Beauchamp was in her cradle.

For Miss Beauchamp, the co-tenant with her of the same body, "Sally" had the most intense dislike, never speaking of her except with contempt, and doing all she could to cause her harm and annoyance. Miss Beauchamp had a special horror of insects and reptiles, and "Sally" was accustomed to gratify her spite by collecting frogs, toads and spiders and dispatching them to what the inadequacy of language compels us to call herself.

Miss Beauchamp detested walking, so "Sally," when she was dominant, would go for a long tramp, after carefully leaving all her money behind, and then, when she was ten miles or more from home, would suddenly disappear, and, allowing the original Miss Beauchamp to resume control, leave the unfortunate woman to make her way back as best she could.—London Globe.

Sufficient Explanation.

Senator William J. Stone of Missouri smiled the other evening when remembrance was made to the appointment of postmasters. He said he was reminded of an incident of that character.

Some time ago a salesman happened in a small back-country town and was surprised at the warmth of the fight over the local post office appointment.

"Look here, Jake," remarked the wondering salesman to an acquaintance, "the whole town seems to be wildly excited over this post office business. It isn't a job that pays much money, is it?"

"No," answered Jake, "it don't pay hardly any money at all."

"Well, if that's the case then," returned the salesman, "why is it that everybody takes such a great interest in the thing?"

"It's just this way, pard," explained the native. "Most of us are particular who reads our postal cards."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Ultra-Violet Rays Kill Germs.

Niagara Falls will have the first municipal ultra-violet ray sterilization plant in this country, says the Engineering Record. Contract negotiations were consummated June 5 for a 35-lamp installation.

Mercury vapor lamps, protruding into channels through which water will flow, are to be used.

The ultra-violet rays from these lamps have the power to kill the bacteria in the water.

There will be seven lamps in each of five concrete canals, although it is estimated that 25 lamps will be required to handle the capacity of the plant, 10,000,000 gallons daily.

The cost of the canals and lamp installations will be $19,800, while the city will erect a building and transformers to change the current from alternating to direct, at a cost of $2,500.

Tags for the Children.

Now that warm weather is coming and the little children are outdoors so much it is well for mothers to put a tag around each child's neck with full name and address, then if the little one wanders away from home anyone seeing the tag will know where he belongs.

When the children return home from school and complain of hunger, as the average school child does, have prepared on the back of the stove some warm drink, either a cereal or some soup or hot milk, and let each have a supply. A warm drink is much more nourishing than bread and butter and does not spoil their evening meal as a heavy luncheon often does.

Churn Held Child a Prisoner.

While playing hide and seek, the little daughter of Lester Fahnestock of Hagerstown, Md., crawled into a churn that stood in the yard.

When found she was wedged in so tightly that she could not extricate herself. She suffered intense pain, and her cries for help attracted 50 persons to the scene, but none could pull her out.

The child and churn were carried to a blacksmith shop, where the hoops of the churn were cut, and the frightened girl was released.

GREETING THE WRONG MAN

Cases of Mistaken Identity That Have Been Chronicled by a Collector.

Scrapbook keepers and chroniclers of odd things who are on the alert to increase the store of interest grip-pers are able to list no end of mistakes made by prominent men at various times and places. One of these collectors has gathered incidents that might easily make 200 pages of an ordinary book. He insists that all are as true as—well, as true as anything can be that you hear about.

According to this collector, says the New York Sun, there's a Brooklyn clergyman who went over to Newark to fill a pulpit one Sunday and greeted three men as the pastor of the church he was to preach in before he shook hands with the right man. One or two deacons and other members were waiting for him in the vestibule when he arrived.

He thought he knew a minister when he saw one, so he put out his hand with a "Glad to meet you, doctor," only to find it wasn't the pastor. Then he looked from one to the other and stretched out a hand to the second man, scoring another mistake. Finally, inside the church on the way to the pulpit, he was sure the ministerial-looking man who advanced toward him was the pastor, and so he greeted him that way. But it was a trustee.

An insurance collector, too, noticed one of the big companies, called on a prospective risk at his Riverside drive residence one evening to nail him for a policy. He talked eloquently and at length. When it came to signing his man he found he had been talking to a nephew of the same man. The nephew was already insured, but had listened because he was interested in insurance.

The scrapbook man has a great number of clips to prove that slouchily dressed Gen. U. S. Grant was repeatedly mistaken for some third class subaltern. Dispatch bearers who had never met the general often galloped up to headquarters and were directed to a group of officers of which Grant was one. Often the papers were handed the most nattily dressed or the most pompous appearing officer in preference to Grant.

A droll-minded, little, inconsequential-looking man of London used to take great delight in inviting prominent men to visit him and see the mistakes they made in supposing somebody else was he. Hearty greeting would be half finished before they would discover the mistake. The little man was a famous Egyptologist and used to send out his invitations in ancient hieroglyphics, which may account for the upstetness of the visitors.

The cases are numerous in which in visits of ceremony at courts and among naval commanders of warships of different nations in harbor ridiculous mistakes in identity have been made. A French admiral is reported to have put forth his most formal greeting to a marine officer on board the ship he was visiting, supposing he was the commander in a newly designed uniform. At a detached surrender of troops in the Russian-Japanese war a Russian commander very formally offered his sword to a war correspondent.

Gold-Plated Door Knobs.

In some of the $25,000 a year flats on Fifth avenue, New York, the hardware is gold plated. Hinges, window brackets, fixtures, door handles, key plates, hinges are all treated with gold before being placed in position. All that is required to keep gold in fine condition is a slight rubbing with a piece of dry leather. No polish is necessary and the woodwork near this yellow hardware is never tarnished.

Silver plating on white metal is used on the trim in the dining room. Nine coats of paint are spread on the walls of the dining rooms in these magnificent flats, the same care being used as with the paneling of a motor car. The walls, instead of being highly glazed, have a soft, silky finish.

Hen in Ostrich Class.

Even the hens of Winsted like to do unusual things. Rolland Wilson has a Rhode Island red with an especial dislike for the old-fashioned life. The other day this hen, which is a year old, made up her mind not only to win fame for herself, but to add new fame to the village of her birth. She achieved her purpose by laying an egg the like of which never has been seen here.

As a matter of actual measurement the egg's two circumferences are eight and one-fourth and seven and one-fourth inches. It weighs five ounces. Poultry authorities will move to Missouri before they pass on any contentions for this record as the mark for the year.—Winsted (Conn.) Dispatch to New York World.

Meeting the Emergency.

One day Jones lost a button from his serge coat, and on leaving for the office on the following morning he asked little bride if she wouldn't repair the damage during the day. Little bride, of course, sweetly promised.

"Where are you, Harry?" called the young wife on hearing hubby rambling around the house that evening. "What are you looking for?"

"I am looking for my blue serge coat," answered Harry. "Did you sew on that button?"

"No, dear," came the startling rejoinder of wife. "I couldn't find the button so I sewed up the buttonhole."

OLDER THAN SPHINX

ANCIENT EGYPTIAN BUILDING DISCOVERED BY EXPLORER.

Vast Underground Edifice, Described in Earliest Writings Extant, Revealed Through Explorations Made by Scientist.

Professor Naville has just discovered what he believes to be the most ancient building extant in Egypt. The professor believes that he has discovered the place mentioned by Strabo, who calls it the well, or fountain, of Abydos. "Below the Memnonium," says that ancient writer, "is a spring reached by passages with low vaults consisting of a single stone and distinguished for their extent and mode of construction. This spring is connected with the Nile by a canal which flows through a grove of Egyptian thornacacias, sacred to Apollo."

The vast underground edifice, to which the excavators first penetrated on February 13, is termed by its discoverer a reservoir, remarks the Indianapolis News. It is some ninety feet long by sixty feet wide and surrounded by a wall eighteen feet thick. The construction of the building is of the cyclopean order, blocks of stone of enormous size being piled one on top of the other. A canal runs right around the building under a roof supported by enormous pillars of granite, with a narrow stone towing path along the sides. The center of the construction seems to have been a sort of island, reached possibly by a wooden bridge from the pathway.

The professor states: "We have still no certain indication of the date of its construction; but the style, the size of the materials used and the complete absence of all ornamentation all indicate a very great antiquity. Up to now the temple of the Sphinx at Gizeh has always been considered the most ancient edifice in Egypt. It is contemporary with the pyramid of Chephren. The reservoir of Abydos, of a wholly analogous construction, but built of very much vaster material, has a character still more archaic. I should not be surprised if it were the most ancient piece of architectural work extant in Egypt. The pyramids are possibly of the same age, but a pyramid is only a mass of stones, and would not require so complicated a plan as the reservoir."

"If we have before us the most ancient Egyptian building which has been preserved, it is curious that it is neither temple nor tomb, but a reservoir, a great hydraulic piece of work. That shows us that these ancient peoples knew very well the movement of subterranean waters and the laws which govern their rise and fall. It is quite probable that this reservoir played some part in the cult of Osiris. The cells along its sides are possibly those that appear in the Book of the Dead; it is also possible that the waters were held to have curative qualities and that they were used by sick persons who came thither to seek a cure. It may be that sometimes the boat of Osiris floated on the waters of the reservoir, hauled by priests on the path that runs along the side; for the bark of the sun, as one sees it depicted in the tombs of kings, journeys always at the end of a towline. Who would have thought a few months ago that thirty feet below the earth one would be able to see a building such as this, which surpasses in grandeur the most colossal of cyclopean edifices?"

Why Not?

Questioned as to her domestic activities, on the trial of her suit for divorce, Mme. Schumann-Heink replied that she "cooked and scrubbed and washed," and when the lawyer expressed surprise, she added: "Why not?"

"Why not, indeed? The mothers of most Americans who are remembered cooked and scrubbed and washed. We know that George Washington's mother did all of these things. To the mother of Abraham Lincoln they were but incidents in the day's work. Thousands of our people living in luxury at this minute had mothers or grandmothers who cooked and scrubbed and washed."

Why not? Most men toil today as they always have done. If there is an idea that work is ignoble, it does not proceed from them; it has not been handed down by the mothers of the great and it has no approval in the veritable annals of our wholesome politics or our good society. Wherever such an impression prevails, it is false, foolish and probably only fashionable.—New York World.

Building Dams on the Ice.

The government engineers on the upper Mississippi have found that by constructing the dam on the ice in the winter they can often build them in shallow places and across sand bars which are inaccessible to the barges and steamers in the summer months. The Scientific American states. The work also can be done much more cheaply.

The willows and rock are hauled upon the ice by teams and unloaded at the place where the dam is to be constructed. The building crews follow the same method as is used in the summer months. A mattress of willows is made, loaded with rock, a second willow mat laid on top and so on until a dam of proper height is constructed. When it is finished, the ice is cut away and the structure sinks to the river bed of its own weight. The work on the ice has been progressing for three years all along the upper half of the river.

CORRESPONDENCE

To the Newton Graphic:—
I read with much pleasure the letter of A.B.C. in your edition of July 17, and especially his suggestion of a Park on the Charlesbank.
No greater blessing could be conferred upon those who cannot get away during the warm weather than the establishment of such a park.
I am assured that the land can be bought at a reasonable price, and the improvements could be made gradually.
The land is totally unfit for a play ground. It would be an unsafe place for children on account of the river.
But as a breathing place—a resting place, it cannot be excelled. I hope the citizens of Newton will not allow this opportunity to pass, but will secure this land before it is too late.

WILL BOLT ROOSEVELT

TO THE GRAPHIC:—
In last week's issue of The Graphic it is stated that our friend Garcelon invites the Progressive (or Roosevelt) party to return to their former allegiance and hints that a number of Republicans would work for the nomination of Roosevelt as president in 1916. Very likely some Republicans may join the bolters but if Brother Garcelon doesn't know it please inform him that if the "chief bolter and self-seeker of the age" ever is nominated by the Republicans
there are doubtless thousands of fairly respectable men who have always voted the Republican ticket, as has the writer, who will vote the straight Democratic ticket.
If a new party is necessary for good of the country let the best men among the Democrats and Republicans get together and form one, allowing the office to seek the man.
"I'm not a politician and my other habits air good."

BARNARD-CLOSE

Miss Frances Evelyn Close, daughter of the late George Close of Cambridge, and youngest sister of Mrs.
Robert E. Mandell of Pembroke street, Newton, was married on Thursday evening, July 16, to Mr.
John Edwin Barnard of Winchester.
The ceremony took place at the Close homestead in Cambridge and guests were present from Newton Centre and Newton.
Mr. and Mrs. Barnard left on an extended wedding trip, sailing from New York this week for a tour in Europe. On their return they will reside at 153 Harvard avenue, Allston.

FAVORS NEW PARK

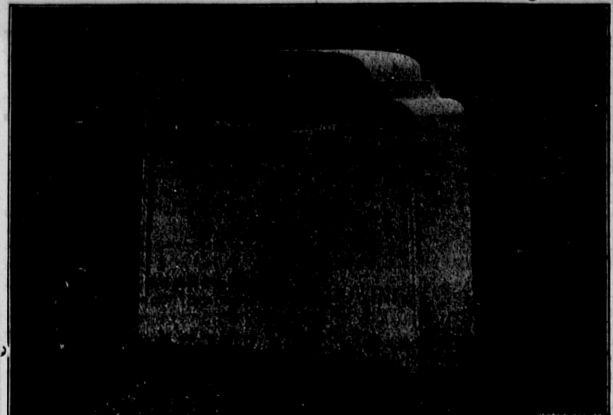

TO THE GRAPHIC:—
I was very glad to see the article, of which you approve, in your last issue, signed A. B. C., in regard to base ball grounds suggesting to the use of the grounds around the school houses, and lastly, but the most important, the urging the securing of the land on the Charles Bank road for an open space, a breathing spot on the river bank. I can heartily approve of all that A. B. C. says in regard to the attractiveness of the place and think every effort should be made to enlist the sympathy of all who live at the "Corner" in behalf of this plan and its importance not only to us but those who come after us.
Let me urge those who may not know of this beautiful spot to go down there either by Jefferson street or the Charles Bank road, walk across the little foot bridge and look up along the little brook that runs into the river or walk down along the path that leads down the river under the ample trees and the sloping banks with shrubbery clinging to its steep slope, with the long stretch of the winding river, and I think they will at once see that here is an opportunity for securing a little park of rare beauty and charm.
Let the Newton Improvement Society awake to the occasion and show themselves worthy of their name.
They should remember that securing playgrounds for base ball is not of such vital importance as to make us neglectful of what makes a town, a city, a village, desirable places to live in, the preserving, the developing all the beauty that nature has kindly given for our enjoyment, for the enjoyment of those who may live here in the future.

HELP ENFORCE THE LAW

Three pieces of legislation recently enacted in this State are of special interest to every user of the highways.
(1) Horse drawn vehicles, whether in the country, town or city, are required to carry lights at night (hay and straw teams excepted).
(2) Motor vehicles are absolutely forbidden to cut out the muffler in the thickly settled or business districts of a city or town, that is to say wherever buildings average less than 200 feet apart for a distance of a quarter of a mile.
(3) Motor cycles, on and after January 1, 1915, must carry number plates.
It is the manifest duty of carriage drivers to light their vehicles at night, not only for the sake of others, but to protect themselves. It is likewise incumbent upon automobile operators to discontinue the practice of opening the cut out, which investigation has proved to be of little or no benefit to the operators, but which is a constant source of annoyance to other travelers. With the motor cyclist, long an offender both in the matter of speed and noise, effectually tagged for identification, it is hoped that he, too, will perceive the advantages of complying with the law.
If the public wants these and other automobile laws enforced, it must take the trouble to secure compliance, either through appeals to decency, or by assisting the authorities in compelling obedience. These authorities are unable, owing to the magnitude of the automobile problem at the present time, to handle it without the assistance of individual members of the public. It is the duty, therefore, of every person having the public welfare at heart to encourage and actively to aid the officers of the law in their insistence on obedience thereto.

LOWER STEPS

The Public Service Commission has just issued an order which will be of great service to the travelling public in the near future, by reducing the height of the steps to street railway cars.
The commission's order proclaims that on all new cars the measurement of fifteen inches must be taken from the bottom step to a place even with the top of the rails. It goes further by saying that all passenger cars
now operated by street railway companies and which are in operation
after July 1 next shall be so altered that no bottom step shall be more than seventeen inches in height. The provision is made, however, that any company, by reason of its financial condition, large amount of equipment or other good cause, may, upon application to the commission, have the time extended, if, in the judgment of the commission, the company has shown reasonable progress in complying with the order.
Another section stipulates that street-railway companies, before purchasing new cars or making changes in the present equipment, shall submit to the commission for its approval plans or drawings in sufficient detail to show the type of cars to be bought or the changes to be made in the equipment.

equalled in our market.

MID SUMMER SESSION

Aldermen Hold Important Meeting and Increase Tax Levy By Over $16,000

A midsummer meeting of the board of aldermen was held last night, and a meeting of that time with only three absentees makes a new record in this city. The meeting was called on Monday night by Mayor Childs in order that the final figures affecting the tax levy for the present year might be determined, and something like $16,000 was added to that already over-voted account.

President Blakemore was in the chair and Aldermen Alley, Early and Alcorn were the only members absent. Mayor Childs sent in a long list of communications, only one of which was recommending $800 additional use of hard coal at the Newton High School was not acted upon by the board.

There were several interesting debates and some rather close votes. Alderman Jarvis opposed the majority report of the License committee favoring granting a license for a public garage and to keep gasoline at Pearl street, by R. W. Jamieson.

Alderman Jarvis believed that Newton should have another public garage, but he believed it should be in a territory bounded by Washington, Centre and Park streets, and not in a residential district, he aimed Pearl street to be Mr. Jamieson, he said, had only an option on its property, which is in the rear of the Newton Opera House, and therefore would not be financially hurt if the license was refused.

Mr. Jarvis said that the rules of the district public prohibited the location of public garage within 50 feet of a theatre and this building, he claimed, could be 44 feet from the Opera House. He suggested that some strong influence made it possible for way to be made easy for some people and not for others. Mr. Jarvis claimed that the proposed location was surrounded on three sides by residences and that the people were felt very strongly opposed to the garage, as it would injure their property very materially. He had consulted the Insurance Exchange and had been informed that the fire risk would be increased and that the property owners would not only have their places endangered from fire, but injured by the location of the garage but they would have to pay a higher rate of insurance. Mr. Jarvis denied the argument that the board had only a routine duty to perform in this matter and read a Supreme court decision stating that the board could consider the residential aspects of the case.

Alderman Rice said that this was one of the hardest problems the board had to solve. In his opinion this property would never be used for anything but commercial purposes and yet it was still surrounded by residences. The plans showed a tightly building and as our duty rests solely to the gasoline license, he surely would grant such a license if the building was already erected. He believed the remonstrants should fight the matter before the district police and not before this board.

Alderman Jamieson said that this action was right on the edge of the residential and commercial districts and that business property was being rapidly extended in that direction. He believed a garage was greatly needed in that neighborhood.

The license was then granted by a vote of 10 to 8.

Alderman Pratt opposed the calling of a general meeting of citizens in petition of Daniel O'Connell to act on the proposed increase of fares in the Middlesex and Boston railway. He said the time had practically come for effective action. That the Company had recently been ordered to increase its wage scale some $25,000, that it only pays 4% dividends, and a recent order of the public Service Commission as to depreciation will also affect the finances of the company. The proposed meeting in his opinion would do no good and the persons interested should go to the public Service Commission.

So one wants to pay six cents car fare and the Commission knows that full well and they will decide that question.

Alderman Rice thought that if half the people of Newton attended the hearing before the Public Service Commission, it would be an unwieldy affair and this meeting would give our people an opportunity to say what they wanted to on this matter.

Alderman Blanchard said that the six cent fare on the Newton & Boston line was allowed in the summer time when no one was around to protest and he thought that it was impossible to have too much publicity on these matters.

He advised Newton people to read the Newton papers more than they do and keep informed on the matters affecting the interests of the city.

Alderman Cobb favored the hearing as it was a seven cent matter for the Upper Falls.

Alderman Murphy said he was convinced that the Company could not pay over 4%, but he thought something might develop if this meeting was held and it could do no harm in any event.

The order was passed with only Alderman Pratt voting in opposition. There was another long debate on the order to add $514.25 to the Police salary account. This amount was recommended by the mayor in order to pay Police Officer Meehan and is closely connected with the Neagle matter. The Finance committee reported inexpedient on passing this order, with Alderman Murphy in opposition. Mr. Murphy in favoring the order said that it deserved the gravest consideration of the board. Considerable had been heard of late as to the laws governing the board of aldermen, and he would advise each member to study the city charter most carefully. He then read the section which prohibited the legislative power from exercising any executive power and said that the question now under consideration was whether or not the mayor should be allowed to exercise the executive powers which were his by law, this board having refused to make the necessary appropriations to properly run the police department. The situation today is, that two policemen are doing duty without receiving any pay for their service. The board, Mr. Murphy claimed had no right to go into the merits of the Neagle case, who had been reinstated by advice of the city solicitor. He intimated that possibly the board wished to embarrass the mayor who had looked into the humane, as well as the legal side of the Neagle case, or possibly it desired to humiliate Mr. Neagle and his family, and if so, he would suggest that even the members of this board were not perfect. In closing Mr. Murphy said it would be a shame to close up this matter which had been one of the choicest subjects for the board's papers and the newspaper men of the city.

Alderman Blanchard said that the situation was briefly this—the budget adopted by the board provided for a certain number of police officers for the year, including Officer Meehan, and there was no occasion to increase the budget for the police department at this time.

At the request of Alderman Murphy, City Solicitor Slocum was called in and said that he had advised the mayor that Officer Neagle had been unlawfully removed.

Alderman Pratt denied that the Finance committee had acted contrary to the decision of the city solicitor and said that there is now money available in the police department to pay one $2.75 day man. He did not understand that the reinstatement of Neagle had affected the validity of the appointment of Officer Meehan. He did not believe in increasing the police appropriation and reminded the board that the committee had cut off every cent it could and still found it necessary to recommend $20,000 additional tonight. He believed the police department was getting its share of the tax levy.

Alderman Cox intimated that Alderman Blanchard had been instrumental in getting the city involved in the matter.

FIRE HAZARD BILL

Provision of Important Law Going Into Effect Tomorrow

With the enactment by the General Court of the Fire Hazard Bill, Boston and the Metropolitan District are provided with a working program for fire prevention. The new law goes into effect Saturday, and it is expected that early this week the Governor will appoint a Fire Prevention Commissioner to fill the new office created by this Act.

Fire and insurance experts have pronounced the new system a splendid achievement in the long campaign for a better fire prevention law in Boston. In the fore-front of this campaign has been the Committee on Fire Prevention of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. The bill recently enacted was drafted by this committee, and other organizations of citizens and individuals gave unselfish service in the long fight which had to be waged before it was finally voted on the statute books. It is, undoubtedly, one of the most important enactments of the last General Court, and its successful operation in Boston will establish a new and rare reputation for this city.

What are the measures provided by this law, and how will they be put into operation? This question is answered in the following discussion by Mr. Clarence H. Blackall, chairman of the Chamber Committee on Fire Prevention:

Chapter 795 of the Acts of 1914 is an act to provide for the better prevention of fires throughout the Metropolitan District. The Chamber of Commerce has been working for three years to bring about the passage of a bill of this sort and when it goes into effect on the first day of August it is reasonable to expect that definite results will speedily make themselves manifest. There is no doubt about the necessity for such a bill, but a brief summary of its accruing advantages will make more clear just what we have a right to expect from this much-fought-for bill.

It is not a measure to regulate the construction of buildings. It is a law which aims to check carelessness and supervise the occupancy and maintenance of existing and future structures, and it will accomplish the following definite results if properly enforced:

First: There are now many different bureaus and supervisors having jurisdiction over the matter of fire hazard. This bill can unite these various bureaus, departments and forces that are now so disconnectedly endeavoring to reduce the fire loss, and by such unity of effort through the creation of a central authority these forces can pull together instead of pulling apart as they do at present.

Second: It can compel the installation of sprinklers in mills, factories and a few other distinct lines of hazardous structures, which at present constitute in many respects our most serious menace. All experience in other cities has shown that sprinklers are the most efficacious in stopping fires at their origin, and there is no case on record of loss of life in connection with a fire originating in a properly sprinkled building. This bill would therefore judiciously give power alone, which is the expenditure required for the establishment of the bureau.

Third: The bill can also oblige the installation of dry pipe sprinkler systems in basements of tenement and lodging houses and thus prevent such fires as occurred in the Arcadia and Melvin Hotels, which were undoubtedly due to improper conditions in the basements.

Fourth: It can regulate or prohibit the dangerous accumulation of rubbish. In the reports of fires a large percentage are described as being of unknown origin, but most of these fires so classified arise from dangerous accumulation of rubbish heaps and carelessness in protecting same.

Fifth: Most important of all, this bill in its application can be a powerful educating force in the community, awakening manufacturers, lodging-house keepers, tenement-house proprietors and owners and occupants of commercial premises

WILL OPEN SOON

New Boylston Street Subway Is Nearly Completed

An effort is being made by the Boston Transit Commission and the Boston Elevated Railway Company to have the new Boylston street subway ready for opening to traffic on Labor Day. The date has been set tentatively.

From its western entrance in Beacon street, by Kenmore street, to Park square the subway is completed. The tracks have been laid all the way except at the Kenmore street incline, and at the stations, and its two stations are about 85 per cent completed. It is said to be the quickest piece of subway construction done by the Transit Commission, it being only about three years since the survey for it was started.

There is one station in Massachusetts avenue, where the subway crosses under that highway, and another station opposite the Public Library, in Boylston street. Opposite Park square, or nearer to Arlington street, there is only an incline through which surface cars will enter the subway, and there is no station at that point.

Inward-bound surface cars which come down Boylston street, are now using the new arrangement. The rail which carries them, leaves the old line opposite the Arlington Street Church and keeps to the south of it in a straight line till it dips down into the new incline at the bottom of which it goes through the old subway wall and connects with the old subway rail. Just before the new subway reaches that incline it spreads out into two tubes, sending one on each side of the incline to a point ahead where they connect with the tracks that come down from the surface. Immediately beyond that point a part of the new subway will come to a dead end and will stay that way until it has been determined whether the additional tracks shall be carried to Park street or to Post Office square. Pending that decision all the cars that come down Boylston street, both over the surface tracks and through the new subway, will be switched into the old subway almost opposite Park square, where the inward-bound surface cars make connection today.

When the work is completed the old entrance, on the Public Garden, will be filled and restored to the garden.

TO AID HOME RULE

An enthusiastic meeting to aid the Irish National Volunteers was held Wednesday evening in Hibernian Hall, Newton. $200 was subscribed for the cause and 100 men agreed to drill at the hall every Tuesday in anticipation of a call from the party leaders in England.

Timothy D. Murphy was chairman of the meeting and Daniel O'Connell and Richard M. Lyons were principal speakers. Timothy O'Connell, secretary, announced the appointment of the following committee to raise money for the American fund which is to be sent to Ireland: Richard Leonard, chairman, James Walsh, John Murphy and James Shea.

After the meeting Messrs. Murphy and O'Connell, both of whom have been in the State Militia, put the 100 men through a course of maneuvers.

AUTO ACCIDENT

An automobile owned and driven by Mr. Walter P. Thorn of Auburndale collided with a street car at the crossing of Commonwealth avenue by the tracks leading to Riverside.

The accident took place about four o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Thorn did not see the car until he was close to it and his swing to the right failed to clear it.

The collision broke his windshield, left fore wheel, lamp and mudguard. He was not injured, but John Ferrick of 97 Stamford street, Auburndale, who was with him, was cut on the hands by broken glass from the windshield.

OPPOSE INCREASE IN FARES

City and Town Officials Organize For Coming Hearing

A meeting of city and town officials from places affected by the proposed increase in the rate of fares and transfers on the Middlesex and Boston lines, was held Wednesday morning at the Kimball building, Boston, at which the following named persons were present: David Murdoch, selectman of Needham; A. S. Howland, town counsel of Billerica; George Brown, Hopkinton; Hiram P. Tuttle, secretary of the Board of Trade, Waltham; P. F. Fitzpatrick, selectman of Wellesley; W. S. Slocum, city solicitor of Newton; Mayor Childs of Newton and George R. Blinn, town counsel of Bedford, in addition to the men who called the meeting, and George A. Sweetser, town counsel of Wellesley, who presided. Mr. Burns acted as secretary.

Everybody present had something to say against the petition of the company; and the consensus of opinion was expressed in the assertion of Mr. Moseley of Needham, who said in brief: "A few years ago, when the company asked for an increase in fares, it was allowed by the Railroad Commission, with the understanding that in a short time the company would get enough revenue to restore the original rate. Far from that, however, the directors are asking another increase. This company, with its subsidiaries, is under the control of a few men, and the trouble with the whole outfit is over-capitalization. The territory in which their cars run is not surpassed in this country, and if they cannot make it pay at present rates it would be well for them to give way to somebody who can. If this territory should suddenly become clear of street transportation lines there would be a hundred bidders for the opportunity of running cars through it at a five-cent rate."

Mr. Sweetser outlined the case and said that the Public Service Commission had ordered a suspension of the proposed new tariff of the company until an investigation should be held. A hearing on the issue has been set by the Public Service Commission for Wednesday, August 5.

Mr. Burns said that it was stated by the company that the increase in rates asked for was due to the award by the Board of Arbitration of back wages to employees.

Mr. Slocum of Newton was inclined to think that this new increase would be authorized. He said that commissions seemed to have peculiar points of view; but other men present reassured him by asserting that the Public Service Commission is of a new order.

Further discussion was upon an audit of the company's financial and physical assets, and Mr. Tuttle of Waltham said he had learned that the Public Service Commission would make a thorough examination in both branches.

On motion of Mr. Murdoch of Needham, it was voted that the chairman and the secretary of the meeting, besides Messrs. Moseley of Needham, Slocum of Newton and Tuttle of Waltham form a committee to communicate with the Public Service Commission and request that the hearing be postponed until all towns and cities interested have been given full opportunity to investigate the situation; and it was voted that the same committee with Mr. Trainor in place of Mr. Tuttle be authorized to retain one or more counsel, preferably on the committee, to present the case to the Public Service Commission.

The hearing before the Public Service Commission on this matter is assigned for next Wednesday at 10:30 A. M. at the rooms of the Commission, 1 Beacon street, Boston.

"Don't you think it would be a good thing if our legislators were limited to one term?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

"It would depend on where the term was to be served."—Chicago Record-Herald.

PRIZES AWARDED

In Board of Trade Contest For the Best Reasons For Living In Newton

The award of prizes offered last winter by the Newton Board of Trade to the pupils in the Newton schools who should give the six best reasons why Newton is the best city to live in, has just been announced by the judges, Mayor Edwin O. Childs, Rev. Edward M. Noyes, D.D., and Mr. Edward H. Cutler. The first prize of ten dollars is given to William B. Plumer, 992 Beacon street, Newton Centre, second of five dollars to D. Kenneth Dunmore, Balcarres road, West Newton, third, of two dollars and a half, to Herbert S. Leonard, 267 Melrose street, Auburndale, and the next three prizes of two dollars and a half each to Miss Harriet M. Giles, 58 Erie avenue, Newton Highlands, Miss Elsie L. Pelton, 315 Waverley avenue, Newton, and Miss Flora M. Bosson, 87 Hillside road, Newton Highlands.

The prize reasons are printed in full as follows:

EDITORIAL

Alderman Murphy's argument that the aldermen are interfering with an executive matter in refusing the request of the mayor for an additional appropriation for the police department, does not accord with the facts in the case. The budget for 1914 when adopted provided for a certain number of police officers at $1200 a year each the rate of pay to which officer Neagle would be entitled) and certain other officers at other rates of pay, including one or more at $275 per day (the rate paid Officer Meehan.) The board is clearly within its rights in refusing to make any additional appropriations and it is a question whether or not, in ordering Officer Neagle to return to duty Mayor Childs does not violate the city charter. He took an oath to support, which distinctly prohibits any officer from creating a liability in excess of the appropriation duly made therefor. It would seem as if the mayor was the one who was attempting to exercise legislative powers, by an act of injustice to Officer Meehan, whose pay is clearly provided for in the present budget.

Mayor Childs had an undoubted right to reinstate Officer Neagle, altho his judgment in so doing is open to criticism, but, in the absence of money to pay his salary, he clearly had no right to set him to work and create a liability for which there was no appropriation.

The sensible way to settle this unsatisfactory situation, is to restore Officer Meehan's name to the police payroll, and to advise Officer Neagle to appeal to the courts to judge, whether or not, under all the circumstances, the city of Newton is liable for his salary. This is neither embarrassing Mayor Childs nor humiliating Officer Neagle, as unfairly intimidated by Alderman Murphy. No sensible person desires to do either, but the good name of the city demands that the matter be settled by the only competent tribunal, the courts of the Commonwealth.

While Hon. Henry C. Mulligan of Natick has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for councillor in this district, the logic of the situation seems to point to the wisdom of selecting a candidate for this important office from the upper end of the district, preferably from Lowell, the home of the present Democratic councillor, Hon. John J. Hogan. Mr. Hogan was elected last year over former councillor G. Fred Simpson of this city by the enormous vote he polled in the city of Lowell, and the Republican party, if it desires success, should nominate a man who can split the vote of Lowell, and poll the full Republican vote in that city. Strong influences are being brought to bear on Major Charles S. Proctor, of Lowell to stand for the Republican nomination and his business ability, personality and character are such that he would honor the party by giving his consent to this candidacy.

I expect to be a candidate at the coming state primary for one of the three Republican nominations from this city, with the assumption on my part that I am running to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Representative George H. Ellis. While I am a resident of the same ward as Representative Bothfield, who is also a candidate for renomination, I am not a candidate against, but with him, and desire the honor of serving with him in the next House.

My candidacy is based on an experience with city affairs for nearly thirty years and an intimate knowledge of the city gained by fourteen years as editor of the Newton Graphic.

All the newspapers in the city will commend the remarks of Alderman Blanchard that the residents of Newton ought to read the local newspapers in order to keep posted on city affairs.

IMPORTANT OFFICE

Representative White Appointed To Economy and Efficiency Board

Representative THOMAS W. WHITE Appointed to the Commission on Economy and Efficiency.

Representative Thomas W. White of Newton Upper Falls was appointed yesterday by Governor Walsh as a member of the State Commission on Economy and Efficiency for the term of two years. Mr. White has just completed his fifth year of service as a representative from Newton and has rendered the Commonwealth extremely valuable service as chairman of the important committee on Ways and Means. In this position he has been of great service to the Governor in his efforts to keep down the state tax. Mr. White is 38 years of age and engaged in business as a druggist in Newton Upper Falls and Needham. He served for six years as a member of the board of aldermen previous to his election as a Representative. His appointment to this important commission, which carries a salary of $5000 a year is received with considerable satisfaction by his many friends throughout the state.

Governor Walsh and the Commonwealth are to be congratulated on the appointment of Representative White of this city to the commission on Economy and Efficiency. Mr. White has rendered valuable service to the state as a member of the House in general and as chairman of the Ways and Means committee in particular and his experience will be of great value to his new office.

With Representative White as a member of the Economy Commission, with Representative Bothfield as a strong possibility as Speaker of the next House and with Representative Ellis as the next Senator from this district, it would seem as if the present Newton delegation was appreciated, not only in this city but throughout the state.

Practical politics in speaking of the possible retirement of Messrs. Bothfield, Ellis and White from the House of Representatives speaks of them as "one of the most noted legislative trios that ever represented one municipality in the legislature" and further says, "the retirement of any one of these men from the legislature is indeed a great loss to the city of Newton and to the Commonwealth as a whole for they have all been leaders in their respective branches and have not only rendered valuable service to their district but have taken a prominent part in the consideration of the biggest state problems that have confronted the general court during their service on Beacon hill."

Last week I called attention to the greatly increased tax levy to which action of the aldermen Monday night added $16,500, or about 20 cents on the present rate. It is rumored that the city receipts, which will be some offset to the levy will amount to about $300,000 or some $75,000 more than last year, leaving a net increase of about $100,000, after allowing for an increase of two millions in the valuations. Of course any estimate of the 1914 valuation is all guesswork, but it is quite evident that there will be a substantial increase in the tax rate, and if it is less than one dollar, the residents of Newton are to be congratulated.

Representative Henry E. Bothfield, after giving careful consideration to the matter, has announced his willingness to accept another nomination and election to the General Court and will be a candidate for Speaker if the Republicans control the House. Mr. Bothfield's decision has met with the warmest approval from everyone conversant with the situation not only for the certainty that this city will retain the services of an experienced and valuable legislator, but because there is a strong prospect that the city will receive additional honor and prestige from his election to the important office of Speaker.

The rapidly growing cost of collecting ashes in this city is under careful consideration and probably will soon result in some method of regulating the amount and character of the refuse the city teams will take away. Newton has the best and most complete system of collection of any city in the Commonwealth, some of which make no provision at all for this class of municipal service. It is fairly certain that many residents have made a practice of abusing this privilege and proper regulations should be adopted, or the cost will soon be unbearable.

The aldermen are to be commended for making the appropriation for greatly needed changes in the heating arrangements of the Clavin school at Newtonville. There should be a systematic program adopted for continuing this class of work on all the school buildings in the city.

THE NEWTON HOME FOR AGED PEOPLE

STONE INSTITUTE AND NEWTON HOME FOR AGED PEOPLE. LEWIS H. BACON, ARCHITECT.

PROPOSED NEW BUILDING

Work on the foundations of the new wing to be added to the Newton Home for Aged People at Elliot street, Newton Upper Falls, has been in progress for some time, and we are able to give our readers this week by the accompanying cut, some idea of what the trustees have in mind as an ultimate result. The cost of the present wing is about $35,000.

The next step will be the construction of the west wing, after which the present building will be replaced with the centre portion of the structure shown in the cut.

In connection with this work, the Building Committee have sent out the following statement as an appeal for funds to continue the work.

The Stone Institute and Newton Home for Aged People owes its inception to the benevolence of the late Joseph L. Stone of West Newton, who by his will provided a fund in trust for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a home for the support of aged and respectable men and women in indigent circumstances.

The trustees of this fund were incorporated in 1894 under the name of the Stone Institute, in order to more conveniently carry out the intentions of Mr. Stone. The fund under their administration, had increased sufficiently in 1898, to warrant taking active steps towards starting a home. To this end they sought and obtained the cooperation of a number of the citizens of Newton, and a corporation was formed under the name of the Newton Home for Aged People, which was distinct from the Stone Institute, and which, of itself, could hold property and be the recipient of funds for the future support of the home, and have the hearty support and co-operation of the trustees of the Stone Institute.

It is interesting to note in the prize reasons why Newton is the Best City in which to live that all the prize winners name our educational facilities, five of them mention the quality of our drinking water, our accessibility and transportation facilities to Boston, and our environment, three include the character of our city government, and our fire and police protection, and two mention the high type of citizenship and the No License vote.

Alderman Cox was, as usual, wholly inconsistent in voting for the two weeks' vacation for Police Officer Bosworth and voting against the same request for Mr. Ross.

THE WORD

Oh, a word is a gem, or a stone, or a song.

Or a flame, or a two-edged sword; Or a rose in bloom, or a sweet perfume.

Or a drop of gall, is a word.

You may choose your word like a connoisseur, And polish it up with art, But the word that sways, and stirs, and stays, Is the word that comes from the heart.

You may work on your word a thousand weeks, But it will not glow like one That, all unsought, leaps forth while hot, When the fountains of feeling run.

You may hammer away on the anvil of thought, And fashion your word with care, But unless you are stirred to the depths, that word Shall die on the empty air.

For the word that comes from the brain alone, Alone to the brain will speed; But the word that sways, and stirs, and stays, Oh! that is the word men heed.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

All interested in Lighting Fixtures for their homes and public buildings should not fail to see the display of McKenney & Waterbury Co., 181 Franklin street, corner Congress, Boston, an exhibition of lighting fixtures to meet all decoration, including the new Evallite, the softest and most delicate indirect light known.

The Stone Institute trustees bought, renovated and remodelled the well-known Petter estate on Elliot street, Newton Upper Falls, and agreed to pay towards the support of this home the income from the balance of the Stone Institute fund.

During the year 1911, the officers of the Newton Home for Aged People, being duly authorized, accepted the transfer of all of the property previously owned by the Stone Institute.

By Chapter 601 of the Acts of 1911 of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the Stone Institute was authorized to convey all of its property to the Newton Home for Aged People. The act further provided for the dissolution of the Stone Institute and for changing the name of the Newton Home for Aged People to Stone Institute and Newton Home for Aged People, and the property of the Stone Institute was transferred to the present corporation.

The home at present accommodates 15 women, and has no accommodations for men. There is a waiting list of as many more, and new applications are received at every meeting of the Board, and others are discouraged from making application by the length of the waiting list.

The Building Committee have had plans made and have placed the contract for the construction of a brick, fire-proof addition to the east end of the present home and connected with same. This new east wing will contain dining room, kitchen, pantry, laundry and heating apparatus of sufficient capacity for future extensions. With this addition our home will accommodate 26 inmates.

It is intended to erect this addition this year, so as to have the building ready for occupancy by the end of the year.

THOUGHTS FOR EVERY DAY

Sunday
I do the very best I know how; the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference.—Abraham Lincoln.

Monday
Don't exaggerate; the habit of making commonplace incidents appear marvellous tends to make you a sort of harmless liar whose statements will always be accepted with more or less of doubt.

Tuesday
Cato, the great Roman, on being blackguarded and scurrilously used by a low and vicious fellow, quietly said to him: "A contest between us is very unequal, for thou canst bear ill language with ease, and return it with pleasure; and to me it is unusual to hear, and disagreeable to speak it."

Wednesday
If some one does you a good turn, write it on the tablets of your memory; if you do someone a good turn it is a pretty good idea to forget it. You will find vastly more joy and satisfaction in pursuing these opposite methods.

Thursday
Shall I tell you the secret of the true scholar? It is this: Every man I meet is my master in some point, and in that I learn of him.—Emerson.

Friday
Very often a little flattery will bring you a seat in the parlor while an honest opinion would bar you at the threshold.

Saturday
Elbert Hubbard says: "Do not lose faith in humanity; there are over ninety million people in America who never played you a single nasty trick."

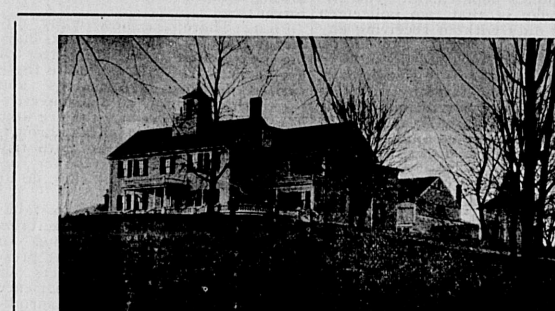

REAL ESTATE

Alvord Bros. have sold for Mrs. W. H. Williamson to E. P. Bosson a lot of land on Beacon street running through to Ledges road, Newton Centre, containing about 15000 sq. ft. of land. They have also sold to the same grantee for the Bishop estate the lot adjoining on the corner of Beacon street, Bishopsgate road and Ledges road, containing 27100 sq. ft. The new owner intends to erect a house for his own occupancy.

When sufficient funds have been raised, it is proposed to erect a new west wing, and later to replace the old building of the present home by a new central portion, connecting the east and west wings. The completed home would then accommodate about 40 or more inmates of both sexes.

Subscriptions of about $20,000 have already been received but not less than $100,000 should be raised to provide for the construction of the completed building, and a portion of the increased cost of maintenance.

As said before, we have a long waiting list. Many of the cases are most pathetic. The applicants, in their old age, through unfortunate circumstances beyond their control, are mostly entirely helpless and dependent on others, and all are beyond the age when they are able to support themselves.

PRESENT BUILDING

DEATH OF MR. COMMONS

Mr. Joseph Commons, for thirty years a well known resident of West Newton, died last Friday at his home, 1445 Washington street, after a long illness with tuberculosis. Mr. Commons was born in Boston and was 55 years of age. For many years, previous to his illness, he was sexton of the St. Bernard's church. He was twice married, and is survived by a widow, a daughter, Miss Ellen Commons, by his first marriage, and three daughters, the Misses Mary F., Emily and Ruth Commons, and one son, Eugene, by his second marriage.

There was a large attendance Monday morning at St. Bernard's church when the funeral services were held. Rev. John F. Kelcher, the pastor, officiated at a solemn high mass of requiem, assisted by Rev. Francis Cronin as deacon, Rev. William Farrel as subdeacon and Rev. Charles J. Galligan, pastor of St. Margaret's church at Lowell and a former curate of the parish, as master of ceremonies. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery at Waltham. The pallbearers, all of whom are members of Triton Council, R. A., in which the deceased held membership, were Jeremiah McMahon, Maurice B. Coleman, Dennis McCarthy, Daniel J. Linnehan, Edward Burke and Frank Smith.

REAL ESTATE NOTES
William J. Cozens, the real estate broker, will tomorrow move his office from 303 Centre street, Newton, to 342 Centre street, Newton, and this office will henceforth be in charge of Mr. Cozens' eldest son, William J. Cozens, Jr., and Mr. George J. Russell, the successful shoe dealer, who has also been conducting a Real Estate department in connection with his other business.

Mr. Cozens, Sr., is also this week opening a new office in the store of Wilbur Thompson, the plumber at 80 Landley road, Newton Centre. This new office will for the present become Mr. Cozens' main office for the Newtons, and will be open for business on Saturday, August 1st. Mr. Cozens is being assisted on the south side of the city by Mr. Everett C. Winslow of Newton Centre, who will aid in the operation of the Newton Highlands and Newton Centre offices. Mr. Cozens will continue his office at Newtonville as formerly with Mr. Edward Rumery, as manager.

Therefore, in addition to Mr. Cozens' Boston connections, he will now have four offices in the Newtons, covering two on each side of the city.

Even with a new home, which will provide for more inmates, there will still be many cases in our own city, which cannot be provided for. Other cities around us are bestirring themselves, and many homes are being provided for the care and support of helpless men and women who have seen better days, and who are today entirely dependent upon charity. We are confident that the people of Newton, when they come to realize the work our home has done and is doing, and what it is now striving to accomplish, will rally to our support in the good work we are doing.

Please send subscriptions to the undersigned building committee: Charles E. Riley, Joseph Byers, Henry Baily, James E. Clark, Frank J. Hale, Francis Murdock, William Price, Albert P. Carter, Treas., 60 State street, Boston.

FEES REDUCED
The Postmaster General has directed that beginning August 1, 1914, the fees charged for the issue of postal money orders payable in 39 of the foreign countries with which international money-order business is transacted shall be very materially reduced.

Under the present schedule of fees the remitters of small sums (and they are usually of the poorer classes) who send a regular pittance to dependent relatives in the old country are burdened with more than their proportionate cost of the service. This change is for the purpose of adjusting this inequality, and is in accordance with the policy of the Postmaster General that postal facilities shall be afforded at the lowest possible cost.

By the change the fees for orders of small amounts are in many instances less than half of the former rate, and a uniform scale of fees is established for all orders issued on the international money-order form, thus treating remitters of all nationalities alike and avoiding confusion on the part of patrons and postmasters.

Under the new schedule the ratio of charge is exactly the same whether large or small sums are remitted. It has been found, however, that the former practice of remitting large sums abroad for deposit in savings banks is being generally discontinued since the establishment of the thoroughly organized United States postal savings system which guarantees absolute safety to the savings of all, including that of our foreign-born population, pays 2 per cent interest on deposits, and avoids the long and tedious delays incident to the deposit of money in foreign savings banks and the withdrawal of sums therefrom.

POLITICAL NOTES
Nomination papers are being circulated for representative by the friends of Thomas Weston, Jr., J. Weston Allen, Frederick W. Cobb, and J. C. Brimblecom. Papers for Howard Embrimble have already been filed at the State House. It is rumored that Mr. George Royal Pulsifer of Newtonville, and Alderman Jarvis of Newton will also be candidates.

The Democratic state committee has apportioned ten delegates to this city to attend the Democratic state convention to be held Oct. 3rd. Senator Charles J. McCarthy of Marlboro will be the Democratic candidate for County Commissioner this fall.

Walking With God

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL

Assistant to the Dean

Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"And Enoch walked with God and he was not; for God took him." Genesis 5:24.

The fifth chapter of Genesis contains a list of men who reached a remarkable age, yet, with one exception, it is written of each, "and died." This man who walked with God, and did not die, is one of the most attractive figures in Scripture.

He lived among wicked people. Enoch's generation was ripening for the flood, and every imagination of man's heart was only evil continually, yet he "walked with God." He encountered us to walk thus even under difficult circumstances. Christ said to the church at Pergamos: "I know where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is; and thou holdest fast my name, and hast not denied my faith." He is cheering to hear of "saints in Caesar's household," and to know that Christ lived at wicked Nazareth that the Father could say, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

He lived in the twilight of revelation. There was as yet no Bible, yet he "walked with God." How shall I rise up to condemn us!

He was married. Some have thought celibacy necessary to the highest holiness, but Enoch refutes the idea. We actually knew a mother who declared she could not be a Christian until her children were larger and less embarrassing! But we are told "Enoch walked with God after he begat Methuselah," and it is suggested that the coming of this little life into his was the beginning of his heavenly conversation.

His Walk.

He walked by faith (Hebrews 11:5). There is no record of him having relations more than we have who are "walk by faith." "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God," and such a faith is basis enough for walking with God.

He pleased God (Hebrews 11:5). How indifferent this makes us to men's opinions! "It is a small thing with me that I am judged of men." How blessed to know we can bring joy to the heart of God and that we may "walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing" (Col. 1:10).

He warned the wicked. Jude tells us that Enoch prophesied, saying, "Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon all. Those who walk with God long to bring to him "them that are without." Good men may, like Samuel Rutherford, lack the evangelistic gift, but they will have the evangelistic heart which made Rutherford great.

If but one soul from Anworth Meet me at God's right hand, My heaven will be two heavens, In heaven's land.

He was progressive in holiness. He walked with God, and pressed toward the mark for the prize. The perfection of Christians on earth is imperfect, and even in heaven we shall still be walking in white.

His Exit.

His strange departure proved in mortality to be a fact, just as Elijah's translation later assured Israel as we are assured by Christ's resurrection.

His departure was felt. Hebrews says that Enoch "was not found," as if they had sought him. He was missed. It is still so when a saint passes. Witness the multitudes that gathered at the funerals of John Wesley and Catherine Booth and Jerry McAuley.

He went out in the prime of life. He was taken when 365 years of age and as compared with others of that day, this was just the morning of life corresponding to the age of thirty three now. We wonder when men are caught away just as their usefulness begins. But surely God does not desert unkindly with his friends. "To depart is to be with Christ, which is far better." "Taken away from the evil to come"—this might be written of Enoch and of many another saint.

His departure was easy. "He was not; for God took him," or as Hebrews reads, "God had translated him." The psalmist seems to apply the language of the text to death. Psalm 49:15 tells us, "He will deliver my soul from the power of the grave for he will take me;" and Psalm 73:24 reads, "Thou wilt guide me by thy counsel and afterward take me to glory." As with the translated saint, so with the dying the Father will stoop down to the child who has been walking with him and men will say, "He was not; for God took him." Spurgeon bears witness, after ministering to many feeble saints, that he had not found one to whom dying grace was not given.

Moreover, should we be alive at the Lord's coming, we shall be translated, as literally as Enoch. (1 Thess. 4:16-17.)

DISHES FOR SUMMER

MENU SHOULD BE SUITED TO TEMPERATURE.

Some Hints That May Help Housewife to Set Out a Tempting Meal That Will Be Enjoyed by Family.

In winter the curling steam from floury potatoes, the fragrant odor from the uncovered joint, the rich brown gravy, are all attractive, but in hot weather—ugh!

Here are some practical hints which may help. None is expensive:

First, the table! It is the setting to a meal, and should be made to look as cool and as attractive as possible. Make it look "inviting" in every sense, with flowers, fish and ferns. Little ferns are cheap enough. Regularly watered, occasionally repotted, and given two or three drops of castor oil four times a year, they are a permanent possession.

Now, for the food. Have you tried cold soup? It must be well strained, free from fat, of medium thickness. This makes a most satisfying summer dish.

Cold meat is not attractive, and stews and hashes are worse—in summer! After a joint has appeared once it is best to cut the meat into very thick slices, and trim into cutlet shapes, and fry as you would do fish, after dipping into egg and bread crumbs. Potatoes, too, are much better mashed, cut into squares, and baked till the outside is a nice brown.

Fish should always be served with a frill of parsley or lettuce leaves. A sliced tomato, some watercress, some pieces of lemon—this at once tempts a tired man to eat.

Salads and salad dressings are most important adjuncts to food in summer.

With a well-made salad the man forgets the cold mutton! Here is a simple, yet quite nice, salad. It dispenses with other vegetables. Slice up a small cooked cauliflower, two or three potatoes, two lettuce, one large tomato, a beetroot and a cucumber. Add a little finely scraped horse radish.

So, with the table nicely laid, attractive with ferns and flowers, a spotless tablecloth and the food daintily put before him, the breadwinner is certain to be more than satisfied.

Hot Water Sponge Cake.

Beat two eggs till very light, add one cup sugar (granulated) and stir all in, then have in your sifter one cup pastry flour, one teaspoon cream of tartar and one half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt. Sift all into the egg and sugar and stir till all mixed in, then add, a little at a time, one-half cup hot water, then one teaspoon vanilla or any flavor. Put in pan 5x9x2 inches and bake at once in moderate oven. Grease your pan before you begin to make the cake, put paper in bottom of pan and grease that too. Measure flour before sifting. You can bake this cake in a larger tin and use for jelly roll or Washington pie tins. It just fills two large sized ones. You could put part of dough in small size round tin for a Washington pie "for two" and the rest in a smaller loaf tin. Frost as you like.

Combination Salad.

Pare and slice potatoes that have been cooked with their jackets on. Wash and remove the seeds from one green pepper, then cut in narrow shreds with a pair of scissors. Toss the potatoes and pepper lightly together, season with salt and pepper and dress with French dressing. Pile lightly in the center of a salad bowl and surround with a circle of thinly sliced tomatoes, also marinated. If preferred this salad may be arranged on individual plates.

Sliced Rhubarb.

A way to prepare rhubarb for using with meat is asked by a reader. Rhubarb pickled according to the following directions would be suitable: Wipe, skin and cut up two and a half pounds of rhubarb. Put this in a preserving kettle with two pounds of sugar, seven-eighths cup vinegar, one teaspoon cinnamon and half a teaspoon ground cloves. Bring to boiling point and let simmer until as thick as marmalade. Fill jelly glasses with mixture, cool and seal.

Boiled Salad Dressing.

One level teaspoonful sugar, one heaped teaspoonful mustard, six table-spoonfuls vinegar. Cupful of cream, half teaspoonful salt, two eggs, pinch of red pepper. Mix sugar, mustard, salt, pepper with a little of the cream. Beat eggs lightly, add them with rest of cream, stir in carefully the vinegar. Put bowl in a pan of boiling water, keep stirring till it thickens; do not let it boil or it will curdle. Put in an airtight jar and place in a cool place.

Chicken Mold.

The mold is made with any remainder of the chickens, cut in dice and molded with ham, hard-boiled eggs, cut in quarters, and pieces of pickled walnut, in a jelly made with the stock and a little gelatin. Set on ice till wanted, then turn out and serve garnished with watercress.

Toasted Cheese Sandwiches.

Cut bread in one-half inch slices, trim and shape as desired and spread with any soft cheese. Place two slices together, toast on both sides and serve.

GOOD SUMMER SAUCES

EXCELLENT TO SERVE WITH COLD DISHES.

Recipes of French Chef That Should Be Useful—Tartar Sauce for Broiled Sardines Is Something of a Novelty.

A good sauce adds zest to what otherwise might be insipid and unattractive in the way of food. The season is at hand when cold dishes are often the most appetizing and the most convenient to serve. Very often a cunningly prepared sauce will lift such a dish from the uninteresting monotony of a "leftover" to a tempting morsel with the stamp of a French chef. In the large hotels where the secrets of sauce-cooking are known, large profits accrue from the serving of dinner leftovers in a new incarnation of luncheon entrees. These recipes for appetizing sauces, from the notebook of a French chef, may prove helpful to the summer housewife:

Verve Sauce for Cold Fish.—Mix by beating thoroughly four tablespoonfuls of grated horseradish, a tablespoonful of finely ground bread crumbs, pinch of salt, pepper to taste and half a cupful of sour cream or milk. Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice and pour over two-inch cubes of the cold boiled halibut or cod.

Sauce for Cold Boiled Salmon.—Make a rich drawn butter, season with salt and paprika. Just before serving add a tablespoonful of Madeira wine in which a clove and a bit of ginger have been marinating for an hour or two. Garnish the cold fish with lemon and parsley and serve the sauce separately.

Sauce for Cold Lamb.—Melt a glassful of currant jelly. Add a glassful of port wine. Bring to scalding, but not boiling point. Serve in a small tureen with cold lamb or fowl.

Tartar Sauce for Broiled Sardines.—Mix one tablespoonful of tarragon, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, a pinch of salt and a tablespoonful of worcestershire and heat over hot water. Brown half a cupful of butter and strain over the mixture.

Mint Sauce.—Break up the leaves of fresh mint until you have a cupful. Mix a third of a cup of vinegar and a fourth of a cup of sugar. Heat and pour over the mint. Let stand at least an hour before serving.

Pineapple Marmalade.

As the time to start replenishing the preserve closet is approaching this recipe may find favor.

Into a preserving kettle put seven coarsely grated ripe pineapples, and the pulp from three lemons and seven sour oranges, rejecting the seeds. For each pint use three-quarters of a pint of granulated sugar and add a good pinch of salt. Stir the mixture thoroughly until the sugar melts, and cook slowly until it is as thick as peach marmalade. Then remove the marmalade from the fire and put it into jelly glasses. When cold cover with paraffin and put on the lids. Keep in a cool, dry place if possible.

This will be found an agreeable change from the old-fashioned sweet pineapple jam.

Fireless Kettle.

The principle of the fireless cooker kettle is the same as the well known fireless cooker, except the kettle does not come in a cabinet. It is made of aluminum and insulated with mica. On the base is a metal ring, which prevents the kettle from warping when used for baking purposes. The top is arranged so that heat and moisture cannot escape. An asbestos pad accompanies each kettle. On this the kettle is set after it has been allowed to boil about one-third of the time it would require to cook the inclosed food in the ordinary stove. There are four sizes of the kettles, of two, four, six and eight quart capacity, the two quart size being for cereals.

Floating Island.

Heat the milk in a double boiler, beat yolks of eggs until well broken up; then add sugar and salt, and when well mixed gradually add the hot milk. Return to the double boiler and cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly until the custard forms a heavy coating over a silver spoon. Remove from the heat at once, strain into a cold bowl or pitcher and chill thoroughly; then add the vanilla. Pour into sherbet glasses or one glass bowl and heap the meringue, made of three whites of egg, on top. Do not flatten it down.

Russian Sliced Cake.

With one-fourth of a pound of sugar mix the yolks of five eggs, then gradually three ounces of flour, in a teaspoonful of anise seed, two ounces of chopped blanched almonds and last the whites of five eggs whisked quite stiff. Bake in long, narrow cake tins (paper-lined and well buttered), and when done turn out, cool, slice and dry the slices in the oven until quite crisp. They are then ready to serve.

To Clean Laces.

Delicate laces which have become soiled may be cleaned beautifully by squeezing them through skim milk to which a little bluing has been added. They come out of their bath looking like new and are just the right stiffness when starched and dried, or dried and ironed between cloths over a turkish towel pad.

Buttermilk for Rolls.

Buttermilk will insure much softer and lighter hot rolls than if plain milk is used.

THE TRADE COMMISSION BILL

Senator John W. Weeks Summarizes Arguments In Opposition

In an able speech last Saturday in the United States Senate, Senator John W. Weeks of this city, summarized his opposition to the pending Trade Commission bill in the following language:—

1. There is no public demand for it. This is evidenced by the failure of business men to appear before either the Judiciary Committee of the House or the Interstate Commerce Committee of the Senate in its advocacy, and by the general expressions of boards of trade and chambers of commerce all over the United States in favor of a policy of much more careful and thorough investigation being made before any action is taken, even assuming that it is desirable to legislate on the subject.

2. That this legislation is involving the Government in policies, one of which is practically the antithesis of the other; namely, forbidding action on the one hand and regulating it on the other. This conflict of action will produce inevitable confusion.

3. If legislation of this character is to be adopted, the Sherman anti-trust act should either be repealed or modified to put it in harmony with this newly adopted policy. In any case, it seems to me that the Sherman anti-trust act should be amended so that hereafter it should not apply to public service corporations, which are now in effect a regulated monopoly, and there may be many cases where consolidations could properly be made or consolidations which have been made might properly be allowed to stand if good public policy were alone to be considered. The law at present forbids such action.

4. I believe there is now sufficient law to enable the carrying out of any desirable feature there may be in this legislation; that is, to prevent wilful and destructive competition. I have no doubt that the courts would act affirmatively on any plea to take such action if the facts demonstrated the truth of the charges.

5. Investigation shows that when real competition is not wilful and destructive it is not difficult to compete effectively against even the strongest and largest organizations. This is well illustrated in the case of the growth of independent steel plants against the opposition of the United States Steel Company and the growth of independent oil refining companies against the Standard Oil Company. Both of these concerns depend largely on a natural product which is limited in the area where it can be produced and in ownership; yet statistics show that the independent companies are now gaining as they have for many years in proportion to the total output on both of these companies. Furthermore, an investigation would doubtless show that beyond a reasonable limit any expansion of a business can not be

BALANCING THE FOOD

BILL OF FARE SHOULD BE APPETIZING AND VARIED.

Very Much More a Case of Judicious Selection and Serving Than of Expense—Suitable Combinations of Food Materials.

To say that a family bill of fare must be appetizing and varied does not necessarily mean that it must be costly as well. At first sight, it might seem difficult to secure these qualities without buying rather expensive materials or serving very fancy dishes, but the theory does not hold in the case of food any more than in that of clothing and house furnishings.

Just as the test of a woman's ability in dress is to get suitable and attractive effects with relatively low expense, so the test of her catering ability is to give her family an ample supply of wholesome and pleasantly varied meals with an outlay of money and time proportionate to her income and circumstances.

Variety in the diet can be secured both by providing different kinds of food and by preparing staple foods in different ways, and the best results are obtained by combining both methods, says the United States department of agriculture year book. When the housekeeper studies the list of common foods and the combinations made from them, she will probably find that as regards their place in the menu they fall into general groups—those which, like bread, potatoes, milk, eggs, etc., which have little distinctive taste, and those like cheese, seasoning vegetables, some sweets, cooked meats, etc., which have marked the individual flavor. She will further find that the mild-flavored materials are the ones which are used in the greatest quantities, meat after meat, while those of pronounced taste appear in smaller amounts, or some of them only occasionally. To put it in another way, she will depend largely on the first group to make up the bulk of her dietary, and on the second to vary it.

In cooking, some foods require only simple methods to make them very palatable. Tender steaks, or chops, in cooking, develop delicious meat flavors and require no highly flavored vegetable seasoning or condiments to make them palatable. In themselves they furnish flavor sufficient to accompany potatoes, rice or other foods of mild flavor. On the other hand, in stews and other dishes made from the cheaper cuts of meat, carrots, onions or other distinctive flavors are usually added to supplement that of the meat flavor. The cheaper cuts are not usually of such a texture that the best results can be secured by such simple methods as broiling or roasting.

The housekeeper who makes a dish composed of cheese and macaroni, or of meat and rice or potato, etc., applies the same principle. The great variety of pickles, preserves and elaborate pastry which American housekeepers used to consider necessary represented another instinctive effort to vary, by adding flavor, the monotony which was inevitable, particularly in winter fare, before the days of easy transportation and cold storage brought fresh fruits and vegetables to the year round.

If the good housekeeper analyzes the make-up of her meals a little further, she will probably find that she arranges them, perhaps unconsciously, according to more or less definite principles. In most American families the chief daily features of breakfast are bread of some sort with butter, very often fruit, and some kind of breakfast cereal, and coffee, tea or cocoa, with their usual accompaniments of sugar and milk or cream. This combination is varied by omitting either the bread or the cereal (which is logical, if one wishes to do it, since they provide the same sort of nutrients, though in different form), by changing the kind of bread or cereal, or by combining with them some other materials. If the members of the family are engaged in much muscular work, the meal will be made more hearty by the addition of some hot dish, as eggs, meat hash, creamed fish, bacon and possibly honey or sirup. If their work is light, however, less variety or smaller portions will probably be preferred.

The custom of serving fruit at breakfast is undoubtedly healthful and not extravagant if low-priced fruit is chosen. Of course, it may be cooked or canned fruit, if this is more convenient. It does not increase the housekeeper's work so much if it is served with the other breakfast dishes as it does if made a separate course, for each course means extra time and service. This is a commonplace illustration of the principle that the housekeeper who has many demands on her time or who has limited help should select ways of service which are simple and time-saving rather than those suitable for families where other conditions prevail. Well carried out, the result is pleasing in either case.

Rhubarb Sponge.
Rhubarb sponge is made as for jelly, but when it begins to thicken the beaten whites of three eggs are whipped in until the jelly is quite stiff. Serve with whipped cream or a thin custard made from the yolks of the eggs.

Hint to Mothers.
When washing soiled diapers, put a tablespoonful each of borax and ammonia in the boiling water. Rinse well. This makes the diapers soft and white and they will not chafe the baby.

To Remove Gloss.
Gloss can be removed from black silk by sponging it with cold coffee and ammonia. A teaspoonful of ammonia to a cupful of coffee is the right quantity.

BEST METHOD FOR CABBAGE

Culinary Expert Tells How the Vegetable May Be Served Up in Appetizing Way.

Cabbage, and other vegetables that form into heads, should be soaked in cold water, heads down, to which salt or a little vinegar has been added. This will drive out worms or insects if any are in hiding among the leaves. Half an hour is long enough to allow the vegetable to remain in the water. Take one-half or one-quarter of the head of cabbage, according to quantity required, and shave it down fine, as for slaw; put it in very cold water, enough to just cover it, and let it stand until crisp; pour off this water and add fresh cold water to barely cover it and place over the fire; cover and bring quickly to boiling; then remove cover and boil rapidly until it begins to look clear; pour off the water, season to taste with salt and pepper, add butter generously, a tablespoonful to two cups of cabbage, and turn into a heated dish and serve. Hot cream, cream sauce, sour cream sauce or cheese sauce may be served with it, but it is very delicate and pleasing to the taste served plain with butter and seasoning. If any is left over chill thoroughly and serve as a salad with green peppers or leftover string beans or peas or fresh tomatoes, using French dressing.—Lida Ames Willis.

If you have difficulty in making your pancakes or griddle cakes brown to a turn add a spoonful of sugar or half a spoonful of molasses to the batter and note how easily and prettily they brown. The bit of sugar or molasses does not change the taste or proportions of other ingredients.

Waxed paper is a good thing to wrap about the articles of food before placing them in the refrigerator. It should also be wrapped about cheese and like edibles that must be kept in a dry place.

Fly specks and dirt on mirror surfaces may be rubbed off with a cream made of whiting and alcohol.

When the strainer on the kitchen faucet refuses to work well try a vinegar bath. The deposit from the water has clogged the tiny openings, and no amount of brushing will clear them so well as an overnight soaking in a cupful of vinegar.

Canadian Pudding.
Make sauce of one quart sliced apples, one-third cup sugar, one-third cup water, a little nutmeg; stew gently, then pour into buttered pudding dish and pour over it the following batter: One pint flour, one egg, salt, one cup milk, two level teaspoons sugar, one-half tablespoon melted butter, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon soda; bake in a moderate oven; serve with the following sauce: One-half pint boiling water, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon cornstarch, teaspoon of butter; soak this till it thickens, then cool before adding one cup sugar beaten with yolks of two eggs. Lastly, whip in stiffly, beaten whites of eggs.

Braised Liver With Bacon.
For a three-pound piece of liver have ready one onion cut in thin slices, one-half cupful of carrot dice, one-half cupful of bacon cubes, one-half cupful of tomato, a bit of bay leaf, sprig of parsley, one-half teaspoonful of whole peppers and pinch of thyme. Place the liver on a bed of vegetables, lay thin slices of bacon over the top, cover and cook slowly one hour, basting with bacon fat and water. Strain the liquor remaining in pan and serve with the liver. If the liquid is too thin, thicken with flour.

Raspberry Cakes.
A delicious baked dessert calls for one pint of red raspberries. Sprinkle with a little powdered sugar, and when they have stood for an hour drain off a cupful of juice. Now make a batter with two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half cupful of granulated sugar, the berry juice, one and one-half cupfuls of flour into which has been sifted one teaspoonful of baking powder and the beaten whites of two eggs. Bake in muffin tins and serve with crushed raspberry sauce.

Marshmallow Pudding.
One-half pound marshmallows, each cut into three or four pieces with scissors into a dish you will serve it from. Add one can shredded pineapple and let stand several hours. Just before serving cover top with whipped cream. This is truly delicious. You can substitute any other fruit, but I am very fond of the pineapple.

Raspberry Whip.
Simplest of all raspberry desserts is raspberry whip. This calls for the whites of egg beaten very light, flavored to taste with powdered sugar and flavored with the fresh juice of crushed raspberries. It should be mixed just before serving.

To Remove Gloss.
Gloss can be removed from black silk by sponging it with cold coffee and ammonia. A teaspoonful of ammonia to a cupful of coffee is the right quantity.

OPEN AIR MEETING

At an open air meeting held Tuesday night at the corner of Watertown and Chapel streets, Nonantum, there was a large audience present to hear Miss Margaret Foley, the well known suffragette speaker under the auspices of the Newton Democratic Club. Mr. T. D. Murphy, the president, was in charge. Miss Foley said in part:—

The movement of the world is away from all the customs and teachings of the early ages, and so the political status of woman cannot be an exception to the rules. In the early days the family was self-supporting and independent of the rest of the community. The mother knew that the food was pure, clean, and wholesome and such as she could afford to give her children. It is not so today. All these things are under governmental control. Much of the food is unclean and unwholesome, and yet the mother is obliged to buy that food, taking risk of giving food that may bring sickness and disease to her family. The only way to control food supply is through legislation. It is the same with the water supply which can no longer be cared for by the head of the household. It is now a town, city or state supply. It may be pure or impure. This question lies with the government, therefore the mother heart, the home element, should be expressed in the governing a vote to the woman in the home.

We are told that politics are too corrupt for woman to enter as a voter. But does she not live under a government which is dominated by politics? If it is too corrupt to admit woman as a voter, then politics are too corrupt to make and administer the law which influence her life.

Through the great economic and political changes of the past century, the working woman of today is entitled to the same rights and privileges accorded the working man in the political world. These changes have taken her from the home, and have brought her into business and industrial life, where she has become more and more man's equal and competitor, leaving behind those conditions which long made her dependent upon him.

This has not been of her own choosing. The invention of machinery has taken her from the home, and she has been forced to do the work formerly done in the home from the spinning and weaving even down to baking and laundry work, and masses it in great factories and shops. As a result the homes of today and a hundred years ago are very different. Instead of woman taking man's work, it is the reverse. He has appropriated to himself what was long supposed to be hers. When this is not the case she must at least do it upon man-made plans. As this simply means that in developing this country men have consciously taken from the home its industrial life, and woman finds that what was formerly a work of love is now done under new conditions and strange environments. It is strange that any thinking being should consider in the general evolution and progress of the world that woman alone should stand still. Industrial and economic conditions today are such that however many of the 7,000,000 working women in the United States wanted to stay at home they could not do so, because they are compelled to support themselves and others.

The wage-earning girl or woman today has little chance beside her brother (except in the trade unions) although she performs the same amount of work, yet she cannot command the same wages, largely because she is not a recognized citizen.

This experience in the outside world is educating her. She sees that she is forced to compete with men who have full political right, while she herself is a political nonentity. She often finds that she must protect herself against conditions which are more often political than economical, forcing upon her the conviction that she, who is entitled to be a full-fledged citizen, is being treated as a second-class citizen. She sees that politics, business and industrial life are inter-related, and that since she is a factor in two, she should be granted the right and privilege of the third. She sees that being political nonentity she is at a disadvantage as a bread-winner.

The working woman needs the ballot, because there are economic conditions which can be solved by the ballot only. At present laws are made without woman's viewpoint. We know that the ballot carries with it responsibilities. We know that the person who is discriminated against by law is always the poorest paid, therefore woman's labor is cheap labor, and unjust discrimination against her as a wage-earner will continue until she becomes man's equal politically.

The great bodies of organized labor have for many years endorsed woman suffrage, and have declared that work should be paid for, not according to the sex of the worker but the merits of the work. But the workman knows that this will not be so long as she is without power in politics. Therefore political enfranchisement is a matter of vital concern to the working woman.

A government of the people, for the people and by the people is only realized when every individual has equal share in administering such a government. Where one class governs without the consent of all there is no true democracy. It is this that led our government to give the colored man political enfranchisement.

The same conditions which freed the negro have been freeing woman. The modern movement direct influence for women upon the legislation which concerns all people. It recognizes the vote as the only means of securing recognition of their needs. Two things are certain: first, woman suffrage is not a receding wave. It is a mighty incoming tide, which is sweeping all before it, second, no human power and no government can stay its coming.

DEATH OF MRS. BROWN

Mrs. Harriet M. Brown, wife of Arthur I. Brown of Newtonville, passed away on Friday, July 24th, at noon, after a short illness. Her death came as a shock to the community, as it was not generally realized that she was dangerously ill.

Mrs. Brown had resided for years in Newtonville, where she had formed many intimate and lasting friendships, and so devoted were her friends, that it seemed almost as if the loss were within their own households.

She possessed remarkable executive abilities, and entered with a lively enthusiasm into many interests, and showed a generous willingness to be helpful in every good work which enlisted her sympathies, and she was greatly loved for her amiable qualities.

The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon at the Highland Villa, her late home, 25 Highland Avenue and her infant daughter, who lived but two days, was buried with her.

She looked very beautiful and natural laid out in a gown of white lace, her infant resting on her arm, and surrounded with a profusion of beautiful flowers.

Impressive services were conducted at 2 o'clock by Rev. James Watson Campbell of the Newtonville Methodist church, where Mrs. Brown attended.

"Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," a favorite of Mrs. Brown's, and other sacred selections were sung by Mrs. Norman Marshall of West Newton, an intimate friend of the deceased.

There were many handsome floral tributes, among them a piece from the guests of the house, and from the Ladies' Aid Society of the Newtonville Methodist church.

A large attendance of relatives and friends were present, among whom were Mrs. Ella Brown, Mrs. Brown's mother and her sister, Mrs. Jessie Hartney of Watertown, N. Y. Mrs. Maude Da Camp, a girlhood friend from New York city, and Mr. Marcy Bartholomew, a relative of the family from Southbridge, Mass.

Mrs. Brown is survived by a husband, two sons and her mother, Mrs. Sarah Marcy of Newtonville. The burial was in the family lot in the Newton Cemetery.

CLARK SHORTHAND INSTITUTE

One of the most essential qualifications in a young man or woman today is a knowledge of Shorthand and Typewriting. The business world demands it, and in order to reach the top of the ladder of success you must have it. There are schools all over the country that are training in this line of work, but there is no school in this city that has accomplished what the Clark Shorthand Institute has this year. The graduating class of 1914 was the most successful class of its kind in the city, some of the pupils entered as late as March but every one finished, averaging a speed of not less than 125 words a minute. The average speed on the typewriter was 45 words some writing 75 words a minute. With the average pupil conservation of time means the saving of money, and that is the secret of the success of this school. The entire course is completed in one season. The business men recognize the perfection of the pupils and every graduate of the school is today holding a good position and steadily advancing. Registration for the fall is now open. The school employs no native speakers of the language. The instruction is given in English, 338 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

DEATH OF SISTER AGNES

Sister Agnes Stanislaus, an inmate of the convent connected with the Church of Our Lady at Newton, died Monday at the age of 37 years. As Miss Agnes F. Matthews of Newark, N. J., she entered the convent seventeen years ago and was a teacher in the grammar grade of the parochial school.

The funeral services which were held Wednesday morning in the Church of Our Lady were attended by a large number of friends and many school children.

Rev. Fr. Michael McManus of Brookline celebrated a solemn requiem mass, with Rev. Peter Walsh of Waltham as deacon. Rev. Philip J. Gallagher of Mt. St. Mary's College at Emorysburg, Md., as subdeacon and Rev. A. S. Malouin, of the parish of the parish as master of ceremonies. The pastor, Rev. Fr. Michael Dolan, was in the sanctuary and a eulogy was preached by Mgr. James N. Supple.

The bearers were Messrs. John Clagher, Charles Murphy, Edward Mitchell, Edward Mahony, William Garrity and Dr. Joseph Stanton. The interment was in the Holy Sepulchre Cemetery at Orange, N. J.

POLICE NOTES

John Quigley of 115 Cedar Street, Boston, charged by the Clearing House Parcel Delivery Company, paid a fine of $20 Wednesday morning after pleading guilty to a charge of overspeeding. Patrolman Edward Desmond made the complaint and testified that several nights ago, while he was on duty in Newtonville, Quigley drove an automobile truck through the square on Washington Street at a rate estimated at 40 miles an hour.

Simon Fraser, a 12-year-old inmate of the State School for Defective Children at Wrentham, was picked up in Newton Lower Falls Wednesday. Patrolman Kearborn. The boy said that he and two other boys ran away from the school three days before, and that he was walking to his home at 191 Savin Hill Avenue, Dorchester. He had an automobile road map to show the way and a paper bag filled with food which he said was bought for him. The youngsters told many different stories that the police had hard work getting the facts.

Politics are often the most bothersome kind of ticks.

NARROW ESCAPE

A narrow escape from a serious accident took place Sunday afternoon at the corner of Webster and Elm streets between an automobile and a street car.

The automobile is owned by William H. Rogers of 78 Page Road, Newtonville. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers were driving with three guests and Allison Shockey, the chauffeur.

They were going through Webster Street, West Newton, at 5.30, and had reached the corner of Elm Street when a Waltham-bound car shot across the street. There is a house on the southwest corner of the crossing and Shockey could not see the trolley, although he slowed down and sounded his horn.

He knew that if he ran into the side of the car the automobile would probably be upset, so he swung sharply to the left and ran his machine into a gas lamp and telephone pole.

Even then he could not get the automobile entirely out of the path of the car. The running board struck the front part of the auto, ripped off the wheel, bent the axle, and demolished the mudguard and lamp.

The auto was moving so slowly that the fore part was not more than scratched by its impact with the iron gas lamp, but the car was thrown off the rails and ran about 15 feet across the tracks before it was stopped. Six feet of its left running board were torn off by the collision.

The car was in charge of motor-man Carleton and conductor Molloy and had about 30 passengers. None was injured, nor were the occupants of the auto. The lighting clock was knocked off the gas lamp, the post was bent and the iron rim of the lamp dropped into Mrs. Rogers' lap.

She suffered a brief nervous shock but soon recovered. Car traffic on Elm Street was blocked for an hour while the car was put back on the tracks.

FISH AND THE HAWK

By CLARENCE WILBERFORCE.

For weeks the beleaguered city had held out against the artillery of its enemies. Night and day the cannon thundered, but, though the forts were ruins and the countryside a plowed field, the defenders had repelled every assault, until those without were in despair.

If the warships within the port could be destroyed, the city must fall. But they were hidden from artillery range by a high, protecting bluff, and from torpedo boats by a stout boom which closed the harbor. Within that sanctuary their mighty guns made a successful assault impossible.

Then it was that the enemy sent in their submarines, to creep beneath the booms and explode torpedoes against the vessels' sides. But the pass was narrow, and the searchlights played all night, so that the moment that the periscope appeared upon the surface of the waves, a hundred guns belched forth destruction, and the submarines never came back.

The besiegers were in despair. And it was then that a new device was tried.

A submarine without a periscope! Why not? It was not necessary to see one's entrance. One could feel it. The warships were jammed together inside the small harbor, and a submarine, creeping like a blind mole under the boom, could not fail to hit her objective.

The enemy tried it. They sent the "North Pole" beneath the boom at night, and five minutes after she had left the line of the blockading ships, the Queen Dorothy went up into the air in a mass of twisted iron and steel.

The "North Pole," having accomplished her task, put out to sea again for fresh torpedoes. This had been only a trial attack. There were eight submarines, and each of them ought to account for two battleships. By the next morning the defenders' fleet would be scrap-iron, and the town would be at the mercy of the besiegers' artillery.

It was then that the defending general hit upon his idea. It was desperate to be at the mercy of the enemy;

With a Roar, the Eagle Broke Into Debris.

the richest city in the world would be theirs to plunder.

Each side possessed a number of aeroplanes, but they had hardly come into use. Each knew accurately the positions of the opposing forces, and warfare had proved that little damage could be done by dropping bombs from above. Moreover, the newest field guns could be elevated perpendicular, and no aeroplane could hope to escape from that well-aimed fire.

"From the heights," said the defending general, "one can see far under the sea."

It was one of those simple truths which everyone had heard and everyone had forgotten.

So, on the following night, equipped with searchlights and stabilizers, which enabled them to hover with their engines shut off, aeroplanes took up their position above the water, waiting.

John Winthrop was in command of this aerial squadron. He had a sweetheart in the beleaguered town, as what soldier had not? The thought of her gave him courage for the supreme task that was his. From his position beside the pilot he watched the selenium searchlight—a far more powerful light than anything known before, and solving the secret of that "cold light" for which inventors had sought so long. He saw it play upon the waves, and, where it fell, he saw, not the rippling surface of the water, but the sandy bottom. Through the glass which focussed the rays upon the retina he could see the inhabitants of the deep sea, passing lazily about their business. Here was a school of fishes—there the quiver of some scavenger monster, come to prey upon what lay beneath that mass of metal which had once been the Queen Dorothy. And then—

A little black shadow passed beneath the surface. She was so far below the waves that nothing could be discerned clearly except the fish-like rudder and the diving plane.

John Winthrop took the steering gear from the pilot's hands, and the aeroplane dropped as a hawk drops upon the fish far beneath him.

So swift was the descent that the sea splashed him before he touched the diving plane that sent the craft skimming along the surface of the sea. He was too near now to see anything at all except the searchlight playing upon the waves. But he had aimed truly.

Crash! As he pressed the button a thunderous broadside of metal sent his airship careening like a boat in a current. Swiftly he rose to a height of 500 feet. Far below the waves he saw the shadow, still against the yellow sand.

And now, all round him, the aeroplanes were diving, and, as each touched the surface, she aimed her guns, which from a height, would have been useless, on account of the deflection of the water. It needed a sure aim and eye, to know when to swoop, to calculate how far ahead the submarine would be before the metal reached her, after the dive.

The airships rose into the sky, and slowly winged their way homeward. And suddenly, with a roar, the Eagle broke into debris before the eyes of the air-sailors. One of the submarines, unscathed, had crossed beneath the boom and delivered her torpedo against the side of the flagship of the defending navy.

John Winthrop signaled to the squadron to retire. There was room for only one aeroplane to maneuver. He must catch the invader as she was returning toward the blockading fleet.

He hovered, motionless as a hawk, and keen-eyed as a hawk, sweeping the sea with his selenium light. Nothing escaped his scrutiny. He saw a monster, predatory fish gliding upon the bottom, but he saw nothing of the submarine.

And now the submarine was half way to the blockading squadron, and already the hostile searchlights were playing about him. A couple of shells whizzed past him, and once more he plunged and fired.

He rose. The submarine had stopped. No! She was rising to the surface. A shell had struck her afloat, injuring the diving gear, but, fortunately for those on board, sending her upward. She lay upon the waves and drifted there.

John Winthrop plunged again, amid a hurrying shower of shells. His grappling irons swung free. They caught the iron fish's sides, and the aeroplane, pinned down by that dead weight, fluttered frantically above her like a wounded bird.

The play of shells stopped. Each man upon the ramps, each man upon the hostile decks, held his breath and watched that battle, outlined as distinctly by the selenium lights as the pictures upon a cinematograph scene.

If the power of the aeroplane was stronger than that of the submarine, Winthrop would tow her into port. If the submarine could make headway above the waves, she would take the lighter craft captive.

The head of the lieutenant in charge of the submarine appeared at the opening. Winthrop looking over from his seat, saw and recognized him. They had made each other's acquaintance when both were ambassadors' aids in a foreign capital.

Neither vessel could fire, for the airship's guns could not be directed vertically downward, while the submarine carried nothing except torpedoes—and those were exhausted.

"Surrender!" called Winthrop from his place. The young lieutenant laughed and went below. And suddenly the submarine began to sink, dragging down the aeroplane with her.

Winthrop strove madly to cut loose the grappling chains, but it was impossible to reach them, for they were firmly fastened, and to do so would have necessitated unshipping the gun to starboard. And, while he tried, the waves splashed over him. His last thought as he sank was of the girl he loved.

Suddenly a hand reached forth and grasped him. He shuddered and opened his eyes. The aeroplane drifted upon the surface of the sea, and the submarine skimmed the surface. The lieutenant was pulling him in from the water.

"You are my prisoner," Winthrop, dripping with water, sat beside him as the vessel repaired slowly to the feet. She had not been injured. Ruse had conquered audacity, as it always does. Suddenly, from both sides the selenium lights began to flash through the sky. Winthrop stared at the Morse code incredulously. He caught at his captor's arm.

"Did you read that?" he gasped. "Peace has been declared tonight," he spelled out, as the white lights flickered above them.

And silently the two men shook hands.

—A town character who had been in trouble with the police many times was arrested recently on a minor criminal charge. The arresting officer was amazed when the fellow appeared in police court with a lawyer, prepared to make a defense. Finally his case was called and the judge asked:

"Prisoner, are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Let my lawyer plead not guilty for me, judge," was the reply. "I ain't got the nerve,"—Kansas City Star.

If, as alleged, the main business of life is making money, it is amazing the number of people who fail at it

generally to the fundamental fact that every fire is a small fire at the beginning and easily extinguished, that any fire if allowed to spread is a menace, and finally, that 90 per cent of all fires are preventable.

There are other incidental benefits accruing from this bill. Full reports are expected to be gathered of every fire within the district covered by its application, and publicity, which is one of the most powerful deterrents of commercial carelessness, can be evoked to prevent a very large proportion of our fires. Then also by publication of rules to reduce the fire hazard, by encouraging fire drills, by greater care in the handling of explosives and dangerous compounds, by prohibition of miscellaneous fires in the open, and possibly even by restrictions on the ubiquitously destructive un-safety match, still further protection may be expected.

But all these and other hoped-for good results from the bill will be possible only if the right man can be prevailed upon to take charge of the department. It is not a position which pays much money. It entails a great deal of hard work, even thankless tasks, and will undoubtedly provoke bitter criticism from the great crowd of property owners who prefer our present shiftless, fire consuming ways. Consequently the most important fact to bear in mind is that the commissioner under this Act must be neither a politician nor an idealist, neither necessarily a technical man nor simply a public-spirited citizen; but must be some one who is keenly alive to the economic waste of our national ash pile, who has the full courage of his convictions, and can express himself in a convincing manner without fear or prejudice.

To such a man, this Fire Commission offers a splendid opportunity, and with such a man at the head the possibilities involved in the application of this Act cannot be too greatly exaggerated; and if carried out in the spirit which the Act provides, and with the persistence of intelligent direction, it ought to lift Boston from its shameful position of being the worst city for fire hazard in the world to one where it at least is on a par with the average American city; and we hope it might even approach the standard of municipalities abroad.—Current Affairs.

NORUMBEGA PARK—Next week a big vaudeville program will be offered including some specialties of great merit. A visit to Norumbega's extensive Zoological Gardens is always of interest especially worthy of attention is the Alaska Bear, a rare species from the Great Northwest. The excellence of the service and cuisine at the famous Grape Arbor Cafe adds constantly to the long list of patrons. Orchestra concerts are a delightful feature connected with the Cafe. The host of attractions found at Norumbega makes it the best amusement resort in New England.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Of classes in our state who cannot vote.—
The idiots, the criminals, and the women.
On election day, despite the law, we note
That only the women are forbidden.
Prison walls all the guilty do not hold,
Nor institutions all of feeble minds.
So when the ballots at the polls are tolled
To vote, women only are forbidden.

A democratic government we say,
A government by and for the people,
Yet women, who are people, must say nay,
Since to vote the women are forbidden.

Harbor not the delusion and false claim,
That now we are governed by the people.
While half of all the people there remain,
The women who to vote are forbidden.

CONTROL OF THE ARMY WORM

When detected, all efforts should be centered on keeping the worms out of crops not yet attacked, and confining their injury to as small an area as possible. As a barrier to their progress, either make a dust furrow of road dust and place around material liable to be attacked or plow a deep furrow ahead of the worms' line of march. Put poisoned grain mash in this furrow. This should be made of 1 lb. of paris green, 25 lbs. of middlings of bran, moistened with a quart of cheap molasses and 1 gallon of water.

The best way to kill them in large numbers is to spray crops which they have not yet attacked with a heavy dose of paris green, 2 lbs. to 60 gallons of water. This strength will not burn the leaves, but in order to be effective the crop or strip of grass which is selected must be sprayed copiously. Paris green is better than arsenate of lead for this purpose, because it washes off more easily, and so will not injure the feeding value of the crop. Where a town is severely attacked with the army worm the farmers should combine and use a power sprayer, as much more effective work can be done in this way. Get the local moth superintendent to co-operate by loaning the town sprayer, where there is one.

Ruskin on Child-Training.
Unless you teach your children to honor their father and their mother, and to love God and to reverence their king, and to treat with tenderness and take care of kindly all inferior creatures, to regard all things duly even if they only have the semblance of life, and especially such as God has endowed with the power of giving us pleasure, as flowers—unless you teach your children these things you will be educating Frankenstein and demons.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—"Neptune's Garden of Living Statues," the sensational aquatic spectacle that ran for five weeks at B. F. Keith's Theatre last spring to record-breaking attendance, returns to Boston next week for an engagement of positively one week only. Since leaving Boston last spring, "Neptune's Garden" has been clear across the Continent and back, besides playing in every city of any size in the East. For this engagement an entirely new and elaborated production is being built, with new scenic effects, new lighting effects, and many new features, in addition to the mysterious water illusion which created so much discussion during the last run of "Neptune's Garden of Living Statues" at B. F. Keith's Theatre last spring. This illusion, by means of which the living groups of statuary plunge into the depths of the Enchanted Pool and disappear from sight, to reappear after a long interval in entirely new costumes, is the most baffling illusion of the age. Eleanor Gordon, Wilson Melrose, Mrs. George A. Hibbard, Francesca Rotoli and Franklin Searight will appear for a second and positively last week of "Fatsy," and those who have not already seen the greatest cast of Boston favorites ever assembled for one engagement should not fail to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity. The surrounding bill is one of the strongest of the season, and includes Cory, the Italian wizard of the accordion; Billy Halligan and Dama Sykes, the popular musical comedy stars; Farrel O'Taylor Trio of musicians and comedians; Carl McCullough, in impersonations; Eight Berlin Madcaps in whirlwind dances; the Colonial Quartette; and Les Jundts, sensational acrobatic marvels from Europe.

THE NORTH SHORE TRIP
"On to Gloucester!" is the cry these hot days of those who have sailed over "the north shore route" of the Boston & Gloucester Steamship Company in years past in the steel steamers Cape Ann and City of Gloucester. These steamers leave the north side of Central wharf, at the foot of State street, weather right, on week days at 10 A. M. and 2 P. M.; returning leave Gloucester at 2.15 P. M. On Sundays and holidays leave Boston at 10.15 A. M.; leave Gloucester at 3.15 P. M. The one way fare is only 50 cents.

Handicap Approved.
"Your daughter is rather near-sighted," said the doctor. "Well," replied Mr. Groucher, "I don't know as we will regard it as an affliction when she gets old enough to want everything she sees."
